West Should Get In There, Fight

Trudeau Advice: Don't Pick Negative Men

By FRASER KELLY and PETER THOMSON
Special to The Daily Colonist

OTTAWA—Prime Minister Trudeau will campaign personally in Quebec for national unity if Premier Jean Jacques Bertrand presents the people of his province with a referendum asking them to chose between federalism and separatism.

Trudeau made the commitment in an exclusive 55-minute interview which covered in depth the mood of the nation and his first year as prime minister.

Trudeau also expressed some very candid opinions about the alleged ill will rampant in the Prairies. It was the first time he has expressed his personal views about causes of disenchantment in the West, urging Western Canadians to fight for their rights as he and others did for Quebec's point of view.

Trudeau was asked if he intended to take a direct hand in Quebec politics by campaigning for a provincial party that based its platform on a federalist position. He replied:

"No, I don't intend to do that; I am too much a respecter of federalism to believe that the prime minister of the country should involve himself in provincial politics in such a direct way.

Theoretical Question

"The only circumstances in which I see myself getting involved in this theoretical question would be if there were to be some kind of referendum in Quebec asking the people to vote against federalism or against Canada, or for separatism. Then I would have to act as a citizen of that province and I would have to speak my mind on it.

"This would no longer be a question within the ambit of provincial jurisdiction as fought out by a provincial election; this would be a question within the ambit of whether the country exists or not and I think certainly as a Quebecer I would feel very much involved in the solution of such a question."

Thompson: In the past few months you have had a couple of notable confrontations with Premier Bertrand. He has, in fact, accused you of aiding the cause of the separatists. Do you feel these confrontations are in fact hurting unity?

Prime Minister: "No I don't feel that they are hurting unity; I feel there is a lot of politics to such confrontations.

"Mr. Bertrand is going into a leadership convention. I think that the kind of party he leads was created out of a kind of hostility towards les Anglais, and towards Ottawa, and I think he is making a play now for the old guard of that party and probably for the greater mass of that party.

Insults and Injuries

"This does not distress me at all, any more than a lot of the insults and injuries that Ottawa received from Western premiers on other subjects.

"But why should we be any more shocked that provincial premiers from Quebec are aggressive towards Ottawa when you see what some of the other provincial premiers from the West, or even from the east, say?"

Kelly: I think the difference, sir, is that your reaction to Bertrand has been much tougher than your reaction to any of the Western premiers.

Was this partly a deliberate attempt by you to encourage and establish the federal presence in Quebec?

Prime Minister: "Yes. It is one of our major aims.

"And it is in this sense that I was talking earlier about the constitution or federalism as viewed by the man in the street.

"This issue that you are referring to arose over the situation of the international airport which is to be situated in Quebec.

"The Quebec government was taking the position that it should decide where this airport would be, and was giving all kinds of what I found to be very unsophisticated reasons for that.

For Farmer, Laborer

"This, of course, we cannot recognize. We have to say that in all areas under federal jurisdiction the federal government is the spokesman for the Quebec farmer, laborer, intellectual and so on.

"Therefore, when the government of Quebec, even in areas of federal jurisdiction, tries to tell us what to do because it is the spokesman for Quebec, we must reject that extremely strongly.

"I would do the same with any Western premier who accused me of the kind of things that I was accused of by Quebec."

Kelly: Both major provincial parties are planning conventions, although entirely of a different sort; can we assume that you are going to have more of these kinds of statements to deal with from the province of Quebec?

Prime Minister: "I would think not.

"I would think that the mistake of the past half-dozen years of political parties in Quebec has been to try to vie too much with each other in this area, to contest with each other as to who could be more anti-federal, or who could be more anti-Ottawa.

Strong Federalism

"I think that the future in Quebec will belong to that party which will realize that Quebec's future is in Canada, but will realize that strong and tough federalism means a certain amount of provincial autonomy, a certain amount of provincial authority in their fields, which will bargain toughly with the federal government in these fields.

"This is in the constitutional area but especially will take the lead in Quebec to show to the people that the important areas are not areas of contest with Quebec.

"What is important is not so much to try to argue or bicker about the split of the fiscal dollar with Ottawa, but to make sure that the industrial base of Quebec will grow; to make sure that the natural resources will be exploited better; to make sure that the educational system will be developed better; to make sure that modernization of the administration, modernization of the whole apparatus of society will be forwarded.

"The party which begins telling this to the people of Quebec, the party which begins putting the accent not on

Victoria Woman's Book Wins Literary Award

A Victoria housewife was named Monday as winner of one of Canada's top annual literary awards for her first book.

Alice Munro of 1648 Rockland, 37-year-old mother of three, has won one of six Governor-General's Literary Awards for 1968. The Canada Council presents a $2,500 prize with each of the awards.

Mrs. Munro's book, Dance of the Happy Shades, is a collection of 15 short stories, most of them set in southwestern Ontario, where she grew up.

"I'm terrifically happy," she said. She has "nothing in particular" planned for her prize money, other than going to Ottawa May 13 with her husband, James, to pick up the cash and a specially-bound copy of her book.

Mr. and Mrs. Munro own and operate Munro's Book Store at 735 Yates, and she works there in her spare time.

She has been writing "seriously" for more than 15 years and has had numerous short stories published in Canadian periodicals and fiction anthologies.

'NOT GOOD LUCK'

She is working now on more short stories and has given some consideration to writing novels. "But I don't want to say much about it. It's not good luck to talk about it," she said.

"For some time, Alice Munro has been one of the dauntless members of the tiny group of persevering writers who have kept the short story alive in Canada," Colonist book reviewer E. D. Ward-Harris wrote after the book was published.

Of her book, Mr. Ward-Harris said, "Alice Munro displays a great affinity with lonely children, and her profound insight into the functioning of children's minds is mirrored by accurate dialogue and made more telling by the absence of sentimentality.

"Nothing is labored and much

Deporting Hinges On Draft

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The government urged the board of immigration appeals Monday to uphold the unique deportation of an American-born citizen on the ground that he renounced his citizenship to avoid serving in the Vietnam war.

Thomas Glenn Jolley, 24, who now lives in Atlanta, was ordered deported after the immigration and naturalization service found he fled to Canada "with the hot breath of the draft at his back," then renounced his U.S. citizenship while in Toronto.

The case is unique in the Vietnam war and may be unprecedented in all U.S. wars. No similar cases are pending.

After an hour of oral argument, the board took the case under advisement. Decisions usually take about two months.

Zoo Wolves Attack Invader

NEW YORK (UPI)—Wolves attacked a 12-year-old boy who climbed into their lair at the Bronx Zoo Monday.

Attendants said Leonard Smith, despite savage wounds in his arms and legs, managed to wade back through the moat surrounding the lair and escape.

He was rushed to Fordham Hospital which later listed his condition as fair.

Police said the lair is surrounded by a seven-foot high fence topped with barbed wire on three sides but has only a four-foot high stone wall in front.

Riot Spoils Quiet Day

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Catholic civil rights demonstrators stoned a police station and pitched Molotov cocktails at constables who rushed them swinging clubs late Monday night. No new attacks were reported on public utilities, guarded by British troops.

The fighting between Catholics and police in Belfast broke out shortly before midnight and ruined a day that had almost passed in peace. (See Page 3.)

Mutiny Quelled At Sea

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — The United States Coast Guard said Monday night a 10-man boarding party had boarded the West German freighter Helga Witt and restrained five mutinous crew members.

A spokesman for the Coast Guard in San Juan said the coast guard boarding party accomplished the operation without bloodshed. All five crew members had been reported armed.

NO INJURIES

Capt. Warner Thompson said there apparently were no injuries during the ordeal on the 3,118-ton ship about 120 miles southwest of San Juan.

The cutter Courageous arrived alongside the ship, after 6 p.m.

Capt. Thompson said the five seamen would be brought to San Juan and turned over to a federal marshal to await arrival of a German diplomatic representative.

The ship was reported en route from Australia to Marseille, France.

Most Power Soon Nuclear

MONTREAL (CP) — Nuclear energy will make a major contribution to the world's energy requirements by the year 2000 by being harnessed to produce electricity.

H. B. Merlin, nuclear plant engineer at Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. at Chalk River, Ont., said Monday recent forecasts indicate that about 56 per cent of North America's electricity may be produced with nuclear energy within 31 years.

He told the 71st annual meeting of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy the world production of electricity by that time will be almost three times the total electricity produced today.

LARGEST MEETING

More than 4,000 delegates, including some of the world's most prominent mining men, are attending the three-day conference which opened Monday. The meeting is the largest in the institute's history.

Merlin said forecasts show nuclear energy wil be supplying 35 per cent of North America's electricity by 1980, 23 per cent of Western Europe's and 20 per cent of Japan's.

In Canada, most of the nuclear stations will be located in Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes although they may be located in Western Canada toward the end of the century.

B.C. MAY BE LAST

Of the Western provinces, British Columbia may be the last to harness nuclear energy to turn out electricity because of its abundance of hydro sources which will meet electricity requirements.

Merlin said Quebec likely will go into the full-scale use of nuclear energy by 1980 although this date could be postponed.

Nuclear stations have higher capital and lower fuelling costs than fossil-fired stations—stations utilizing coal, petroleum or natural gas.

COST DECREASES

The capital cost differential decreases as the unit size increases so the cost of electricity generated will be dependent on the unit size and the capacity factor at which the station is operated.

The unit capital cost in Canada should be reduced in the future by the trend to larger generating units, by technical improvements and by increased experience in engineering and manufacturing nuclear components.

Another speaker, Gerald Blackmore, vice-president of the coal division of the Cape Breton Development Corp., described the last 12 months "as unique in the history of the Canadian coal industry."

COKE FROM WEST

Blackmore said that after many years of market reduction and limited capital investment "we have seen the finalization of massive long-term contracts for high-grade coking coal from the Western Canadian coal fields."

Senate's New Role?

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate resumes its legislative work today, and Senator Paul Martin sees the upper chamber developing new investigation and scrutiny responsibilities that may require a new kind of Senate appointment.

Senator Martin, a member of the cabinet and the government's leader in the Senate, said the role of the Senate has changed radically from its original purpose as a chamber for "sober second thought."

"It still serves this function, but it also performs other functions in its committees of investigation and scrutiny," Mr. Martin said in a memorandum summarizing the current work of the Senate.

"It is with these latter func-

Dikes Make Difference

Mood Optimistic Along Red River

EMERSON, Man. (CP) — The mood is optimism as the Red River Valley awaits rising flood waters.

It was business as usual Monday at this border town, which has felt the Red's heavy lash in other springs.

"Those dikes have made a lot of difference to Emerson," said flood co-ordinator Pete Herner.

"Those dikes" are heavy earthen seawalls, 50 feet wide or more at the base. They have turned Emerson and other towns downstream into fortresses which floodfighters are confident will hold off the strongest attack the Red may have in store.

They were built after 1966, the last year the river went on a destructive spree and forced the evacuation of flood-plain towns.

Only fast work by soldiers and civilian volunteers on hastily-thrown-up temporary barricades saved them from inundation.

Forecasters now are predicting levels of perhaps a foot below 1966 despite the fact some North Dakota and Minnesota centres on the north-flowing river suffered the worst flooding of the century.

Two weeks of warm, dry weather have made the difference in southern Manitoba, clearing out ice and speeding up downstream runoff before the crest arrives from the United States.

Morning readings at Emerson Monday showed a rise of only three-quarters of a foot in 24 hours compared with a foot-and-a-half average in recent days.

U.S.-Soviet Union Link

Foundation Aims at Bering Strait Bridge

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) —A world-renowned engineer Monday proposed a bridge across the 50-mile wide Bering Strait between the United States and the Soviet Union.

★ ★ ★

T. Y. Lin, a distinguished consulting engineer and professor at the University of California, said his preliminary studies show such a bridge can be built with present technology at a cost of $1 billion.

The Soviet Union would benefit from the bridge, he said, and might contribute to its construction.

Lin has incorporated a non-profit foundation to undertake the project and hopes to have the bridge finished by 1980. It eventually would enable a person to drive from San Francisco, or Buenos Aires, to Paris or Moscow, he said.

"Both the physical and psychological effect of such a bridge on world unity and peace will be tremendous," Lin said. "People will find that we can build constructive things as well as ABMs and ICBMs."

★ ★ ★

Lin concedes the intercontinental span would be more of a monument than a traffic artery at first. But he notes the rapid development now underway on the U.S. side, and assumes similar progress of roads and communities on the Russian side.

The Bering Strait, thought by most scientists to have once been a land bridge from Asia to America, is 150 to 180 feet deep across all of its 50-mile distance. Two islands are located in the middle.

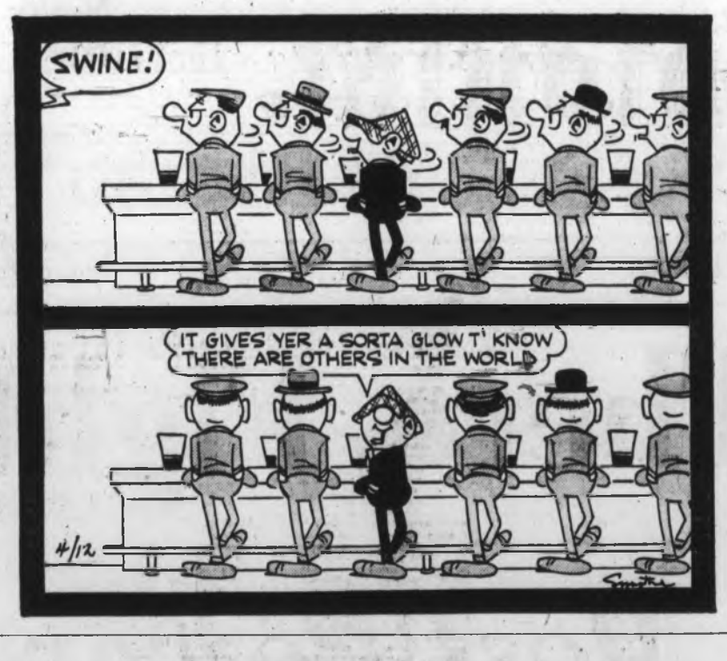

Several methods of construction have been worked out, Lin said. One would be to sink piers at 1,000-foot intervals and then link them by spans built somewhere else and floated up to the Arctic.

★ ★ ★

"The greatest problem would be the ice," said Lin, but he believes the danger of ice flows damaging the piers could be overcome by means of a built-in system that would melt ice around the piers. The strait does not have icebergs, he said, and does not freeze over entirely, even in winter.

Lin, who built hundreds of rail and highway bridges in China during the Second World War, is a world-recognized expert on bridge construction.

"Politicians change, but the people are always there," he said. "This is going to be a sustained effort. It is not a dream — it is a vision. Without vision people will perish."

is implied. The unconscious curelty of the very young, and the tragedy in people's minds, especially children in their helplessness in the face of adults' misunderstanding, is mostly left to the reader's imagination," he said.

Novelist Hubert Aquin, a former vice-president of the separatist Rassemblement pour l'independance nationale and one of the three French-language winners, informed the council Monday he has decided to decline the award. All other winners have indicated they will accept, a council spokesman said.

Five of the six winners of the Governor-General's Literary Awards for 1968, announced Monday night, were born and raised in Quebec province and have already been recognized internationally.

OUT OF SIGHT

Leonard Cohen, renowned for hip-minded poetry and song, and expatriate novelists Mordecai Richler and Marie-Claire Blais are among Quebecers honored. Laval University sociologist Fernand Dumont is another.

Aquin, 39 is a novelist, film-maker, television producer and automobile racer who lists his RIN membership in Who's Who. Once a leading figure in the separatist movement he has dropped out of sight in recent years.

A teacher at College Saint-Marie in Montreal, he receives his prize for the novel Trou de memoire. He had won critical acclaim in Canada and France for his first novel in 1965, Prochain episode.

RETIRING LIFE

Miss Blais, 29, novelist, poet, playwright and winner of France's Prix Medicis in 1966 for the internationally-applauded Une saison dans la vie d'Emmanuel, wins the Canadian prize for her seventh novel, Manuscrits de Pauline Archange.

The Quebec City woman, who won success at 19 with her first novel, La belle bete, lives a retiring life at Cape Cod, Mass.

Cohen has achieved fame and courted controversy in Canada, the United States and Europe in verse and song, on film and records and in personal concert appearances. His award is for the collection Selected Poems. Born in Montreal in 1934, he lives part of the time on the Greek island of Hydra.

Dumont, sociologist and philosopher, is director of the Institut des Etudes superieures en Sciences humaines at Laval University, Quebc City. His award-winning book, Le lieu de l'homme, examines contemporary culture and the conflicts involved. He was born at Montmorency, Que., in 1927.

Richler, 38 a writer of international renown for more than a decade, wins his award for two books—the satirical novel Cocksure, and Hunting Tigers Under Glass, a collection of articles reprinted from magazines in Canada, Britain and the United States.

An excerpt from Cocksure had won the Paris Review humor prize in 1967. Resident in England in recent years, he has been back in his native Montreal since last fall for a year's appointment as writer-in-residence at Sir George Williams University.

The awards committee, which operates under the Canada Council, selected the three English-language and three French-language winners from among almost 300 books published last year in Canada.

New Senate Role?

tions that the future role of the Senate is intimately tied up. The function of investigation and scrutiny probably has implications for the kind of appointment required in the future.

"These appointments should tend to reflect the Senate's dual responsibility for close scrutiny of legislative provisions and imaginative inquiry and investigation into problems just appearing on the social and political horizon."

He said in the memorandum, which he gave to The Canadian Press, that the Senate will in future debate such matters as student power, non-tariff barriers to trade, and industrial concentration in Canada.

A Senate committee on poverty, under the chairmanship of Senator David Croll (L—Ontario), begins work today.

The Senate science policy committee under Senator Maurice Lamontagne (L—Quebec) will visit Europe this summer and issue an interim report in September. It now is considering whether to advise the government to appoint a science minister.

A committee headed by Senator Keith Davey (L—Ontario) will begin hearings this fall on mass media and will have a full-time research staff.

Senator Martin said his own proposal for a Senate foreign relations committee, headed by Senator J. B. Aird (L—Ontario) envisages it becoming as influential as the U.S. Senate's foreign relations committee.

He also said Senator Salter Hayden (L—Ontario) is directing his banking and commerce committee in a wholesale redrafting of the government's bill to govern the activities of financial corporations.

He added that Senate investigations are in many ways preferable to royal commission inquiries. They are cheaper, because senators are paid no more than their regular indemnity for the work, and they are more effective because the Senate tends to follow through on its committee's recommendations.

West Should Get In There, Fight

quarrels with other governments, but on the job to do at home, I think that this party will surge forward and will begin doing things.

"This is my view and it is very tempting to get into provincial politics and go and tell them that."

Kelly: Back on Feb. 1, 1965, the Bi and Bi Commission published its preliminary report which said Canada faced the greatest crisis since Confederation. It added that if solutions were not forthcoming soon, the will of the Canadian people may begin to fail.

★ ★ ★

It seems to us that the country is under greater stress and greater tension than it has been for some time. Would you agree?

Prime Minister: "Even at the time that report was published I personally expressed a preference for underplaying the word 'crisis.'

"I think the linguistic problem was one of the very important ones and I think the years have shown it, but I also indicated during my election campaign that there were other problems of national unity.

"The problem of regional disparities . . . centrifugal forces in the Western provinces . . . of an orphan feeling in either governments or people or groups of people in various parts of the country.

"In this sense I feel that the situation of Canada is still quite serious in the sense that we have to make sure that this consensus on which any nation is founded strengthens rather than weakens.

"There is a great deal of nervousness about the country and it has been our purpose as a government, especially, to try and allay this nervousness by giving the people of Canada a feeling of confidence in their parliamentary system, and their federal system, whether it be on the language basis or on regional disparity, a feeling that problems can be solved, even if they are not being solved."

★ ★ ★

Kelly: The essence of what I'm getting at is whether or not it is possible to solve these problems.

I am wondering, for instance, whether the aspirations of the people of the West, and their expressions of them, are so different from the aspirations of the people of Quebec that this country is almost ungovernable.

Prime Minister: "Well, I, as you know, am inclined to be an optimist . . . and I'm a believer in federalism as a form of government rather than a unitary state, because I feel there is virtue in what you seem to describe as weaknesses and in what many people describe as weaknesses.

"I feel that in the decades to come, this will be a source of Canada's great strength, that we have not made uniform all of Canada.

"We have not attempted to destroy provincial feelings, we have not used the famous glacial tongue theory of throwing everyone into gear and making everyone act together.

"I feel that it will be our strength in the coming decades, and perhaps in that sense we may be stronger than the United States which has many states but none of which are as strong in themselves. In their feelings, as most of our provinces.

Kelly: It is only a strength if there is a common bond to keep them together. It is very difficult to see how the forces at work in the province of Quebec can coincide with the forces at work in other provinces.

★ ★ ★

Prime Minister: "That depends on what interpretation you give to what politicians.

"If you think the people of Quebec are following essentially the separatist or the quasi-separatist, then it is true they are weakened, but if you think they are following mainly the French-Canadians elected to Ottawa, then it is not true we are weakened.

"If you look for a kind of objective test after all, at the last election every member of Parliament, barring perhaps a small, small, fraction, was very strongly committed to federalism — the Liberals, the One-Nation plan, and the Creditistes who were also federalists. All of the others who stood for special status, two nations, ultra nationalists, were beaten at the polls.

"Therefore, in this sense, I am rather encouraged. I feel that the constitution, or shall we say federalism, as seen by the man in the street, is getting stronger."

Thomson: Back on the other side of the country, do you feel that there is a serious, growing disenchantment in the West? A couple of your ministers have commented on it of late.

Prime Minister: "I should begin by being quite modest about the West; I don't know that part of the country as well as I thought I did, or certainly as well as I should.

"Perhaps, to be quite candid with you, when you talk about growing disenchantment, I must begin by saying that some of my reading of the West is that it is always disenchanted.

"In the years when wheat is good and selling most, it is disenchanted; or if there is too much sun, it is disenchanted; if there is too much rain, it is disenchanted.

"I am not criticizing this; I am just explaining that my hearing of the disenchantment leads me to ask a different kind of question:

"Is it the objective situation which is so bad? I realize taking the question of wheat right now, it is not good. Or is it something deeper? Is it a sort of psychological alienation?

"Are the people of the West feeling that those guys down east really don't care, and perhaps have we over the past 100 years not given enough basis to the people outside of the central provinces to feel we do not care?

"If this is the case, it is not so much a question of meeting the disenchantment by specific things, but by convincing the West that the way to beat his alienation is to get in there and fight.

★ ★ ★

"This is actually what we did in Quebec. I am speaking now as a Quebecer and a French - Canadian. There was a great disenchantment with Ottawa in Quebec. It was leading to the breakup of the country.

"What we did was say, 'Let's get in there and get ourselves elected and run the government, and run it so that Quebecers see that we are doing a job for them.'

"My answer to the West . . . make sure that you are not sending negative politicians down to Ottawa who always think that everything is wrong, that the east is always exploiting the West and that the farmer is always the victim of Ontario and Quebec.

"Send down here people who can make sure that the federal policies are good for the west and that in drawing up federal legislation and politics the Western point of view is in there in a positive way, not in a carping, negative way, which sometimes tends to be identified with the voice we hear from the West."

★ ★ ★

Thomson: Is this not unlikely in view of the population differences and the number of representatives that the West has in Ottawa?

Prime Minister: "I don't think that necessarily follows.

"If you compare the Maritime provinces with the Western provinces, their plight is much more serious.

"There are very few of the problems of the West which are beyond the limits of being solved in some part by the Western people, themselves, or even in large part.

"What I think is wrong is that there has not been enough contact, enough communication, and I would personally think that this should be corrected.

"I don't think we have got great solutions for the West that they can't find for themselves, or in which they can't co-operate with us, but I think that we have to make sure the co-operation does exist.

"It is probably that as a Quebecer, I have something to learn. There is probably some lack in my understanding of the way a Westerner really feels, and I would like to develop this understanding."

Punch-Drunk Condition Connected with Brain

By G. T. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you please comment on encephalopathy with seizures? Please include the causes, symptoms.

I am a former boxer and I had it for 25 years. Some people call me punch-drunk.—W.S.

The "encephalo" part means brain; the "pathy" means disease. Hence disease or damage affecting the brain.

This can occur from infection, from intoxications (alcohol, lead poisoning, and others), from physical injury.

It may or may not be possible afterward to discover which cause did the damage.

The brain, encased in the protection of the skull, is not easily harmed by light or moderate blows. A heavier blow is something else again. It can slam the delicate brain tissues against the skull. (Indeed, in some injury cases, a skull fracture may be preferable to suffering the same blow without a fracture. The fracturing absorbs some of the energy of the blow, and to that extent reduces the amount of energy applied to hurling the brain against the skull.)

This impact of brain against the inner wall of the skull is what we know as a concussion — an injury ordinarily of temporary nature.

The pummelling that a boxer takes can cause repeated injury, perhaps none severe enough to be recognized as a "concussion," but small hemorrhages can occur. Taken together, there is appreciable damage to the brain.

This can result in convulsive seizures, loss of balance noises in the head, and a variety of symptoms. In the case of a boxer, we assume it is from repeated blows to the head, and we call it "punch-drunk." Because balance and co-ordination may be impaired, he may be "walking on his heels."

I've seen some of these poor fellows on occasion, all alone shadow-boxing on a street corner. I've seen some others who never were in a ring, but with "wet brains" from too much booze.

Hanoi 'Not Prepared' For Serious Talks

NEW YORK (AP) — State Secretary William Rogers said Monday the United States assumes that the Vietnam peace talks in Paris can succeed, but is preparing for the "unwelcome contingency" that North Vietnam is not yet ready to negotiate seriously.

In a speech to the annual Association Press luncheon, Rogers also reiterated the Nixon administration's backing of the Safeguard anti-ballistic missile system and said the Soviet Union has made new tests of "powerful offensive missiles."

"Only last week," he said, "one of those tests included firing of an SS-9 equipped with multiple re-entry vehicles."

Rogers

'LONGER SHOT'

He said in a brief news conference afterwards that the missile had been tested before "but this is a longer shot."

Rogers told his audience of newspaper, television and radio executives that because of the lack of progrss so far in Paris, the U.S. is giving high priority to preparing South Vietnamese government forces to assume more of the combat burden, and the South Vietnamese government is working hard to develop political unity.

He said the U.S. has made three specific proposals in Paris, but Hanoi has not responded in kind.

The U.S. has suggested talking about gradual mutual troop withdrawal, an end to military activity in the so-called demilitarized zone and release of prisoners-of-war, Rogers said.

Hanoi's only proposal, he said, was "that U.S. forces leave unconditionally while the North Vietnamese forces stay to do as they please. . . ."

"Can any reasonable person suggest that this shows a present willingness to negotiate?" he asked.

He said the U.S. will continue to press for a negotiated peace.

"We have not, however, placed all our eggs in one basket. We have to be prepared for the unwelcome contingency that the other side does not yet want to negotiate a peaceful settlement."

Rogers said after the speech that "we are prepared for alternatives, preferably arming South Vietnam."

PEKING MOVES

Rogers said in his speech that the U.S. regrets that Communist China had cancelled talks in Warsaw and had rejected U.S. overtures for exchange of journalists, relaxation of travel restrictions and sale of grain and pharmaceuticals.

He said the Nixon administration recognizes treaty relations with Nationalist China, and believes that the "ultimate resolution" of the conflict between the two Chinas "must be brought about by peaceful means."

LEADERS HOSTILE

He said Communist China's leaders are hostile toward the United Nations, the U.S. and the Soviet Union and "have shown little interest in normal diplomatic relations with other countries."

"They still preach violence as a permanent way of life," he said.

"We can expect all this to change with time," he added. "Not even a nation as large as mainland China can live forever in isolation from the world of interdependent states."

Northern Ireland

Britain's Intent: Avert Civil War

BELFAST (AP) — British troops moved in to protect key installations in Northern Ireland Monday amid a growing wave of sabotage and subversion. British authorities said their aim is to avert civil war.

In Londonderry, police clashed with demonstrators for the third straight day. The mainly Roman Catholic crowd ignored appeals from their civil rights leaders to clear the streets.

MORE DISORDERS

Disorder spilled into Dublin, capital of the independent Irish Republic to the south, where 40 young persons occupied parts of the British passport office to protest actions of Northern Ireland constabulary against weekend demonstrators. A large police force kept protesters away from the British Embassy.

The British troops were brought out in Northern Ireland by a wave of weekend explosions that crippled water supplies to Belfast, the capital with a population of more than 1,000,000, and disrupted power supplies. Ten post offices in Belfast were set afire by gasoline bombs and the water shortage intensified the damage.

OUTLAWS BLAMED

Northern Ireland police blamed the outlawed Irish Republican Army for the explosions and fires.

In Dublin, a spokesman for the IRA, the underground terrorist organization also banned in the Irish Republic, denied that his organization had anything to do with the explosions.

Meanwhile, the Irish Republic moved into the civil rights crisis in the North by announcing it will raise the issue in the United Nations.

CABINET SESSION

Premier John Lynch said after an emergency cabinet session in Dublin that he is seeking an early meeting with British Prime Minister Harold Wilson because of "the extreme gravity of the situation" in Northern Ireland and is sending External Affairs Minister Frank Aiken to New York to see UN Secretary-General U Thant.

In the House of Commons in London, Home Secretary James Callaghan said British troops will be used only "to repel any criminal or terrorist attack upon installations essential to maintain the life of the community in Northern Ireland."

Crisis Alerts Iran Guns

TEHRAN (UPI)—Iran put its troops on 24-hour alert Monday and deployed guns and tanks to deal with what was described as any "aggressive" action by neighboring Iraq.

Shah Mohammed Reza held urgent talks with Premier Abbas Hoveida and security and military chiefs to discuss the crisis with Iraq, stemming from a dispute over navigation rights in the Shatt El-Arab river which forms the southern end of the border between the two countries.

Reports reaching Tehran described the situation at the frontier as tense and said aircraft were flying over the area.

An official spokesman said the situation was under control.

Meanwhile Israeli jets and artillery attacked a dozen positons inside Jordan in fighting that covered the entire north Jordan valley, Jordanian spokesmen said. The Israelis said they repulsed a commando raid across the Suez Canal, and skirmishing was also reported on the Israeli-Syria frontier.

In Jerusalem, the Israelis reported their Suez Canal forces caught an Egyptian commando unit on the east canal bank early Monday and chased them across the waterway. Three Israelis were wounded.

In Damascus, the government radio said an Israeli patrol crossed into Syria near the occupied Golan Heights, traded shots with Syrian troops for an hour and a half and retreated carrying one wounded soldier.

Cairo spokesmen said Egyptian reconnaissance spotted Israelis bringing 720 rockets across the Sinai toward the canal on camelback Sunday.

Cong Invade Camp

Surprise Raid Costly

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong guerrillas raided a South Vietnamese government military training centre jammed with 11,000 persons before dawn Monday, killing 46 men and wounding 137 before the instructors and recruits realized what had happened.

The attackers got away, leaving behind only two Viet Cong dead in the assault on Lam Son Camp near Nha Trang, coastal city 220 miles northeast of Saigon.

The raid came in the wake of a barrage of 80 mortar rounds and rocket-propelled grenades that pinned down camp guards and cut a path through minefield defences, Associated Press photographer Hugh Van Es reported from the camp.

The surprise was so complete, officers at the camp said, that the Viet Cong were racing through the streets tossing satchel charges and grenades into the barracks before it was realized that the camp had been penetrated.

★ ★ ★

Many of the casualties occurred in a wooden mess hall that served at night as a dormitory for 200 trainees in the non-commissioned officers' school. The building was rocked by at least five explosions.

Eleven other wooden or stone barracks also were hit during the 45-minute attack.

The Lam Son Camp, with army, air force and navy trainees, is one of five national training centres in South Vietnam and all have been jammed to overflowing since the government issued its general mobilization order last year.

In other action in South Vietnam, North Vietnamese regulars stormed a night camp of United States marines less than half a mile south of the so-called demilitarized zone Sunday night. Eight marines were killed in hand-to-hand fighting.

The North Vietnamese pulled back leaving 35 bodies and four badly wounded men 200 yards south of the six-mile-wide zone which straddles the North-South Vietnam border.

Armada with Four Carriers Will Protect U.S. Flights

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Navy is forming a 23-ship armada in the Sea of Japan to defend U.S. planes during their intelligence-gathering flights off North Korea.

The big show of strength, designed to deter the North Koreans from shooting down another EC-121 aircraft, includes four American aircraft carriers equipped with about 260 warplanes.

The force put muscle behind President Nixon's pledge Friday that the electronic surveillance missions will continue and that they will be protected.

TASK FORCE

The defence department announced bare details of the formation of what is known as Task Force 71 but declined to disclose, as a matter of policy, how it will operate off North Korea.

Daniel Z. Henkin, the department's chief spokesman, told reporters that in addition to the four carriers the force includes three cruisers and 16 destroyers, some of which are already in the Sea of Japan. The rest are headed there.

FLIGHTS QUERY

Henkin said security considerations prevented him from detailing where the vessels will be deployed.

Nor was he able to confirm that EC-121 flights already have been resumed. The reconnaissance missions were temporarily suspended after North Korean aircraft shot down an unarmed EC-121 a week ago, 90 miles southeast of Chongjin, North Korea.

Whether all 23 ships of the Pacific fleet group will be stationed near North Korea all at once or whether they will rotate in and out of assignment areas was not disclosed by the department.

THE CARRIERS

The fleet, commanded by Rear-Admiral Malcolm W. Cagle of Grand Junction, Colo., is composed of the carriers Enterprise, Ticonderoga, Ranger and Hornet; the cruisers Chicago, Oklahoma City and St. Paul, and 16 destroyers.

Each of the carriers is combat-experienced, having served tours of duty off Vietnam as part of the American bombing campaign.

The Japanese Maritime Agency reported Monday that the carrier Hornet and 10 other American vessels have arrived in the Sea of Japan.

AT SAME TIME

At the same time, the Tokyo newspaper Yomiuri reported that the Japanese government has told the U.S. it considers reconnaissance flights in the area essential to Japanese security but wants the planes to refrain from action that might provoke North Korea.

Yomiuri said the Japanese government would ask the U.S. to withdraw any planes from Japanese bases that invade North Korean airspace.

The EC-121 which was downed by North Korea was based at Atsugi, near Tokyo.

The U.S. maintains that the plane at no time entered North Korean airspace during its scheduled 8½-hour reconnaissance mission off Korean coasts.

Road to Isolation

THERE IS ROOM FOR DOUBT that the expression of approval of what a Paris left-wing weekly calls "neo-Gaullism" in Canada will be accepted universally in this country with any pleasure.

Le Nouvel Observateur points out that the foreign policy independence normally associated with President Charles de Gaulle is now being practised by Canadians.

France, says the paper, has no alternative but to "sustain this policy of national independence within the Atlantic world and the Canadian neo-Gaullism."

The inference seems to be that Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau has used the de Gaulle blueprint in the determination of Canada's policy towards the North Atlantic Treaty. Whether he did or did not is not material. What is disturbing is the indicated change of alignment by which, in the French view, Canada stands with France in opposition to the other member nations of the alliance.

The paper goes on to say that Ottawa's moves towards recognition of Communist China, Canadian criticism of the United States' plans for new defences against missile attack, and Mr. Trudeau's interest in "de-nuclearizing" rockets based in this country — as well as the announced phased withdrawal of forces from NATO — are keystones of the new policy of independence.

But French approval, it adds, will be discreetly expressed. The reason is the effort being made for rapprochement between Paris and Washington. Too much enthusiasm for Mr. Trudeau's still cloudy planning might prejudice the French position in a search for solidarity with its old ally.

Much as the French president might like to flatter himself that Canada is indeed embarked on this "neo-Gaullism" he is unlikely to make a great display of it. He is a very practical fisherman, and Washington provides a very much larger pool for his talent than does Ottawa.

In such circumstances, by the policies currently being explored in the name of independence there is a risk of stepping over the edge and into the uncertain waters of isolationism. And isolationism is not too far these days from ostracism.

It is a dangerous thing to strain too far the loyalties of even the best of friends.

Insult and Indignity

CONDITIONS have come to a deplorable pass when it would appear necessary in future to provide visiting diplomats with protection against ill-mannered demonstrators in Victoria.

The incidents of last Friday, involving the United States ambassador to Canada, Mr. Harold Linder, and the U.S. consul-general in Vancouver, Mr. Milton Rewinkel, will leave most Victorians with a sense of shame and shock.

Protest demonstrations are nothing new in Victoria, but generally speaking they have been orderly. The expression of disapproval by the display of signs is hardly a matter for serious complaint. But when the operation develops into a hounding and harassment of two distinguished visitors it must be condemned in the strongest terms.

It is no less than disgraceful that Mr. Linder and Mr. Rewinkel could not walk unmolested in the area of the provincial government complex, and without being subjected to the spectacle of the burning of their national flag.

For the most part Canadian cities have earned a reputation for hospitality and friendliness. What a pity this small group calling itself the Vigil of Victoria Citizens for Peace in Vietnam has spoiled that image for Victorians.

It may be that the actions of the demonstrators did not reach a point of violence to the persons of the diplomats — although it may have been closer than the record shows — and that in fact they broke no law which would put them in jeopardy.

But there are unwritten laws of courtesy and conduct which have been flouted.

An apology is owed to the unhappy visitors who suffered insult and indignity.

Real or Paper?

CONSUMER AFFAIRS Minister Ronald Basford sees "a high level of consumer discernment and awareness" in British Columbia in the fact that only Ontario led this province in the number of complaints sent to his department last year. This is a complimentary and no doubt correct way of looking at it, but actually the number of consumer complaints from B.C. — 552, from a population of two-million-odd — is not very impressive. One wonders how many times 552 thought about complaining and did nothing.

The people of all the provinces, however, are being positively challenged by the department to watch for instances of unfair or deceptive dealing and to report them. This year according to Mr. Basford consumer consultants will be placed on the job in 27 cities — with a staff of 600 — to help buyers resolve their complaints.

Taxpayers with a thought for civil service costs will then have double reason to look for abuses and to seek departmental action on them. For it is only by determined action, publicly seen to be effective, that the department can justify its existence.

In fact, this is one of those departments the aim of which ought to be to put itself virtually out of business.

If it is a paper tiger, its widening bureaucracy will not be worth the taxpayers' dollars. If it is a real tiger, it will quickly reduce the causes of consumers' grievances and give itself less work to do.

The public should be eager to throw it food and see.

Lack of Clear-Cut Tory Policy May Spoil Chance of Influencing Defence Decision

MORE than anything else, it was mishandling of defence policy which in 1963 toppled the Diefenbaker regime. The issue split the cabinet and the Conservative Party, and gave Lester Pearson his chance to offer the country a clear alternative.

Will history repeat itself, with the Grit and Tory roles reversed, over what many Canadians regard as Prime Minister Trudeau's mishandling of defence policy?

I very much doubt it, although the issue is, if anything, even more serious in its potential jeopardy of collective Western security than was the question of Canada's role in NATO and NORAD six years ago.

The reason why a repetition of the government-toppling storm over defence matters is unlikely in 1969 lies in the political setting of the two seemingly similar situations.

Unlike Diefenbaker in 1963, Trudeau commands a comfortable majority in the Commons and his charisma hasn't yet worn off completely.

Unlike the Tories, the top-echelon Grits are not given to fighting their policy clashes in public. Their differences in cabinet and caucus, however serious, are therefore less likely to catch the public eye and generate nationwide political crises.

And finally, unlike Lester Pearson, Robert Stanfield does not seem to have the instinct for the political kill a leader of the Opposition needs if he aspires to put his party in power.

Few people suspected that the mild-mannered, often indecisive and compromise-seeking diplomat Pearson had the sixth sense and toughness of a fighting politician until, at the crucial moment, he reversed his and his party's long-held position on nuclear warheads.

★ ★ ★

Some Tories profess to believe that the mild-mannered, slow-moving and often wishy-washy Stanfield is biding his time for a display of his fighting qualities at the right moment.

I think they are deluding themselves. For what better moment could there have been for a Stanfield-led charge of the Grit fortress than the defeat of the Pearson government in the Commons early last year?

Having missed that unique opportunity for forcing an election before the Liberals had time to select a new leader, Stanfield now has a chance to mount a major offensive on the Trudeau defence policy while the government and its troops in Parliament are split over the issue.

Mr. Stanfield, I suspect, will let that chance slip by with little more than a few hesitant questions in the Commons. Not because he is convinced that a frontal attack would accomplish nothing but because his own concept of what Canada's defence policy should be is hazy and confused.

The reason for his confusion is not hard to find.

As premier of Nova Scotia Mr. Stanfield had neither the time nor the inclination to pay much attention to the international scene. During the Tory leadership campaign his briefings on foreign and defence policy came chiefly from Dalton Camp, whose anti-NATO views are as close to the NDP line as those of Mr. Trudeau, if not closer.

From the very beginning Mr. Stanfield's thinking on other than purely domestic affairs has been moulded by a concept of Canada's place and role in the world that in its essentials matches the one offered to the electorate by the left-leaning Grits and the New Democrats.

Coming to Ottawa with this frame of mind, it was only natural that Mr. Stanfield chose as his advisers on foreign policy the two Maritimers on the Tory caucus—Gordon Fairweather and David MacDonald—who happen to share Dalton Camp's anti-NATO bias and in some of their pacifist delusions out-NDP the NDP.

On Mr. Stanfield's insistence, Mr. Fairweather was eventually appointed the Tory foreign policy spokesman in the Commons, although he contradicts the views held by the overwhelming majority of the Tory caucus.

★ ★ ★

The result of all this is that the official Opposition offers no alternative foreign and defence policy to the electorate and is in no position to fight the prime minister on the NATO issue without defying its own leadership.

This sorry state of affairs makes mockery of our pluralistic political system because the current constellation at the top eliminates not only a meaningful differentiation of political philosophies but even the chance of a clear expression of divergent views.

Mr. Stanfield should realize that his party cannot function, let alone prosper, as a rubber stamp of the Grit version of the NDP line.

Plan for Compromise in Campus Revolution

By MARQUIS CHILDS

AS the uproar on the campuses grows with each passing day, the threat to the whole structure of higher education is an ominous cloud on the academic horizon. A little band of extremists in one university after another sets the pace with some form of violent confrontation. All too often bumbling, entrenched authority responds with arbitrary action that enlists the moderates on the side of the extremists.

So what to do? If the erosion continues there will be more conflict, more violence, with the end result resembling what has happened in Japan. The University of Tokyo, which is rated as Harvard, Yale and Princeton rolled into one, was closed down for nine months with an entering class and a graduating class ruled out. In a highly competitive society this was a blow to thousands of young people.

Rep. Edith Green of Oregon, chairman of the special House subcommittee on education, is putting in a bill providing for arbitration of campus disputes. It would create a federal office that would offer mediation resembling the labor mediation service. A mediator could enter a dispute on the request of any of the three parties of interest — students, faculty or administrators. Without a request a mediator might volunteer his services.

A student group could be represented once they had obtained signatures of 20 per cent of the student body on a petition. As presently drafted, Mrs. Green's measure carries no sanctions for violation of the mediator's finding in the dispute. Eventually, however, sanctions might be enacted similar to the penalties in the Labor Relations Act for unfair labor practices in a strike.

The initial reaction to Mrs. Green's proposal among educators and members of Congress to whom it was circulated prior to the Easter recess has ranged from polite hope to frank skepticism. Students on the far left would make every effort to obstruct such mediation. The activists in Students for a Democratic Society hold that government has lost its legitimacy. They carry their fierce opposition to the Vietnam War and the reserve officers' training system in the colleges to every facet of the Establishment. They mean to bring it down, and the assault on higher education is an opening wedge. So, say the doubters, such a measure would be futile.

At the other end of the political spectrum doubts are grounded in a conviction that students have no right to demand a part in administration. Authority is authority whether it is exercised by elected representatives of the citizenry administering the affairs of a state university or trustees who have been selected by legal process under duly authorized charter to oversee the affairs of a privately endowed college. As a prominent trustee on the board of a distinguished New England college put it in response to student demand for a definition of the trustees' duties and responsibilities:

"Let 'em read the charter. They can find out there what we do and the rights we exercise."

Anger at the anarchic behavior of the students is bound to take a political form. The shape of that form is increasingly clear. As in California, following the series of blowups at Berkeley, both faculty and students are to be disciplined. Gov. Ronald Reagan is riding high on the crest of the reaction. Liberal Democrats say despairingly that, with the middle mass of the voters enraged at the obstructionism of the small minority of extremists on the Berkeley campus, Reagan is a shoo-in for re-election next year.

This, of course is exactly what the activists on the left want — a showdown between the two extremes. They calculate that this is bound to force the moderates to move with them. The moderate middle, confused and disorganized, will not come down on the side of reaction. Something like this appears to have happened at Harvard with Students for a Democratic Society celebrating a triumph.

Divide and conquer! It is an ancient tactic with modern attachments. In a society increasingly polarized between extremes this is no threat to be laughed away as though it were a panty raid.

Peking's Conditions Cause for Pause

From The Oregonian

THE Canadian government proposes to grant diplomatic recognition to Communist China but has not yet indicated it is willing to break relations with the Republic of China on Taiwan (Formosa). That is the price Peking usually asks, when it shows any interest in exchanging envoys with non-Communist countries.

Canada has been selling a lot of wheat to Communist China but it also trades with Taiwan. By putting itself in a position for a demand from Peking that it break relations with the Chinese Nationalists, Canada could be endangering the trade with the mainland it now enjoys without recognition.

★ ★ ★

Those who advocate recognition of Communist China—by Canada, the United States and other nations — keep repeating that it is unrealistic not to have diplomatic exchanges with a nation of more than 700 million people. Of course it is. But it is the Peking government which sets conditions, foremost of which is abandonment of the Chinese on Taiwan to Peking's control, which some nations are unwilling to meet.

Great Britain's experiences with Mao Tse-tung's government are not encouraging. Envoys have been harassed and kept almost under "house arrest." Commercial agreements have been repudiated and machinery and personnel seized. Ransom has been exacted, according to some reports. Mao appears not to put a high value on diplomatic relations. Canadians might be better served to keep on trading without exchanging diplomats, assuming Peking is willing to do that, until there is a change in attitude in Peking.

Today In History

By The Canadian Press

The 1st Canadian Division was prominent in the Second Battle of Ypres 54 years ago today — in 1915 — when the Germans launched the first gas attack of the First World War. Many of the most important actions of the war took place in the Ypres sector which was strategic in the defence of the Channel ports. In the third Ypres battle in 1917 Canadian troops were again prominent with their capture of Passchendaele Ridge.

1793—George Washington proclaimed United States neutrality in the war between Britain and France.

Funds for Fitness Pledge Applauded

I WONDER if you would permit me, through your column, to give recognition to the tremendous boost that amateur sport will receive in this province as a result of the establishment of the amateur sport and fitness fund by the provincial government.

This fund, I believe, is the greatest thing that has ever happened in amateur sport in Canada.

Over the years, I have been deeply involved in amateur sport of all kinds and I know the problems that practically all sports have in raising funds. Thousands of dedicated men and women spend many long hours organizing, coaching, raising funds and doing a hundred and one other things, often with very little recognition for their work.

The $150,000 that amateur sport has been receiving annually from the provincial and federal governments has helped, but it has been spread pretty thinly.

The new fitness fund, announced during the recent session of the legislature, means that approximately $750,000, will be available annually for the promotion of sport and fitness in British Columbia. Needless to say, untold thousands of young people and adults will benefit.

The fund, as many of your readers know, was established by setting aside $10 million from the government surplus account. The annual interest, estimated at $750,000 will be allocated by a committee of cabinet ministers and persons prominent in amateur sport in B. C.

The British Columbia Sports Federation will, I hope, play an important role in administering the monies available through the fund because the Federation represents all amateur sport bodies in the province.

The Federation was established in 1965 specifically to assist in the organization, development and implementation of amateur sport programs through its member bodies.

Exploitation Claimed

With reference to the Oak Bay shopping centre, high rise location and curling rink, as reported in your paper: It was a rather shocking statement at the council meeting of April 11 by one gentleman that council has a moral duty to stop us being inundated by physical degenerates and superannuated morons.

The gentleman should realize that the retired people referred to are, to a great extent, a generation who directly or indirectly bore the impact of the Great War, fought for the survival of democracy, and who in the 1930 depression raised their families on a daily wage or salary that now is paid per hour. These people are now victims to high rents, high taxes, not to mention the cost of services and goods; in fact they could be called second class citizens to be exploited on every hand.

I do not think the promoted shopping centre is fair to the many small shops in the municipality — one family businesses and who have paid taxes for many years. One wonders how members of the council would react if their livelihood was menaced.

The reeve has explained that taxes are expected to increase at 10 per cent per annum. Then one would ask, why should the money received from the sale of land be used to hold the line on taxes, and the extra revenue from apartments be also used for the same purpose?

The curling rink should be built as a private venture the same as the Raquet Club was. A swimming pool built at Firemens' Park by one of the social clubs and public assistance, would fill a modified recreation program.

A Scent of Election

It's election time again in B.C. How can I tell? Well, I just sort of feel it in my bones. There is, too, the fact that Premier Bennett has come out in favor of Bible reading in our schools, and is deploring socialism in B.C.

The decision on Bible reading is surprisingly realistic for Mr. Bennett — a lot of people would have expected him to want to look "progressive," by getting rid of the Bible. But instead he decided to uphold the Book on which our North American society is supposedly based. There is little doubt that the decision was a political one, but it nevertheless reflects well on the premier's judgment. He may need everything he can get in his favor when next B.C. goes to the polls.

It is, however, the second point in his remarks, reported in a recent edition of the Colonist, which seems to expound that particular pattern of activity that could be described as the "Bennett Mystique."

After socializing B.C. Electric into B.C. Hydro and Power administration, after looking at B.C.'s last remaining privately-owned power company (West Kootenay Power and Light) and after running full bore over citizens such as a former resident of what is now the Rose-Blanshard Project, he now begins to deplore socialism.

There is a whole raft of highway work being done all over the province these days — roads are being graded that we figured he'd forgotten ever existed.

Oh yes — there is an election coming.

And to you, Mr. Bennett — good luck. You may need it.

Hint of Treason Seen

The fact that the Communist strategists now see "the students not the workers" as the infantry of the revolution is accepted by people of all shades of thought, from far out left to far out right.

While this has saddened me it has not made me despair. Not more than 3 per cent of the students enlist in this infantry, and very few of them take it on as a life profession. Moreover, students are Youth, and Youth grows into Maturity. As the days of their studenthood are left behind the majority of them become responsible citizens in a free society.

Since the Friday issue of the Colonist, however, there has been an icy chill — I think it is fear — around my heart. If your paper reported correctly the stand of the B.C. Teachers' Federation, then indeed the dry rot of subversion has already set in at the most potent level of the educational system.

There is always a large margin of error to be allowed for when one reads a newspaper statement, but in this case if your reporting is accurate one thing is sure — if Canada were not still a so-called free country, the executive of the B.C. Teachers' Federation would probably already be in jail charged with treason.

How long will our passion for freedom of speech permit the people of Canada to openly despise and reject that which stands for freedom and unity, law and order? If Canadian teachers object to teaching loyalty to the Queen of Canada, in my opinion they have neither sufficient sense of history nor understanding of the trend of events in today's world, to be worthy of their high calling as teachers.

One who appreciates her status as a Canadian citizen without losing her sense of the broader and deeper meaning of being a British subject.

High-Riser's Rejoinder

After reading in the Colonist William Scott's remarks:

I am one of those so-called "superannuated physical degenerates," age 89, who prefer (after spending many years in British Columbia keeping up and beautifying homes) who prefer now to live in an apartment in comfort and with an elevator to assist my ageing legs. And I'm not yet a candidate for a wheelchair.

Let those holier-than-thou Oak Bay householders pause and remember that age will one day creep up on them and rising high taxes will force them into the wheelchair community.

High-rise apartments now transform lowly James Bay into a highly regarded apartment area.

So, stiff-necked Oak Bay, turn down your high-rises and proposed shopping centre and one day sink into the realm of stagnation.

Czech Socialism Now Wears Soviet Face

Power Politics Triumph

By RICHARD RESTON

From Moscow

It has taken the Soviet Union eight months to shatter the symbol of political reform in Czechoslovakia, to break the spirit of what was once known as "socialism with a human face."

However long that process took, however indecisive the Soviet leadership may have been, the event of recent days prove the axiom of power politics, practiced by the Kremlin through the sheer weight of military and political pressure.

Moscow now is closer to its objectives than at any time since the guns of August sought to still restless political ferment in Czechoslovakia.

★ ★ ★

The Soviet leadership is getting what it wants, finally and perhaps absolutely. For the Kremlin, the fall of political reform leaders late last week opens the way to socialism with a Soviet face, communism according to the gospel of Marx, as interpreted by the Soviet Union—and only the Soviet Union.

Soviet pressures on Prague —sharper in the last three weeks—have taken precisely the toll Moscow wished for.

The aim was a new Czechoslovak leadership more compliant with the Kremlin dictate. That is now an accomplished goal with the emergence of Dr. Gustav Husak as first secretary of the Czechoslovak Communist Party.

★ ★ ★

Gone are the symbols of last year's reform movement. Husak's predecessor, the popular Alexander Dubcek, is no longer an effective political voice inside Czechoslovakia. The fall of Dubcek meant the demise of other leading reform figures, specifically Josef Smrkovsky, who lost his post on the ruling party presidium.

Accordingly, the Soviet leadership successfully has managed to eliminate what it considers entrenched political recalcitrance in that country.

After months of expressing extreme dissatisfaction over the pace of normalization in Czechoslovakia, the Kremlin suddenly has shifted its tone. It has hailed the recent changes in Prague with an enthusiasm not heard in this capital since the invasion.

In a glowing congratulatory message to Husak, the Soviet leadership left no doubt as to where its sympathies and support lie. Husak always has received a favorable Soviet press, even in the early days after the invasion.

★ ★ ★

His warm public treatment here clearly will continue as long as the new Czechoslovak party chief stays within what the Kremlin considers a set and acceptable political framework, meaning communist orthodoxy.

In welcoming Husak, Leonid Brezhnev, general secretary of the Soviet Communist Party, not only embraced him, but also indicated what is expected of the Czechoslovak leadership.

Brezhnev described Husak as a "staunch-principled fighter" for the communist working class movement.

★ ★ ★

But, at the same time, he depicted Husak as an advocate of a stronger leading role for the Communist Party. Husak, said Brezhnev, is a man who backs the consolidation of socialist positions in Czechoslovakia, a leader who firmly adheres to the positions of Marxism-Leninism.

Brezhnev praised his counterpart in Prague as a staunch believer in the "inviolable friendship between socialist Czechoslovakia and the Soviet Union, and other socialist countries."

★ ★ ★

What happened in Prague in recent days and weeks suggests that strongly conservative positions are, at the moment, holding sway at the highest Kremlin levels of leadership.

The developments in Czechoslovakia no doubt have implications for internal Soviet policy. The political winds in this country would seem to dash any hope of a general loosening up in the Soviet Union.

As one informed source put it: "The Soviet Union is not about to allow in its own country what it will not tolerate in an allied country."

Fear of New War Keeps Fingers Off U.S. Triggers

By ROD CURRIE, from Washington

President Nixon's two-sided response to the EC-121 affair apparently aims at muffling the cry at home for revenge while striving to intimidate the North Korean dictatorship into more respect for American might.

The appeal to the American public probably was unnecessary. The general reaction has been that little could be accomplished by U.S. retaliation. And so far, the threat to North Korea has been ineffective.

Some observers feel that nothing will deter Marshal Kim Il Sung of North Korea from attempting his long-held goal of reuniting Korea under communism and that in fact incidents such as the shooting down of the American intelligence plane and its seizing of the Pueblo are but preliminaries to a new Korean "revolution" — perhaps another Korean war.

★ ★ ★

However, Nixon has ordered a massive show of American military muscle into the Sea of Japan to try to prevent any more incidents.

The expected public outcry didn't materialize here following announcement last week that the North Koreans had shot down the lumbering, four-engined reconnaissance plane and its 31-man crew.

The hawks and some right-wingers made the predictable appeals for the government to teach the Pyongyang leaders a lesson, but the response was nowhere near the pitch 14 months ago when the North Koreans "arrested" the U.S. spy ship Pueblo.

★ ★ ★

Nixon waited three days before making a public comment last Friday and the government waited three days before making its first direct protest on the incident which, in substance, was more brutal and more brazen than seizure of the Pueblo.

Although as a presidential candidate last fall he promised that if elected "there isn't going to be another Pueblo in the next four years," Nixon's response to the so-called "flying Pueblo" incident was calm.

The flights would continue and would be protected, he said, adding:

"This is not a threat. It is merely a statement of fact."

Threat or not, on Monday the defence department announced a 23-ship task force was being dispatched to back up the president's words.

★ ★ ★

This sudden show of force after days of deliberate calmness raised speculation that government insiders had some reason for apparently upgrading the government's display of concern.

Certainly nothing strikes fear into the heart of official Washington more than the unspeakable thought of another land war in Asia.

Marshal Kim knows that as well as President Nixon knows that North Korea is not the "fourth-rate power" he said it was in the election campaign.

Since the 1953 armistice agreement ending the Korean conflict, Kim's goal has been to bring the whole country under Communist rule.

★ ★ ★

War is unlikely while 56,000 American troops help patrol the demilitarized zone between the two Koreas. Additionally, the South Korean Army outnumbers the North Korean army by several hundred thousand.

But the main difficulty in Washington's view is that the Pyongyang government cannot be counted on to behave rationally let alone predictably.

As Nixon pointed out in his Friday press conference, the North Korean government isn't really within the influence of the two capitals of world communism — in the Kremlin and in Peking.

It is this, perhaps more than any other factor, that makes Washington nervous.

False Reports Tricked Egypt Into Rash Moves

By GEOFFREY SUMNER, from Cairo

Israeli psychological warfare teams on the east bank of the Suez Canal have been beaming false radio reports of exaggerated Israeli casualties to Egypt.

Deliberately overstated reports of Israeli casualties and equipment losses in the almost daily gun battles across the waterway have been designed to appear as reports from Israeli units to their headquarters and have been accepted at face value by the Egyptians. But it now appears that the Egyptians have seen through the deception.

The Egyptian armed forces general command claims that since March 8 when the fighting exploded they have killed or wounded 240 Israeli soldiers and shot down two Mirage jets, seven helicopters and five spotter aircraft. They also claim to have destroyed 93 tanks and vast quantities of ammunition.

★ ★ ★

The Israeli transmissions encouraged among the Egyptian troops, including senior commanders, a belief that the balance of military power had swung heavily in Egypt's favor. This led to heavy pressure from the armed forces on President Nasser to launch an early offensive across the canal.

And a corresponding pressure — perhaps even more intense — is being brought to bear on the government by the general populace, whose impatience for a military recovery of the Israeli-occupied Sinai peninsula and Gaza strip is being inflamed by headlines reporting Egyptian victories in the Suez duels.

President Nasser's own assessment is thought to be more realistic.

The Egyptian belief that the Israelis had received heavy losses explains why the Egyptians were so exuberant about the canal duelling when the civilian-populated Egyptian-held bank was taking heavier punishment.

★ ★ ★

In the last five weeks, the Egyptians have been devastatingly pounded along the southern 60 miles of the canal.

The two oil refineries at Suez town have been repeatedly hit. The harbor installations at Port Suez and Port Tewfiq have been extensively wrecked. Merchant ships in the two harbors have been shelled. And hundreds of homes have been hit.

A western source said the damage totals at least $120,000,000, apart from the loss of an estimated two-thirds of Egypt's petroleum supplies.

Why U.S. Spy Planes Will Continue to Fly

'Flying Pueblo'—the Truth

By CARL T. ROWAN, from Washington

With about as much grace as possible, President Nixon has swallowed his campaign braggadocio about what he would do if "a fourth-rate military power" like North Korea confronted him with a Pueblo-type attack.

Nixon has made it clear that the shooting down of an unarmed U.S. reconnaisance plane was actually a more brazen affront than was the seizure of the USS Pueblo.

Why, then, did he not order a military reprisal for an attack that he characterized as "unprovoked, deliberate and without warning"? Why did he gulp down the bold; words he used in ridiculing President Johnson's "weak" response to the Pueblo seizure, covering it only with the lame hint that he might still respond militarily?

★ ★ ★

The answer is simply that Nixon felt he could not risk reopening the Korean war when his top priority chore is to extricate the United States from the Vietnam war.

He sensed that he would not have solid U.S. backing for military retaliation, not only because Americans don't want another war in Asia, but also because millions of Americans have misgivings about sending out "spy ships" and "spy planes."

★ ★ ★

Since Francis Gary Powers' U-2 plane was shot down over Russia in 1960, millions of Americans have harbored notions that these missions are merely dangerous cloak-and-dagger activities by fools and warmongers.

Nixon listed "protection of 56,000 American boys in Korea" as his reason for ordering surveillance flights resumed around North Korea. It is too bad he or someone does not tell the American people more of the whole truth about why such "spy flights" are necessary.

★ ★ ★

The public has never been told the true significance of the U-2 flights in that extraordinary venture that was code-named Project Chalice.

Some Americans still ask why the Eisenhower administration "blundered" by authorizing the ill-fated Powers flight of May 1, 1960, only a fortnight before Eisenhower was to meet with Soviet premier Nikita Khrushchev.

The truth is that previous U-2 flights had provided some crucially important information about the Soviet military posture.

★ ★ ★

Powers had flown 26 successful U-2 missions prior to his ill-starred flight, only two of which had been directly over the Soviet Union. These flights, plus "Mission 4155" which was flown on April 16, 1960, caused the American government to revise completely its "national estimates" as to the military capability of Russia.

After U.S. experts analyzed the U-2 photographs they concluded that they had been grossly wrong as to the location and number of Soviet military bases, aircraft, and missiles.

★ ★ ★

The Strategic Air Command did a complete re-targeting of the Soviet Union on the basis of the more accurate information provided by the U-2s.

Thus these flights contributed immeasurably to the security not only of the United States but of Western Europe which felt directly threatened by Soviet rockets.

Why the ill-fated Powers mission? Earlier flights had revealed three Soviet military installations about which the U.S. felt an urgent need for more information.

So, after the U-2 flight of April 16, U.S. military and intelligence experts gave top priority to a Soviet installation known as Polarnyy Ural, second priority to an installation known as Kystyn-Kola, and third priority to a Soviet base in the Carpathians.

Francis Gary Powers was out to get new vital information on any or all of these installations when his plane was rocketed down, creating an international furor that was to last for years.

Spy satellites now gather much of the data that the U-2s provided. But there is still a vital role to be played by ships and planes loaded with fantastically sensitive electronic data. That is why the Soviets keep electronic trawlers in key parts of the world.

Planes like the one shot down can provide the kind of information about "enemy" missile shots and aircraft takeoffs that add up to the "intelligence" that a country must have in deciding issues like whether to build an anti-ballistic missile system.

★ ★ ★

They provide frequency information essential to jamming enemy radars should the U.S. ever have to try to get "second strike" bombers in.

So the spy flights will continue — because Nixon has concluded that they are worth whatever risk, whatever crisis, may be involved.

The Fiat 850 Coupe really is a little bomb. To prove it, just light one up. Its tough little engine purrs at city speeds and growls when you boot it from 0 to 60 in just 18 seconds. It'll cruise at 70 MPH too. Better than a lot of mills half as big again.

What's more, its independent suspension on all four and 2 sway bars make it corner like it's on rails. With no oversteer. And when you have to do a panic stop from 80, the front discs haul it down fast and straight.

Look one over at your Fiat dealer's. Vinyl upholstered front buckets and rear seat. Speedo and tach. Four-speed box fully synchro'd. Two-speed heater. Twin fresh air ducts. # Municipalities Promised Closer Link with Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government Monday promised the municipalities closer consultation on the development of federal policies and programs affecting the big cities.

Prime Minister Trudeau told a delegation from the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities he is aware of the problem created by the constitution, which does not provide for formal relations between the federal government and the municipalities. The municipalities are created by the provinces and their main constitutional tie is to them.

Works Minister Arthur Laing told the delegation that his department will consult municipal authorities on the federal government's plans to build new projects within their borders. Previously, the federal government generally built what ever it needed, whenever it wished.

Laing said that in recent years the federal government has not been building as many office blocks as in the past, preferring to rent space. But he said the federal government will be building more and renting less.

Transport Minister Paul Hellyer, in charge of federal housing policy, said the government is going to try several ways to reduce the cost of houses. One of these is the project recently announced for Ottawa in which low-cost houses will be built for sale on extra-long mortgages.

COST WORRIES

Hellyer also told the mayors, aldermen and reeves that Ottawa is worried about the high cost of urban renewal projects. He estimated that the projects now under study would total $3,000,000,000, and at a federal expenditure of $25,000,000 a year it would require 120 years to do the job.

Mayor A. M. Campbell of Scarborough, one of the Metropolitan Toronto boroughs, presented the federation's brief and complained of on-again-off-again federal policies affecting the municipalities. He said when long-standing plans such as the winter works subsidies are terminated suddenly, the municipalities are caught with a change of planning.

'CASH, NOT SYMPATHY'

Ald. Jack Davis, representing Calgary, said the cities need assurance that federal help for pollution control will continue and be extended.

"We need your money, not your sympathy," he said. There was no need for further federal-provincial study of that subject, because "Lord knows, we can get into enough trouble on our own?"

Trudeau told the delegation its request for more direct consultation with Ottawa was timely because the federal government will be meeting the provinces again in June on constitutional reform.

As different as the shape it's in.

Anguilla Policy

U.K. Envoys Gather

LONDON (AP) — Britain summoned the envoys of four Caribbean states Monday to formulate a new and broadened approach toward the future of Anguilla.

The move followed the quiet weekend withdrawal of Anthony Lee, British commissioner, from the island where he has been a focus of controversy since a task force of British troops and police moved in last month.

Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart called in high commissioners representing Jamaica, Barbados, Guyana and Trinidad and Tobago for a conference.

The immediate problem to be settled in the wake of Lee's withdrawal centres on the restoration of links with Ronald Webster, the Anguillan leader. Webster's Republican regime in Anguilla of which he was the self-styled president, has been dismantled by the British. But Webster himself has so far refused to negotiate any new administrative arrangements until all British troops and police leave the island.

Lee's ouster, which officially is still being described as a withdrawal for a vacation, is seen here as a move by the British to serve as a sweetner for Webster. But there has been no sign sor far that the purpose has been served.

The foreign office gave no indication whether Lee will be coming to London soon for consultations. He now is in Antigua.

Replacing him, at least temporarily as commissioner, is John Cumber who formerly administered the Cayman Islands.

Sound trucks circled the Cornell University grounds in Ithaca, N.Y., late Monday blaring warnings to students against possession or use of firearms on the campus where armed Afro-Americans had held the Student Union Centre for more than 30 hours.

Classes were cancelled at mid-afternoon for a mass convocation at which 8,000 students heard Cornell's president, James Perkins, declare that universities must "humanize" their studies, their priorities and their governmental structure.

He declared an "emergency situation," banned firearms on campus and warned: "It is time to stop the taking over of university buildings by force."

In Atlanta, Ga., Morehouse College president rescinded an earlier decision to resign rather than deal with 60 black militants who held him captive more than 24 hours. A majority of college students said most of the militants were outside agitators.

Bonn Defection

Red Agent Aids West

BONN (Reuters) — West German security has been rounding up Communist spies betrayed by an agent of the Soviet security service—KGB—who defected to the West, informed sources said Monday.

The sources said several arrests have been made on the basis of information supplied by the KGB man whose nationality has not yet been disclosed but is believed to be East German.

★ ★ ★

A brief statement by the federal prosecutor's office disclosed that investigations in West Berlin and elsewhere had partially substantiated the defector's information.

But beyond saying that a number of arrest warrants were issued and that the hunt was continuing, the statement gave no hint of the extent of the counter-espionage swoop unleashed by the defector.

Government spokesman Conrad Ahlers told a news conference the suspected spies are apparently "small fry who had no access to armed forces or NATO secrets."

Western security men, meanwhile, refused to disclose any details about the rank of the defector or how he reached the West.

The last big known defection affecting the extensive Communist espionage activities in West Germany was that of KGB Lt.-Col. Yevegeny Runge, who fled to the West in October, 1967.

His disclosures resulted in the breakup of a spy ring operating in the Bonn foreign ministry and the French embassy here.

Czech Labor for Husak

PRAGUE (Reuters) — Czechoslovak labor unions, which have in the past strongly supported the reformist movement, Monday gave their backing to leadership changes which ousted Alexander Dubcek as Communist party chief and leading reformist.

The presidium of the Labor Union Council said in a message to the new party chief, Gustav Husak, "We will help you to strengthen the leading role of the party."

The presidium warned its members against taking protest action.

Meanwhile, students in Prague, Ceske Budovice and Pilsen Monday staged sit-in demonstrations at universities to protest the ousting of Dubcek who turned over control to Husak Monday.

Students at Prague voted to continue their sit-in until Wednesday afternoon.

The students pasted large posters on the windows of the philosophy college building. The signs carried slogans such as "Husak is not the people" and "We are no geese, Mr. Husak" Husak means goose in Czechoslovakian.

There have been veiled warnings of university closures if strike action continues.

Husak is expected to fly to Russia Wednesday to attend the summit meeting of Comecon—the trading organization of Eastern Europe.

Dawn Patrol

Russians Shadow NATO Exercise

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — The Soviet Union sent its largest class fighting ship, an 18,500-ton missile-armed helicopter carrier, into the Mediterranean Monday as ships and planes of NATO staged manoeuvres south of Turkey.

The Leningradno, a combination carrier and cruiser rated the most powerful surface ship in the Russian fleet, moved into the Mediterranean from the Black Sea via the Turkish straits. It was escorted by a destroyer and an auxiliary ship.

Arrival of the Leningradno meant the Soviet fleet could now observe the NATO manoeuvres by air with helicopters as well as by sea. A Soviet destroyer observed Monday's exercise from a distance of six miles from the American carrier Shangri-La.

The 12-day, five-nation manoeuvres, dubbed Dawn Patrol, began Sunday.

The Leningradno gives a major boost to the strength of Soviet forces in the Mediterranean, now at an all-time high of about 60 ships.

British naval sources said in Gibraltar that five Soviet warships and six submarines passed through the Strait of Gibraltar Monday heading for the Atlantic.

The ships were a cruiser of the Sverdlov class, three destroyers and a submarine support ship.

King-Size Jog

One, Two Hup One, Two

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Bruce Tulloh is one British citizen who believes in seeing America first — by foot.

That's one of the reasons the 33-year-old distance runner and school teacher gave when he left city hall Monday morning for a little jog across the United States to New York City.

Tulloh has been running 20 to 30 miles a day for the last year to prepare for the 2,830-mile trip. He hopes to make it in 66 days.

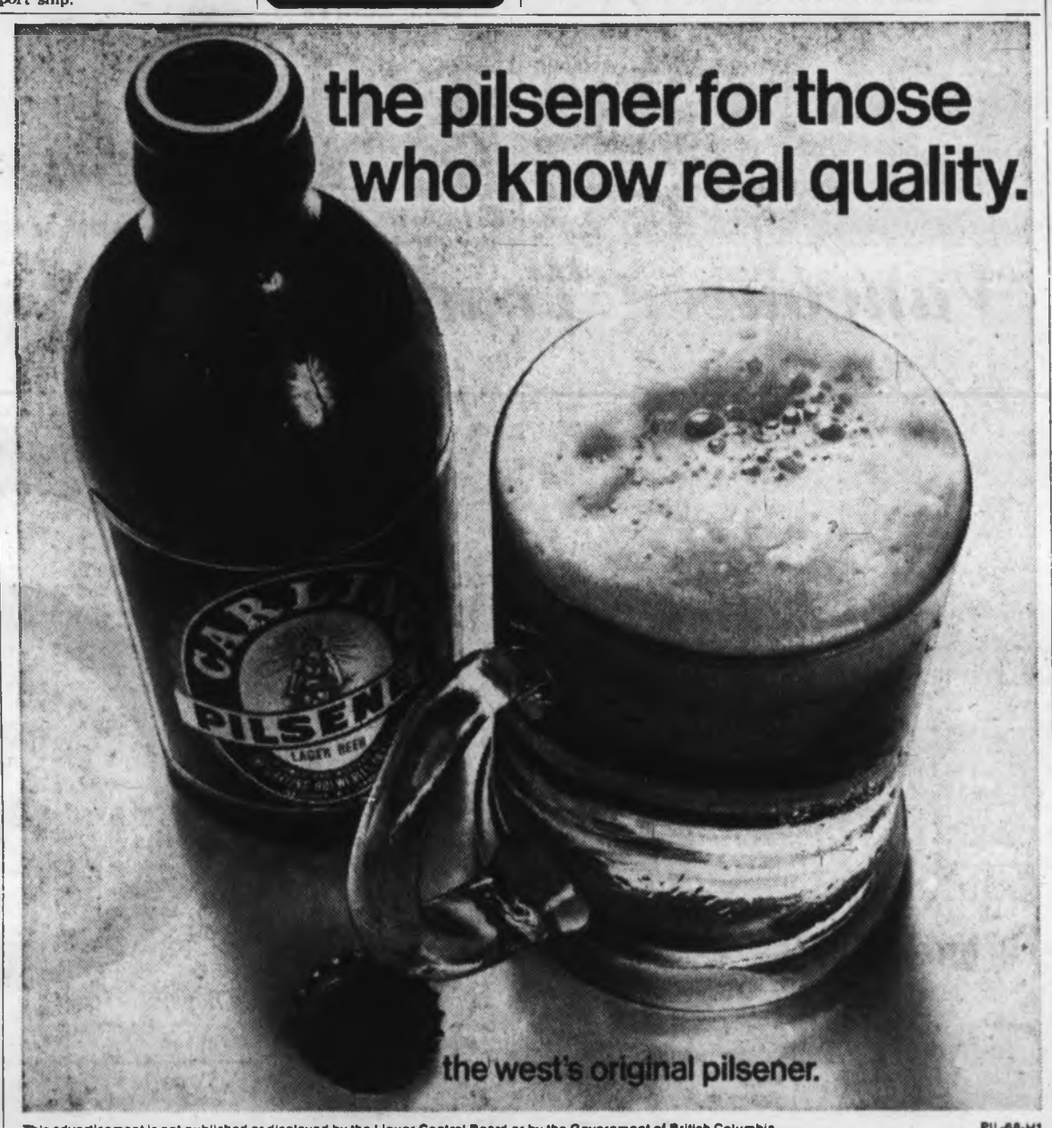

If he succeeds, he will shatter the current record for the route of 73 days, eight hours, which was set in 1964 by Don Shepherd of South Africa.

★ ★ ★

Tulloh is a former European 5,000 meters champion who tried out for the Rome Olympic games and missed the Tokyo Olympics due to a last minute case of the measles.

On hand to send Tulloh off were Andrew Franklin, British consulate general in Los Angeles and Ernest Conway, executive assistant to Mayor Sam Yorty.

Conway presented to Tulloh a special message to present to New York City Mayor John Lindsay upon his arrival. In the note, Yorty sent greetings to the residents of New York from those of Los Angeles.

Debits Show Victoria Area Booming

The Victoria area's economy was given another big lift by the publication this week by the Canadian Bankers Association of the debits to individual bank accounts in the area during March.

The March debits of $633,000,000 were up from $486,600,000 in the corresponding month of 1968, and from $486,800,000 in February.

The cumulative total for the first quarter of 1969 is running at a record level at $1,633,600,000 and is well ahead of the previous record first quarter of 1967 when the total of debits was $1,385,100,000 and also of last year's $1,320,300,000.

The CBA figures include all amounts debited by the banks to the accounts of customers, current, personal chequing and savings maintained in branches in the Victoria area.

The total does not include cheques drawn on the Bank of Canada, on the Government of Canada and by the chartered banks on themselves. In this way the debits provide an indication of economic activity in the private sector only.

TROUBLE FORESEEN

New York Stock Exchange prices took another dip Monday after President Nxon gave further evidence he is determined to depressurize the economy.

His recommendation to Congress that the 7 per cent investment credit to business firms should be withdrawn immediatly was tempered only by the expectation that the temporary 10 per cent surtax may be reduced to 5 per cent next January, and dropped altogether in June, 1970.

Removal of the investment credit is considered drastic. It will deprive companies of securing 7 per cent credit on their income tax for all expansions to plant and equipment costs.

□

STRONG INCENTIVE

Since its introduction by President Kennedy in 1961 it has been a strong incentive to U.S. corporations to expand themselves.

It was withdrawn in September, 1966, and again in March, 1967, but quickly restored because of the depressing effect it had on the economy.

Market experts commented the new move against the credit could topple the nation into a recession.

"The timing looks bad," commented one market analyst.

Companies requiring large amounts of equipment such as airlines, railroads and steels have been the main beneficiaries of the tax credit.

ROYAL HIT BY FIRE

The head office of Royal Securities in Montreal was damaged at the weekend when a fire broke out in Place Victoria, the tall Montreal downtown building that houses the Montreal and Canadian Stock Exchanges.

Most of the damage was on the 20th floor, where Royal has its offices. Eoin Ruthven, manager of Royal Securities in Victoria, said communications with head office had been cut, but business was continuing as usual through the Toronto office.

He said that, while some records had been lost, all securities were safe as they had been deposited in the vaults over the weekend. The fire is believed to have originated in the air conditioning plant.

BIGGER VESSELS

Pacific Coast Bulk Terminals is dredging its bulk loading berth at Port Moody to 45 feet at low water so it will be able to accept vessels of up to 65,000 tons.

The company has a working arrangement to handle about 50 per cent of all the sulphur exported through the west coast for the next two years, and it has also contracted to handle coal for Japan from the Canmore Mines for the next 10 years.

□

MERGER COMPLETED

The merger of United Trailer Company of Calgary with Neonex International has been completed. The oldest and largest maker of mobile homes in Canada, United expects sales of $13,000,000 this year.

□

EUROPE LIKES MINK

Mink is coming right back into style as a girl's best friend.

According to the Hudson's Bay Company's annual report, the depression in the fur trade is over, and particularly in Europe the demand is high.

At the HBC fur sale in London the most popular furs are Persian Lamb, from South West Africa, and ranch raised mink from the United Kingdom and Europe. Demand is strongest from Germany and Italy.

Although Persian Lamb and mink accounted between them over 80 per cent of the fur sales volume in London, the HBC also reported its own collection of wild furs were also sold on a rising market.

In its other operations HBC met a further intensification of competition in its retail stores across Canada, and although sales were up from 1967 rising costs and taxes hit at profit margins.

HBC's net profit of $14,703,000 for the year ended Jan. 31 compared with $14,108,000 a year earlier.

Fishing Area Control Urged On Shelf

SEATTLE (CP) — Each nation should have its authority over fisheries extended to the edge of the continental shelf, Canadian Fisheries Minister Jack Davis said Monday.

"Let me be quite clear on this," he said. "I am not saying that each nation should have sole or exclusive authority to fish out to the edge of its own continental shelf."

Davis said other nations could come to fish inside the edge of the continental shelf.

SET LIMITS

But each nation should have primary responsibility for management and conservation of fishery resources on the shelf off its coast.

He said a nation should continuously assess resident stocks and set limits for their exploitation. These areas would become fish management zones.

On the high seas, a United Nations agency such as the Food and Agriculture Organization would be responsible for gauging the size of particular fish stocks and set catch limits.

Pollution Menaces Fishermen

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two fishing groups warned Monday that pollution is threatening the fishing industry on the west coast.

The Commons standing committee on fisheries and forests, opening a series of meetings here, was told in briefs that the fishing industry could be either wiped out overnight by an industrial accident or die slowly as pollution mounts.

T. Buck Suzuki of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' union told the committee:

"Our concern is two fold. First, for the survival of young salmon on their seaward migration from the spawning grounds and, secondly, for the health of fishermen who come in contact with domestic and industrial wastes discharged into the Fraser River."

Mr. Suzuki said the reverse tidal flow in the Fraser River helps keep sewage in the same vicinity for up to 10 hours in each 24.

Appeal Hearings Out For Texas Gulf Pair

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Supreme Court refused hearings Monday to two of the 10 Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. officers, directors and employees found to have violated disclosure provisions of U.S. securities laws.

The initial appeals in the important "insider" case came, separately, from Francis G. Coats, a director and Harold B. Kline, general counsel. They were turned down without comment.

LATER APPEALS

Much of the case, including whether the company itself violated the law, remains in federal court in New York City. Later appeals could result in Supreme Court interpretation of rules governing stock market trading by corporate insiders.

Coats, a Houston lawyer, questioned that purchase of the stock on information already announced to the public could constitute fraud or deceit.

Kline contended there was no evidence he had "material" inside information when he was granted an option to purchase Texas Gulf stock—an option he has not exercised.

CIVIL ACTION

The government's civil action concerned stock transactions involving 13 Texas Gulf officers, directors and employees in the wake of a huge minerals discovery by the company in 1963 near Timmins, Ont.

Ten of the 13 were found by the U.S. circuit court in New York City last August to have violated various disclosure provisions by engaging in stock transactions before the public was sufficiently informed about the strike.

Meanwhile in Toronto, Leitch Gold Mines Ltd.'s application for damages from Texas Gulf Sulphur has been put over until Oct. 6. Master D. W. Rose of Osgoode Hall set the date after lawyers for the two companies appeared briefly before him.

The application is the result of a decision of Chief Justice G. A. Gale of Ontario last November, when he dismissed Leitch's claim to the Kidd orebody near Timmins, Ont., developed as the Kidd Creek Mine by Texas Gulf.

However, the chief justice ruled Texas Gulf has violated a contract between the two companies in other respects, and gave Leitch leave to apply for assessment of damages.

Leitch shareholders turned down an attempt by a dissident group at the company's annual meeting last week to appeal the chief justice's ruling in respect to the mine.

Officials Putter While Hawk Goes Golfing

Key in trade

BOSTON (AP) — The Ken Harrelson trade remained snarled Monday as Cleveland officials sought unsuccessfully to reach the former Boston Red Sox slugger in hopes of persuading him to play with the Indians.

★ ★ ★

Gabe Paul, president and general manager of the Indians, said he tried to reach Harrelson Monday but "he's not available right now."

"He's playing golf."

Harrelson, 27, a key man in a six-player deal involving Cleveland and Boston, announced Sunday he was retiring rather than go along with the trade. The colorful outfielder-first baseman, whose mod dress and flamboyant personality combined with his hitting to make him a fan idol, said leaving Boston would cost him up to $750,000 in lost business opportunities.

★ ★ ★

Dick O'Connell, general manager of the Red Sox, told reporters shortly after Harrelson's announcement that he did not believe the Boston club would take him back under any circumstances.

He reiterated Monday that if Harrelson, the 1968 American League leader in runs batted in, sticks by his decision, the trade presumably will be nullified and "we'll just lose a ball player."

O'Connell said he talked with Paul by telephone Monday but they did not discuss substituting any others players in the deal.

"He wants Harrelson," O'Connell said. "The thing now is for those two to talk and see what can be worked out."

★ ★ ★

The trade sent Harrelson and left-handed pitchers Dick Ellsworth and Juan Pizarro to Cleveland in exchange for catcher Joe Azcue and right-handed pitchers Sonny Siebert and Vicente Romo.

The other five players have joined their new teams but are being held out of action pending disposition of the trade.

For the last two days, Boston fans have bombarded the club with protests and have been demonstrating at Fenway Park with signs and charts of "We want the Hawk."

Three Amateurs, Pro in Semifinals

Three amateurs and one professional from four different clubs will comprise the lineup next Sunday when the 36-hole semifinals of the Vancouver Island Open golf tournament will be held at Gorge Vale.

Dick Austin will have home-course advantage when he meets Glen Meadows' Hal Jacobsen while lefthander Clem Pettit of Royal Colwood will play Cowichan professional Norm Boden, the only previous winner remaining.

Boden had the shortest route to the semis in Sunday's matches at Colwood, scoring a 4 and 3 victory over Bob Hunt of Uplands, who had sidelined the professional last year in the second round.

Jacobsen, a plus two handicapper, also won in less than regulation figures, capturing a 3 and 2 victory from Dr. Dick Flanagan of Victoria.

RALLY FALLS SHORT

The other two matches went to the 18th hole.

Austin, three up at the turn, never trailed as he defeated a professional for the second week in a row, eliminating medalist Don Billsborough of Uplands.

Billsborough fell five back before winning four straight holes but his comeback fell short when the 18th was halved.

Pettit won his match on the last green for the third straight time, eliminating Dan Miles of Gorge Vale when the latter three-putted the final hole after coming back from a three-hole deficit.

HANDICAP DIVISION

Defending champion Bob Herbertson stayed alive in his bid to become the first player to win the handicap division's Hugh Francis Trophy twice.

He was joined in the semifinal lineup by Gorge members Bill Shvetz, Wes Green and Urban Allen.

Sunday's results;

CHAMPIONSHIP

Dick Austin (GV) def. Don Billsborough (U), one up.
Hal Jacobsen (GM) def. Dr. Dick Flanagan (V), 3 and 2.
Norm Boden (Cow.) def. Bob Hunt (U), 4 and 3.
Clem Pettit (RC) def. Dan Miles (GV), one up.

HANDICAP

Urban Allen (GV) def. Marty Smith (U), two up.
Bob Herbertson (CH) def. D. McKerns (GV), 3 and 2.
Wes Green (GV) def. D. Emery (RC), two up.

Nanaimo Player, Team Win Awards at Duncan

DUNCAN — Ray Clarke of Nanaimo's Southend Mt. Benson Legion was named the outstanding player of the Vancouver Island juvenile soccer championships Sunday at McAdam Park.

Clarke, 16, became the second winner of the Shriners' Trophy. He scored four goals to pace his team to a 6-2 victory Sunday over Victoria's Whytes Shopeasy in the Division II match.

"It is the happiest day of my life," Clarke said. "We have a darn good coach and that is why we did so well. My brother-in-law, Wayne Brown has been our coach for the past four years."

TEAM AWARD

In addition, the Nanaimo team was named the most sportsmanlike club for the second straight year.

Lower Island clubs gained a split in Sunday's four matches to retain their edge in the tournament this year. Victoria teams won two titles and a share of a third Saturday.

Gaining victories for the Victoria area Sunday were Gorge FC in the Division III match and Victoria Cement Man in the Division I finale.

VICTORIA WINS

Gorge defeated McKenzie Sporting Goods of Port Alberni, 3-2, while Victoria Cement Man downed Nanaimo Harewood Skillings, 2-1.

Brechin Mt. Benson Legion of Nanaimo took the Division VIII title by blanking Cordova Bay, 2-0.

Next year's tournament will be held in Victoria after a two-year absence.

Bases-Loaded Walk Ends Cardinal Slump

St. Louis Cardinals have been anything but impressive in their early defence of the National League baseball title but perhaps their luck is changing.

Cardinals did their best to give Monday's game against Montreal to the Expos but held on despite errors to outfielders Lou Brock and Vada Pinson to down the visitors, 5-4, for their first victory at home in eight games.

Victory tied Cardinals for third place in the Eastern Division with the New York Mets and Expos, six games behind the leading Chicago Cubs, who were idle Monday after splitting a doubleheader in Montreal Sunday in which their win streak was snapped at seven games.

NINTH-INNING RUN

Unable to muster the usual hitting power so far, Cardinals won the game when Dan McGinn walked catcher Tim McCarver with the bases loaded in the bottom of the ninth inning.

Brock's error gave Montreal two runs in the third inning but Cardinals came back with three runs in the bottom of the inning.

Then Mack Jones, Donn Clendenon and Coco Laboy, who went into the game leading the majors in hitting with a .438 average, cracked consecutive singles in the fourth inning and Pinson's error gave up two more runs.

Brock atoned for his error, tying the score with his first home run in the sixth inning.

Rookie Larry Hisle sparked Philadelphia Phillies to a 2-1 victory over New York, tying the game with his first major league home run and scoring the winning run in the 11th inning on Tony Taylor's single.

Cincinnati Reds bunched five unearned runs on four hits and three Houston errors in the second inning on their way to an 11-5 victory over the Astros. Jim Merritt picked up his first NL win and drove in two runs.

Los Angeles Dodgers, aided by two San Francisco errors, exploded for five runs in the sixth inning to beat the Giants, 7-5, to stay within half a game of Western Division leading Atlanta Braves.

Atlanta downed San Diego Padres, 5-2, behind the home-run power of Orlando Cepeda and Clete Boyer.

In the American League, pitchers Dean Chance, Mel Stottlemyre, Joe Sparma, Jim Palmer and Mike Marshall took the limelight.

Chance picked up his first victory of the season for the Western Division leaders, Minnesota Twins, facing only 24 batters in seven innings, while yeilding two hits before being lifted for a pinch hitter in an 8-4 victory over Oakland Athletics.

Rick Monday broke up Chance's no-hitter in the sixth inning and went on to score an unearned run.

EXTENDS STREAK

Tony Oliva extended his hitting streak to nine games, driving in two runs with a pair of singles as Twins managed 13 hits on their way to their seventh straight win despite wind conditions which produced gusts to 47 mph.

Stottlemyre failed to go the distance for the first time this season but became the first pitcher in the majors to win four games when New York Yankees took advantage of three Red Sox errors and 11 walks to down Boston, 6-4.

Sparma pitched a two-hitter to give world series champion Detroit Tigers a 2-0 victory over Washington Senators, who the Tiger pitcher has now defeated six straight times.

Palmer handed Cleveland Indians their fifth straight loss when he pitched a four-hitter to lead Baltimore Orioles, the Eastern leaders, to an 11-0 triumph.

Seattle's Pilots' Marshall gained revenge for a 2-1 loss to Kansas City last week, scattering seven hits and driving in two runs for a 4-1 victory over the Royals.

Kathy Whitworth Equals Record

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Cool Kathy Whitworth became the second woman ever to win four straight pro golf events Sunday, claiming the Lady Carling open title by beating Mickey Wright on the first hole of a sudden-death playoff.

Miss Wright, only other woman to win four straight titles, which she reeled off in 1962 and 1963, dropped out when she hooked her drive into the rough, missed the green with her second shot and then missed a 20-foot putt needed for her par.

Miss Whitworth missed a chance to take the title on the 18th hole when she went one over par to drop into a tie at 212 strokes with Miss Wright. Both shots 70s in the closing round of the 54-hole, $17,500 tournament.

Hutton, Kaye Hall Add to Records

VANCOUVER—Ralph Hutton of Campbell River and Kaye Hall of Tacoma each claimed their third Canadian open records of the meet Sunday when the three-day Canadian short course swimming championships came to a close.

Hutton, who completed his four wins by setting a native record of 16:26.6 in the 1,500 metres freestyle, maintained his open record-a-day pace with a 2:12.5 clocking the 200-metres backstroke.

Miss Hall, who set two open records Saturday, broke her own record for the 200-metre backstroke with a 2:24.0 clocking.

The Tacoma miss, who defeated Elaine Tanner for the gold medal in the 100-metres backstroke at the recent Olympics, won five events, one less than Seattle's Lynn Colella.

Rick Colella, who with sister Lynn each claimed three open records earlier, tied Hutton for men's honors with four wins.

Two other open records went Sunday, both in relays. Vancouver Dolphins lowered the women's 400-metre medley event mark to 4:41.7 and in the same men's event, Seattle Tritons lowered the open mark to 4:04.0.

In all, 17 open records fell in the meet.

Operator Suspends Off-Track Service

VANCOUVER (CP) — The operator of British Columbia's first off-track betting service said Monday he has voluntarily suspended his short-lived operation until its legal status is clarified.

"A test case would seem to be in order," suggested Hogan Van Holtum, who Saturday opened offices in Vancouver and suburban Burnaby and placed bets for a fee at Sandown Park track, Victoria.

Mr. Van Holtum, after a two-hour meeting with detectives from the city police gambling squad, said Monday he wants to clarify the legal problems before the Vancouver race season opens May 7.

He said business during the weekend was minimal—24 customers, but "I didn't expect much. In any case, I only wanted to go through the motions in preparation for a test case."

CHARGES FEE

His service, modelled on several operating in Ontario, charge a fee of 50 cents, or 10 per cent of the bet, for carrying wagers to pari-mutuel windows and placing them for clients.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson of B.C. said after the offices opened: "I have already indicated that anyone who establishes off-track betting faces the possibility of prosecution."

Said Mr. Van Holtum: "I would gladly help the attorney-general's department. I've started the business ahead of the racing season to see if it would be okay to go ahead."

Mr. Van Holtum said he returned $180 collected from bettors because he missed a plane to Victoria. Ontario services have been told that in such cases they must not pay off bets but return the money.

Next game: Wednesday — Columbus vs. Eintracht.

Victoria O'Keefes finished their Pacific Coast Soccer League season on a bright note Sunday at Royal Athletic Park, taking an entertaining match from fourth-place Westminster Labatts, 4-2.

The game, which wrapped up what has been termed a building year for rookie coach Bill Abbott's Victorians after two straight league championships, gave every indication that O'Keefes may be back at the top again next year.

O'Keefes' young defenders turned in a solid performance against the tough charges of former-Victoria star George Wright with goalkeeper Kjeld Brodsgaard, in particular, showing the benefit of this season's experience with a solid display.

The improved effort combined with a committee decision to give O'Keefes a winning season with 11 wins and three draws in the 24-game schedule.

Croatia's 4-3 victory here the previous weekend was not allowed because reinstated professional Harold Hansen, who led the Vancouver club's effort, was still Burnaby Villa property under PCSL rules and was therefore ineligible.

OPENED SCORING

Don Wilson gave Westminster its only lead when he opened the scoring after 14 minutes on a pass from captain Gerry Heaney, who had a great deal of pressure from Victoria attackers at his centre-half position.

Dune McCaig tied the score a minute later when Robin Davies couldn't hold Peter Wheaton's corner kick and Ike MacKay gained his 15th goal, heading in Bruce Twamley's cross for a 2-1 lead at the half.

Carlos Franco brought Labatts even on a deflected shot with seven minutes gone in the final half, but MacKay set Soutar up for an easy tap-in four minutes later as Victoria regained the lead.

NINTH FOR BRETT

Peter Brett added his ninth goal five minutes later, heading McCaig's free kick from the corner of the penalty box over Davies.

O'Keefes still have two games on tap this season, both under the lights at Athletic Park. Next Saturday they meet Vancouver Spartans of the Western Canada League and then complete the season with a match against West Bromwich Albion of the English League's first division.

Columbus Carlings downed North Shore, 2-0, on goals by Alan Bristowe and Steve Djoric in Sunday's other match.

Canadiens, Bruins Nurse Bruises As Series Returns to Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadien coach Claude Ruel figures his club's series with Boston Bruins is a brand new ball game with the team that gets the breaks and takes advantage of them emerging as the winner.

The Bruins-Canadiens best-of-seven Stanley Cup semifinal round resumes here tonight with the series tied, 2-2, on the strength of a pair of home-ice victories each.

BREAKS COUNT NOW

"These are the two best clubs in hockey and all tied up," Ruel said. "Now it's the breaks that will count and taking advantage of them."

The Canadiens held an optional workout Monday with little involved other than a light skate. There was almost as much traffic to the Forum clinic as there was on and off the ice.

FIRST TO CLINIC

Goaltender 'Gump' Worsley, his left hand still wrapped in a pressure bandage, was the first clinic visitor.

He suffered a dislocated little finger on his left hand in Boston last Thursday from a shot by Ken Hodge early in the game. Canadiens lost that one, 5-0, and Rogatien Vachon took over Sunday when the Bruins again triumphed in their home rink, 3-2.

Leftwinger John Ferguson and rightwingers Claude Provost and Bobby Rousseau also were nursing souvenirs of Sunday's contest.

Ferguson will play tonight despite an eye injury picked up when struck by Hodge's stick in the third period Sunday. He appeared with a patch on the eye and visited an eye specialist Monday to get final clearance to play tonight.

Tonight's Boston - Montreal game will be telecast over channels 2 and 6 starting at 5 p.m.

Rousseau suffered a charley-horse in his right leg Sunday in a third period collision with Boston's Bobby Orr. Ruel said he likely will play although Rousseau was limping badly after he left the treatment room.

Provost skated and displayed a heavily taped right wrist, but he is sure to start.

TOLD TO HIT

Ruel said he told his forwards to skate and hit because, of the nine Boston forwards, there are only a couple that play the rough-and-tumble pattern the Bruins have become associated with.

"I think we started the series as the underdog," said coach Harry Sinden of Boston. "But maybe the momentum has swung from them to us."

NO PROBLEM

He said he could see "no psychological problem" in returning to the Montreal Forum for tonight's contest. The teams play the sixth game in Boston on Thursday and the seventh game, if necessary, will likely be Sunday afternoon in Montreal.

"We know we can win," Sinden went on. "I think the psychological reaction—if any at all—is the thought that we can bring them back to Boston and eliminate them."

SANDERSON HURT

One big question mark for the Bruins in the fifth game is scrappy centre Derek Sanderson, who posted his third shorthanded goal of the playoffs Sunday before going out with a charleyhorse, originally suffered in the quarterfinals against Toronto.

Trainer Dan Canney said the second-year player was "doubtful" for the next few games.

Sanderson also assisted on Ed Westfall's goal as Bruins scored twice while shorthanded in the opening period to take a 2-1 lead which stood up until the hectic finale of the last two minutes of play.

Westfall connected for his third playoff goal with Garnet Bailey, called up in place of the injured Wayne Cashman, sitting out a penalty but Jacque Lemaire tied the game six minutes later with Sanderson in the penalty box.

But the 1967-68 rookie-of-the-year beat Vachon, with John McKenzie in the penalty box, to atone.

Orr completed a sharp passing play with John Bucyk and Westfall to put Bruins ahead, 3-1, at 18:13 of the final period but Serge Savard brought Canadiens back to within one goal after Vachon was lifted for a sixth attacker.

Boston missed a chance for a clinching goal after surviving more Montreal pressure when Hodge and Phil Esposito broke towards the empty Canadien goal but were stopped on an offside play at the Montreal blueline.

Blues Complete Sweep Of West Final Series

LOS ANGELES — St. Louis Blues, runaway champions in the West Division of the National Hockey League, retained their touch Sunday to down Los Angeles Kings, 4-1, and complete an eight-game sweep of their divisional playoffs in the Stanley Cup playdowns.

In reaching the final for the second straight year, Blues took the short route in eliminating Philadelphia and Los Angeles to tie the playoff record held by three teams and last accomplished by Montreal Canadiens in 1960.

"You've really got to have something to win eight straight games," said St. Louis' coach Scotty Bowman as he looked forward to the final against the winner of the Canadiens-Boston Bruins series which is currently tied, 2-2.

Although they have never beaten Montreal and will be underdogs no matter who wins the other series, Bowman said that he didn't care which team they played.

Kings gave their 7388 supporters hope of extending the series when Ed Joyal picked up his third playoff goal with less than two minutes gone but St. Louis controlled play most of the way in a tight-checking game outshooting Los Angeles, 23-22.

Terry Crisp, who scored the winning goal in Saturday's victory, evened the score before the period was over and Red Berenson and Gary Sabourin scored in the second period before Camille Henry completed scoring midway through the final period.

Outlasts Trevino . . . . . . for $30,000 Prize

Gary Player Romps to Win

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP)—Gary Player, a meticulous little South African, fired a par 72 Sunday and won golf's $150,000 Tournament of Champions with a 72-hole score of 284.

Lee Trevino went over par on the 13th and 14th holes, lost his share of the lead and finished second at 286. The U.S. Open champion had a final round of 74.

Player and Trevino were the only ones in the select field of 28 champions to finish with subpar totals on the demanding 7,114-yard, par 72 La Costa Country Club layout.

Arnold Palmer had a final round 71 for 289 and was tied for third with young Dave Stockton, who closed with a 70.

SIKES GETS ACE

Sunday's play in bright spring weather was highlighted by a hole-in-one by veteran Dan Sikes, who finished with a 70 for 293. The Jacksonville, Fla., attorney holed a four-iron shot on the 199-yard third hole.

Gene Littler, the season's leading money-winner, had a 72 for 290 and fifth place. Master's champion George Archer blew to a 75 and was alone at 291.

BEST OF DAY

Jack Nicklaus, far back in the pack after three disastrous rounds shot the day's best score, a five-under-par 76 for 296.

Player, tied with Trevino most of the way, could have nailed down the $30,000 first prize much earlier except for a two-over-par on the sixth hole.

He had reeled off birdies on the third and fourth holes, canning putts of 40 and 18 feet, then gave the two strokes back with the two-over.

SKIPPED INTO TRAP

His pitch skipped through the green and into a trap. He failed to get it out on his first try, then blasted short and into the rough. He chipped to within 18 inches and holed the putt.

A five-foot birdie putt on No. 9 put him one under for the day but he went one over par on the next hole and then parred in.

Trevino, having his troubles, went out in par 33 and remained in a tie until he ran into trouble on 13 and 14.

PLAYED BOLDLY

Player, the reigning British Open champion, had a two-stroke lead going into the final three extremely tough holes. But the tough-minded little Johannesburg rancher refused to play it safe. He laced his approaches straight for the pins and just missed on a birdie attempt on No. 18.

First Tour Victory For Dale Douglass

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Lean Dale Douglass, who seemed destined to win money instead of tournaments, finished with 66 and 69 Sunday to win $5,000 top money in the Azalea open golf tournament by three strokes with a 275 total.

It was his first victory in seven years on the tour.

The 33-year-old from Denver, Colo., had opened the tournament with a pair of 70s, giving him a nine-under-par total over the 6,575-yard Cape Fear Country Club course.

Larry Mowry and Terry Wilcox, 36-hole co-leaders, tied for second place at 278 with Jim Langley and Bob Stone.

Al Balding of Toronto finished with 71 and 70 for 282, worth $950, Also tied at 282 were Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg who had final-day rounds of 70 and 73 and veteran Sam Snead who shot 72 and 71.

Bill Wakeham of Victoria came in with rounds of 72 and 73 to earn $280. His 72-hole total was not reported.

Douglass got his charge going with an eagle three on the sixth hole of his morning round on a drive, three wood and 10-foot putt.

He has played a tournament every week since January and now has won $37,000 this year. Last year he won $57,000 in 38 tournaments.

Golf Clown Blows

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Chuck Courtney, a six-year tour veteran, staged a brilliant come-from-behind finish Sunday to overtake Bob Shaw and win the $35,000 Tallahassee Open golf tournament.

Courtney, 28, from La Jolla, Calif., wasn't assured of the victory until the last when the clowning Shaw missed a two-foot putt that would have given him a tie for first. Shaw's putt on the 18th green rolled several inches past the cup.

Shaw, the talkative Australian from Sydney, went into Sunday's round with a one-stroke lead over young Larry Hinson of Douglas, Ga. Courtney was two strokes off the pace.

Courtney's two-under-par 70 Sunday gave him a 72-hole total of 282.

Shaw, who continued to gab with the gallery as he had in previous rounds, shot a one-over-par 73. This gave him a second-place tie with Bert Greene of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Jacky Cupit of Dallas.

Courtroom Parade

Army's Kindness Answer to Abuse

"It is nice when people who are abused come along and help their abuser," Magistrate William Ostler told a man charged with causing a disturbance by swearing.

Central Magistrate's Court was told Monday that Donald David Campbell of 1020 Government swore at a Salvation Army official in the 500-block Yates April 20, and was arrested.

Salvation Army Brig. Marsland Rankin came forward on Campbell's behalf Monday morning and told the court that laying the charge was the only course open to Capt. Albert Ferris, who is in charge of the Harbor Light rehabilitation centre.

MAN DRANK

Campbell said, he had been drinking but could not understand what made him swear at the captain.

"It was probably your conscience because you had been drinking," said the magistrate.

The brigadier said Capt. Ferris wanted the man to continue with his program and that this was the first time anything like this had happened to Campbell.

"How forgiving they are!" said Magistrate Ostler, and fined Campbell $25.

□

David L. Copley of 2315 Fernwood pleaded guilty to loitering by night and told the court he had no idea how he came to be in a garage at 1225 Walnut Street at 1:49 a.m. Sunday.

He said he had been drinking in two city hotels and left the Strathcona Hotel to go to a party. He didn't remember what happened after he left the hotel.

Magistrate Ostler remanded the case until April 29 to look into Copley's background.

□

Wilfred George Clarke of 930 Agnes, pleaded guilty to having care and control of a car while impaired.

Court was told he stopped his car in the 500 block Yates and a policeman noticed he was unsteady on his feet and brought him into the police car to talk to him.

During the questioning, court was told, Campbell climbed out of the police car and urinated on it.

"It's punishment enough to stand in court and hear things like that said about yourself," said Magistrate Ostler. He fined Clarke $350 and suspended his licence.

□

Magistrate Ostler advised Robert K. Young of 1209 Tolmie to stay away from Wall's Food Market, 3109 Quadra.

Mr. Young was found guilty of assault causing bodily harm to the proprietor, Peter Lee.

Young told the court his five-year-old daughter had come home from the store and said she had been pushed. She had bought some candy but did not bring home the right change.

Speaking through an interpreter, Mr. Lee said the children were standing in front of the cash register and a customer trying to pay his bill pushed them gently out of the way.

IN PROTEST

When Mr. Young went to the store with his daughter to protest, an altercation arose and Mr. Lee was struck on the shoulder. Young told the court Mr. Lee made a lunge at him, missed and fell on the counter.

"You went down to the store obviously seeking satisfaction. You should call the police and not take the law into your own hands," said Magistrate Ostler.

Young was put on a $250 bond and told to report to the probation officer as required.

□

The trial of John Mazzocca, 1260 Pembroke, charged with assault causing bodily harm, will resume in Central Magistrate's Court Monday. A session lasting nearly three hours Monday ran the court tape recorder out of tape.

The court heard from five crown witnesses and two defence witnesses.

Court was told Mazzocca and Michael Chenier, who lives in the same building, had left a party in another apartment March 17, and Chenier returned with a broken arm.

Mazzocca testified that he was a member of a karate club.

Child Safety Takes Road

Designed to teach road safety to Grade 2 students from Lower Vancouver Island, the village is sponsored by the South Van Isle Lions Club.

First B.C. Court Wedding Precedes Sentencing

A courtroom wedding — believed to be the first in B.C.— was performed Monday in Victoria less than hour before the groom was sentenced to jail on a marijuana conviction.

Both events occurred in the same County Courtroom in the Law Courts building, the groom standing outside the prisoner's dock for the wedding and inside for the passing of sentence.

Married in a simple ceremony by Canon Brian Page of St. Barnabas Anglican Church were David Weir, 19, of 909 Tolmie, and Patricia Kimmerley, 19, also of Victoria. The bride wore a miniskirt and white stockings.

She sat quietly with friends later as County Court Judge M. L. T. Drake sentenced Weir to three to 18 months for trafficking in marijuana.

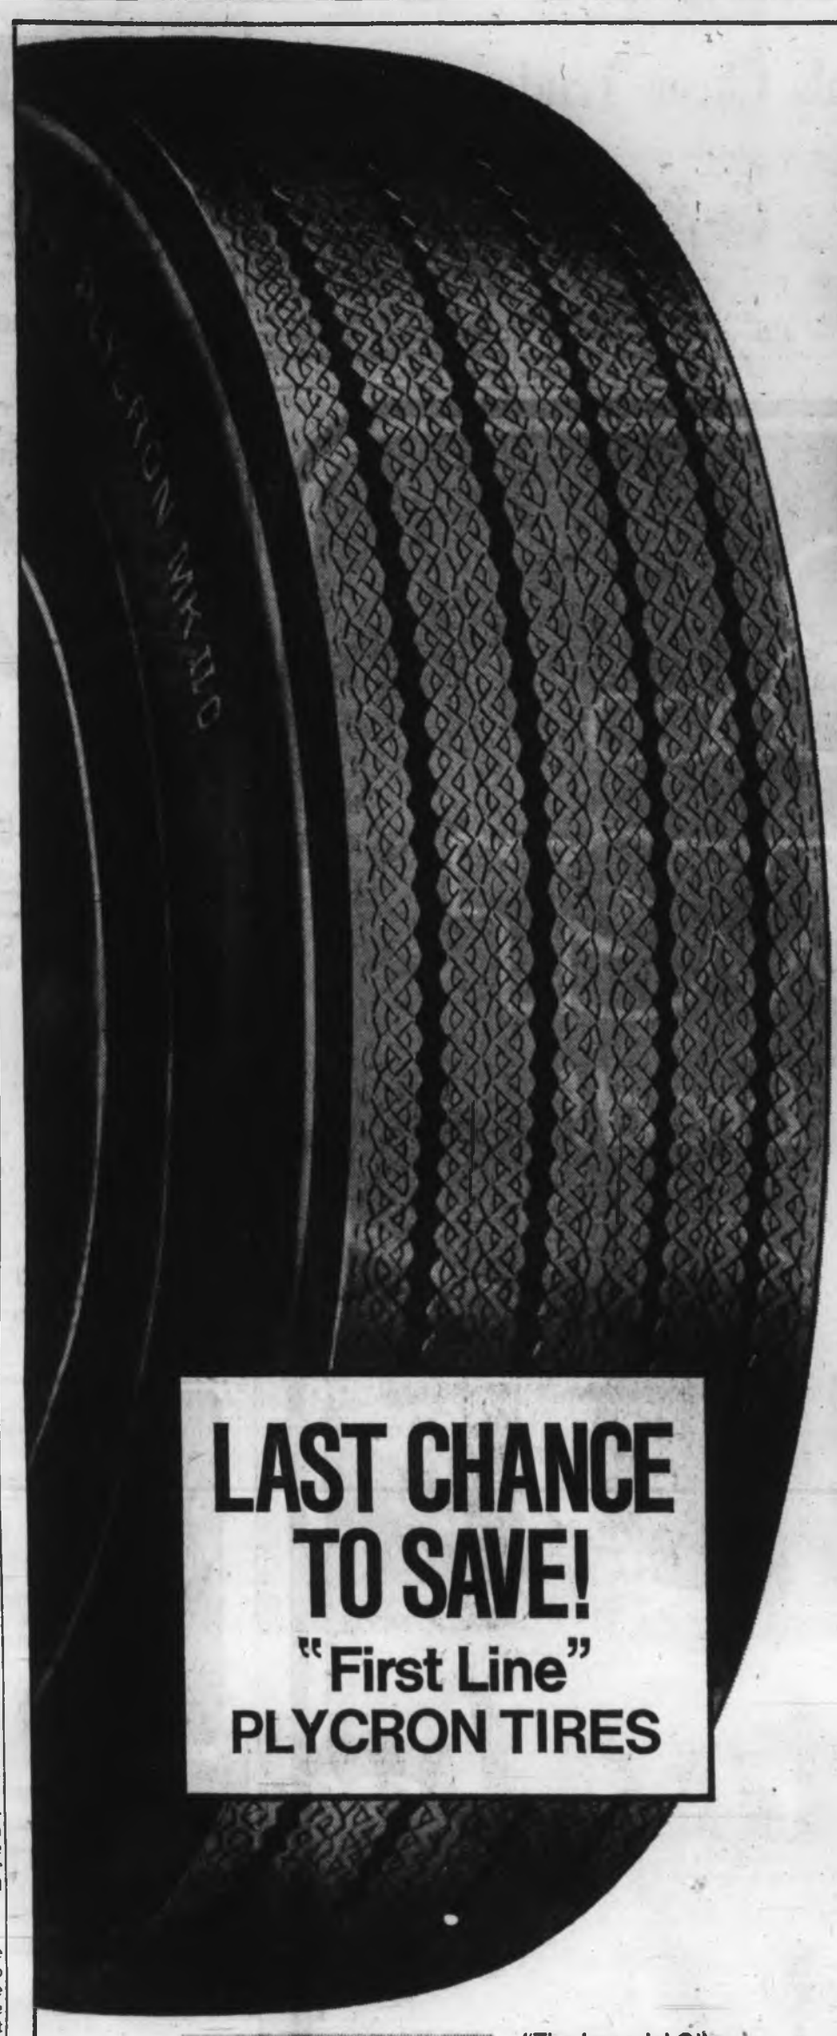

★ ★ ★

After that, the long-haired young groom was taken to still another courtroom for trial on a charge of unlawfully selling LSD. His bride and friends sat directly behind him. The charge was dismissed by County Court Judge G. B. Ladner.

The courtroom wedding was requested by Weir and arranged by Rev. H. Gordon Walker, chaplain at Wilkinson Road jail, who attended.

Court officials said the ceremony was not performed at jail because prison weddings are against B.C. regulations. They believed the wedding was the first of its kind in B.C.

In asking for a lenient sentence on the marijuana charge, defence counsel Donald Farquhar said Weir "is now offered the love and affection he was denied in his youth."

Rifles All Fired Up For Birthday 109

Canada's oldest regiment — the Queen's Own Rifles of Canada — will celebrate its 109th birthday at Work Point this weekend.

The First Battalion, which has been at Work Point since late in 1963, is the last surviving unit of the regiment. The Second Battalion, which was stationed at headquarters in Calgary, was disbanded last year and Work Point now is home base.

The Queen's Own was formed in 1860 and first saw action in the Fenian raids.

Birthday celebrations will begin at 9 a.m. Friday with a series of games at the Macaulay Point playing field.

The soldiers will hold a Kleine (little) Grey Cup game, a tradition which originated when the battalion was stationed in Germany.

There will be a volleyball game between officers and NCOs, a bicycle brigade race, float competition, chariot race and military dress competition.

Entries in the dress competition are expected to include uniforms from the days of the Fenian Raids and the Riel Rebellion.

Friday evening the officers will have a regimental birthday mess dinner and Saturday night there will be three birthday balls for officers, sergeants and junior ranks.

At 10:40 a.m. Sunday, about 400 officers and men of the battalion will parade from View and Government to St.Andrew's Roman Catholic Cathedral and Christ Church Cathedral.

Mayor Hugh Stephen will take the salute in front of the Empress Hotel about 12:20 a.m.

The marching route before church will be along View to Blanshard, where Roman Catholics will fall out, then to Quadra and south to Christ Church Cathedral.

After church the Protestants will parade back to St. Andrew's Cathedral to rejoin their Catholic brothers, then march to Government, south past the saluting base to Superior, where they will board a bus to be taken back to Work Point.

Selkirks Dine

The Lord Selkirk Association of Victoria will hold its annual dinner at Centennial Church Hall at 6 p.m. Thursday.

Drivers Fined After Chases

Two motorists who narrowly missed collisions with police cars and had to be chased down were fined a total of $325 Monday in Central Magistrate's Court.

Gary Chittenden of 3260 Galloway and Brian Thomas Tucker of 1551 Arrow Place were charged with dangerous driving.

Chittenden pleaded guilty and was fined $175 after narrowly missing a police car on Douglas Street at 4 a.m. Sunday. Court was told he was three feet into the wrong lane. The police car had to turn around to chase him. He travelled at speeds of 45 miles an hour and went through a stop sign, court was told.

He was prohibited from driving anywhere in Canada for three months.

A Saanich police car chased Tucker for a mile at speeds of 65 miles an hour along West Saanich Road, after he almost ran head-on into it. He pleaded guilty and was fined $150.

Court was told the road was wet, hilly and crooked.

Liberals Cheer Trudeau Year

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal MPs gave Prime Minister Trudeau a prolonged desk-thumping accolade in the Commons Monday in recognition of completion of his first year as prime minister.

★ ★ ★

Trudeau, sworn in as prime minister April 20, 1968, rose to answer a routine question when his supporters drowned out his reply with their enthusiastic response.

When the din abated, he smiled broadly and commented that "after one year, the Liberal caucus has learned it is wiser to applaud me before I reply than after."

Also in the House:

● External Affairs Minister Sharp, reporting briefly on a Canada-Japan trade meeting in Tokyo last week, said Canada "spoke with some vigor" on certain Japanese trade restrictions.

● Sharp said he plans a statement this week on a backlog in processing passport applications, which have undergone a sharp increase lately.

● Debate continued on Criminal Code amendments, mainly on lotteries, without any decisive votes.

McPherson Concert

Double Band Concert Foot-Tapping Delight

By BERT BINNY

The first half of a double band concert at the McPherson Playhouse Sunday afternoon was enjoyably occupied by the Mount Douglas senior high school band and the second half by their guests, the James Madison high school band from Portland.

Mount Douglas has a promising band: around 50 performers with a particularly efficient brass section. Director is Emile Michaux.

It opened with the overture to Frederick Loew's Brigadoon and the brass section was immediately in evidence, solid and reliable.

A pleasing composition, Blues Essay by Richard Maltby, featured trombone soloist John Gibson. Later, John was joined by Lewis Bartlett and Charles Taillefer for a trombone trio, Trombonanza, familiar, cheery and entertaining.

Another soloist was Jane Pearce, who played Cecile Chaminade's Concertino on the flute. It was well received by the audience.

Trumpets and trombones triumphed again in a Johnny Mercer medley and the Mount Douglas program ended with Wapawekka, a descriptive, symphonic rhapsody.

Following the intermission, the Madison band took over.

The band achieves a welcome unity. Attacks and releases are crisp and effective and the synamic control seems exceptional in a young instrumental group.

★ ★ ★

The clarinet section, 14 strong, raced through Clarinet Escapade at jet speed.

If there was any point at which this band suggested a lack of internal union it was in the performance of People, from Funny Girl. The rest of the way it was all fair sailing.

And what a delight it was to hear again that foot-tapping, soul-stirring march, Old Comrades.

The Mount Douglas band pays a return visit to Portland in early May.

Scottish Fare Savored

Eight braw, Scottish entertainers offered a free-swinging and varied program Monday night at the Royal Theatre.

It was the annual visit of the White Heather Concert Party, this time headed by singer Calum Kennedy, comedian Jack Milroy and his wife Mary, and Lawrie Adam, accordionist.

There was also delightful entertainment from Highland fiddler Bobby Harvey, singers Joe Gordon and Sally Logan and the untiring pianist, Ken Haynes.

★ ★ ★

The program was introduced by Jimmy Warren and opened by the Pipes and Drums of the Canadian Scottish Regiment along with the dancers of the Adeline and Heather Duncan studios.

It would be true to say that there have been better White Heather programs in the past, but the audience Monday night gobbled up all the fare enthusiastically.—H.B.B.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

Airline, Employees Face to Face Today

MONTREAL (CP) — Airline and union negotiators are to face one another across a table today for the first time since Air Canada was hit by a strike Sunday night.

The Crown corporation's entire fleet of 108 aircraft remained on the ground Monday in this second strike in the 31-year history of the airline which normally carries 18,000 passengers daily.

Officials of Air Canada and the International Association of Machinists met separately through the early morning hours after the strike deadline passed at 11:59 p.m. Sunday night.

Each side discussed issues separately with federal labor department troubleshooters but the sessions broke up without a face-to-face talk between the parties to the dispute.

A company official reported, however, that the two sides would get together today at 10 a.m. EST and it was a safe bet the federal officials would also be there "or not far away."

In Ottawa, the Canadian transport commission approved Monday a series of emergency flight services from coast to coast, Canadian Pacific Airlines being given approval for as many daily flights as it can handle on its transcontinental run between Montreal and Vancouver.

CP Air normally operates a daily six-flight transcontinental service, covering Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg, Calgary and Edmonton, besides the two terminus cities.

The transport commission also authorized emergency services by 12 smaller operators from Newfoundland to Vancouver Island for the duration of the Air Canada shutdown.

About 6,300 IAM members, employees of Air Canada—mechanics, storemen and maintenance men—were off their jobs and not being paid.

CREWS IDLED

Approximately 3,000 pilots and flight attendants also were off work Monday, as well as an undetermined number of other unionized workers.

The airline suffers a revenue loss of $1,200,000 daily, a spokesman said, but this comes down to a net loss of $580,000 daily when savings in wages and the like are calculated.

The last Air Canada jet landed at Montreal international airport early Monday on a "deadhead" flight from London, carrying no paying passengers but a number of crews who had flown their planes to London and Paris.

TORONTO PROBLEM

The remainder of the fleet—turboprop aircraft and big and small jets—was grounded at various airports across Canada. Some 10,000 persons who normally travel daily out of Toronto by Air Canada had trouble getting seats on planes of other airlines.

In Halifax, airmail service from the Atlantic area to points west was reported likely to be severely curtailed though intra-Maritimes traffic could mostly be handled by trucks and trains.

Saturday, IAM members across Canada rejected an Air Canada offer of a 23-per-cent wage increase over three years by a vote of 3,333 to 1,116, though the Winnipeg local endorsed the proposal 481 to 204 with 250 abstentions.

The union executive had recommended rejection of the offer in favor of its demand for a 20-per-cent increase in a one-year contract. Wages under the last contract, which expired Dec. 31, ranged from $2 to $3.97 an hour.

Bernard Wilson, assistant deputy minister of labor, and W. P. Kelly, labor department director of conciliation and arbitration, talked separately with the two parties at intervals between 12:30 a.m. and 8:30 a.m. Monday, an informant said. They were reporting to Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey.

Though no one was predicting the duration of the strike, sources said it is expected operations would take a week or so to get back to normal even if a settlement were reached quickly.

Air Canada was shut down for two weeks in 1966 by a strike by the same union.

Main Issue In Strike Not Money

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey said Monday wages are not the biggest stumbling block between Air Canada and striking members of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers.

Asked whether there were still major differences between the two sides, he replied, "Yes, but money is not one of them."

Pressed for a definition of the major difficulties, he said: "I'd rather not comment."

Cariboo Byelection Unlikely

Bonner Out—Strachan Maybe

Premier Bennett said Monday that, as far as he knows, there will be no byelection to fill the Cariboo seat from which former attorney general Robert Bonner earlier said he would resign in the next few days.

When asked if this meant there would be a provincial general election shortly, however, the premier replied that there would be a vote "either this year or next year."

Mr. Bennett also said before entering a cabinet meeting that he was not surprised to hear that former NDP leader Robert Strachan was thinking of not contesting the Cowichan Malahat seat in the next election.

NO FIRM PLANS

Mr. Strachan said here Monday he was going to "take things easy for a couple of months, but had no firm plans for the future and would keep all his options open.

The former leader said he had suffered a heavy cold for the past wee kor so and wanted to regain his full strength before making any decisions.

He indicated this meant that in the case of a spring general election he would not run again.

"I'm finding the business of non-leadership a rather heady experience and I'm learning just how much freedom there is outside of politics," Mr. Strachan said.

He said the choice of a new career might lie in industry, teaching or in study. The former NDP leaders is an amateur painter and has spoken in the past of furthering his studies in art.

Mr. Bonner said his resignation "will have to follow shortly" the formal announcement made over the weekend to the Social Credit Cariboo Constituency Association that he would not seek renomination in the riding.

Once speaker William Murray has been officially notified the government would have to fill the seat by vote within six months. This means, if no general election is called, a by-election in Cariboo by November at the latest.

The former attorney general's letter said his duties as executive vice-president of MacMillan Bloedel prevented him from giving the riding of Cariboo the "intimate" representation it deserved. The association decided to call a nominating meeting for May 24 to pick its candidate to succeed Mr. Bonner.

New from Goodyear

the Polyglas tire!*™

Up to double the mileage at nowhere near double the price.

It's a new concept in tire construction. A combination of fiberglass and polyester cord. Bias ply layers of polyester cord form the body of the tire, while belts of fiberglass are applied as hoops around the circumference of the tire under the tread. Together they hold the tread firm on the road. This means less tire squirm. Less tire wear. More mileage—up to double the mileage of tires found on most new cars. Plus a handling and riding experience you've never known. It's the tire of the future—today!

Fiberglass Pound for pound, stronger than steel. Goodyear bonds the fiberglass belt to the underside of an improved tread. It holds the full width of the tread against the road—even at high speeds—resisting "squirm", the major cause of excessive tread wear.

Polyester The miracle cord. Around the sidewalls, under the fiberglass belt are plies of polyester cord on a bias angle. This gives you maximum shock absorption for a smooth no thump ride. Polyester has the strength of nylon and the flexibility of rayon. It practically eliminates cuts and impact breaks, gives you a more durable, longer life tire.

You can get Goodyear's new Polyglas tires in the Custom Wide Tread for the new generation of performance cars. Or the Power Cushion to fit most standard cars.

The flexible polyester cord sidewalls absorb the leaning action on curves and corners. This tire has muscular strength, stamina and flexibility to give you the smoothest, safest ride ever!

Here's where the rubber meets the road! It's Goodyear's exclusive tough Tufsyn tread rubber in a new high-traction compound, that delivers up to 14% greater wet traction than previous standard compounds. Result: Tufsyn rubber has greater wet traction, faster pick-up, faster stops and improved skid control. In addition, with belted construction, the tire tread grooves stay open under loads for maximum traction.

Only Goodyear makes the Polyglas tire. Yes, you pay a little more—but what a bargain for the extra miles you get! The Polyglas can last twice as long as tires that come on most new cars. See your Goodyear store, dealer or service station for Polyglas tires. They can double your mileage.

Outside Probe Requested By Professor

A call for an outside investigation of the University of Victoria's fine arts school and a vote of confidence by a group of students in Dr. Alan Gowans are the latest developments in the campus' latest controversy.

On Monday, fine arts professor Richard Grooms announced he had requested "a full-scale inquiry" into the reasons why his two-year contract was not renewed last winter.

Prof. Grooms, who said he already has another job, called for an inquiry by both the UVic faculty association and the Canadian Association of University Teachers.

A CAUT investigation carries the possibility of sanctions by the organization if the university is judged to have violated academic freedom.

TEN STUDENTS

On Sunday, a group of about 10 art students issued a joint statement expressing confidence in Dr. Alan Gowans, chairman of the division of art and art history.

Dr. Gowans has variously been accused of imposing his views of art on other faculty members, interfering in the selection of a head of the new studio arts division, and of being "incompetent" outside his field of art and art history.

The students termed Dr. Gowans "a dedicated scholar, a conscientious teacher, and an honest and straightforward administrator."

UNDER FIRE

Prof. Peter Garvie, school director who also is under fire from students and some faculty, issued his first formal statement on the issue Monday.

"The essential issue is that some teachers of studio arts have tried to set themselves up as a separate entity outside the procedures that were accepted by the School of Fine Arts," said Prof. Garvie in a prepared statement.

The statement was endorsed by Dean Robert Wallace, acting president of the university.

The trouble, which apparently has been simmering for months, broke into the open last week with the resignation of Dr. Peter Kahn, a distinguished graphic arts specialist. He said he was unable to do the things he wanted to, and blamed lack of facilities as one factor.

The controversy focuses on the selection of a head of the embryonic studio arts division, which will become a department next fall when the fine arts school is elevated to the rank of faculty.

Dr. Gowans, who came here in 1966, now is in charge of the studio arts division.

STUDIO ARTS

Approximately 60 studio arts students asked Dr. Kahn to reconsider his resignation and asked the university to remove Dr. Gowans from decision-making power.

On Monday Prof. Grooms delivered this letter to Dr. James Hendrickson, president of the UVic faculty association:

"As a result of our last conversation about my appeal to the Canadian Association of University Teachers in Toronto and to the tenure committee at the university for the association, I had decided to not carry this to the CAUT.

NEW POSITION

"Now, in the light of the question of the competence of Dr. Gowans and Mr. Garvie and their reasons for not either renewing my contract or offering me a new position in art history or studio art—plus the fact that Mr. Emery says he is not returning to the University of Victoria but is staying on in Vancouver—I would now like a full-scale inquiry on my case by the CAUT and the university association."

Prof. A. Grooms referred to Prof. Toney Emery, longtime art teacher who went on leave of absence two years ago to become director of the Vancouver Art Gallery, and whom he replaced here.

Prof. Grooms commented:

"I think an inquiry now would do some good. It's no longer just one man and one position.

"I have another position to go to, so it's not just sour grapes."

STILL MEMBERS

Prof. Garvie's statement said in part:

"The studio arts faculty have attempted to function as a separate department, though no such department yet exists, and with as little reference as possible to the chairman of the division of art and art history.

"In fact, they are still members of that division."

Prof. Garvie said the studio arts people had been "fully consulted" in the search for a chairman, but had not recommended a name to the committee advising on an appointment.

Board Seeks Restitution For School Vandalism

Parents of school vandals will be taken to court for restitution, the Greater Victoria school board decided Monday.

Trustees heard a catalogue of rising damage to school property that cost the district $24,000 for glass alone last year, and will probably increase by 25 per cent to $30,000 this year.

At the suggestion of Trustee Peter Bunn, the school board approved a motion to confer with police chiefs on better policing of schools, and the laying of charges against all vandals caught.

TEST CASE

The board will press for a test case in which it would seek restitution for damage from the parents or guardians of juvenile vandals.

Mr. Bunn, chairman of the board's buildings and grounds committee, said that common law at present appeared to shield the parents of young vandals from paying restitution.

Mr. Bunn expanded on a report to the board concerning a recent wave of destruction which culminated in thousands of dollars worth of damage to an addition to Macaulay elementary school during the Easter holiday.

Last week alone the school district replaced more than $100 worth of outside lights, he said.

"We have had to discontinue replacing the glassware covers over most of the outside lights," said Mr. Bunn. "The replacements are so costly and difficult to obtain that we just replace the globes."

SOUND EQUIPMENT

He noted an upsurge of thefts of electrical equipment during burglaries. Four $50 radio antennas have been taken this term.

"We are getting quite a number of break-ins where the object seems to be to steal sound equipment, tape recorders, radios and record players," Mr. Bunn reported.

Recovered equipment is nearly always damaged beyond repair.

'WE OWE THIS'

Outside the board room Monday night was a pile of wrecked sound equipment, the remains of four record players and tape recorders worth a total of $500.

Speaking for the motion to seek restitution, Mr. Bunn said:

"Surely we owe this to the people we represent."

Rezoning Decided Despite Protest

By NANCY BROWN

Despite opposition voiced by some 600 people at an earlier public hearing, Oak Bay council decided Monday night to rezone the Riding Academy property on Cedar Hill Road for apartment buildings.

Opposed to the zoning were Ald. Ian Horne and G. Scott Wallace.

"To my knowledge never in the history of Oak Bay have so many people appeared at a meeting and expressed such violent opposition," said Ald. Horne.

ONE IN FAVOR

"Some 600 people appeared and regardless of who applauded and at what point, the fact remains that only one individual spoke in favor of the rezoning at that meeting. While I believe he spoke in what he felt were the best interests of the area, that one man is in the contracting business," added Ald. Horne.

"Considerable numbers of people have spoken and written to the council and these are the people directly affected by the construction of these proposed highrises and apartments.

"I think council is derelict in its duty to put construction before the feelings of the people.

'ILLOGICAL'

"It is illogical, unfair and makes no sense whatsoever to assume the rest of the community is in favor of sacrificing that area in favor of the concept of an ice arena simply because they don't appear at a meeting," he added.

Ald. Horne asked that Mayor Fred Hawes disqualify himself from giving a tie-breaking vote if it became necessary.

He also asked that Ald. Frances Elford be disqualified from voting because, he said, she had made it abundantly clear both before and during the public hearing that the last chance for recreation facilities for Oak Bay rested upon the proposed rezoning.

'POOR BASIS'

"This is a desperately poor basis on which to make a decision."

Mayor Hawes refused to give a ruling on Ald. Horne's point of order.

"I don't feel I can do that," he said, "and I'm not ashamed of anything I have said."

Ald. Douglas Watts said he felt the proposed bylaw was good land use, regardless of the side issue of getting more money for the up-coming recreation referendum.

He felt residents had ample protection and distance between their single family homes and the proposed highrises which would be well screened by trees.

He said rezoning and sale of the municipally-owned land would bring considerable tax revenue and capital to Oak Bay.

Ald. Elford said she had sought out knowledgeable people concerned with zoning and was convinced the property was a good apartment site.

DRIVE-IN BANK

"I certainly have no intention of abstaining from voting," she said.

Ald. Horne said immediately after the rezoning hearing that Mayor Hawes had received an application to put a drive-in bank at the corner of Fenderson and Cedar Hill.

"We haven't agreed, but if you put that density of population in that area the pressure on future councils will be irresistible for additional amenities such as banks and shopping centre."

Ald. Horne suggested that council was about to commit an improper breach of confidence in the proposed recreation referendum.

PACKAGE

He felt the people should be able to vote separately on the four proposed facilities, but he had been told the question should be put as a package because elderly people would approve the library, senior citizens centre and probably the swimming pool but would vote against an ice arena.

"Nothing can be gained by tying this in with recreation," retorted Mayor Hawes.

Ald. Alex Hendry said he was judging the matter on good land use.

"If the municipality didn't own the property you would have to take another look at it," he said.

Council tabled a proposal to rezone property on Foul Bay Road for a shopping centre.

Lions Name Victorian Zone Chief

Al Smith, well known Victoria pianist and veteran of 40 years in broadcasting, has been elected zone chairman of Lions International covering 10 clubs on Vancouver Island and six on the Olympic Peninsula. The election was held at a conference at Bellingham during the weekend.

Action Under Wraps

Oak Bay council met for 90 minutes Monday night but the mystery of much of the discussion lingered on after members had retired into secret session.

Council discussed and dealt variously with communications numbered 69-158 to 96-177. After the meeting Mayor Fred Hawes refused to give reporters copies of the letters.

"Write a letter to council and we'll discuss it," he said.

NO FIGURES

Communication 69-158, according to the agenda, was a memo from Ald. Frances Elford giving Greater Victoria Library Board 1967 and 1968 expenditures and the 1969 estimates. No figures were mentioned as the document was received and filed.

Bylaw 2708 for disposal of property was adopted.

No copies were available of the adopted bylaws or of two bylaws which received first three readings.

They were referred to only by number. However it was learned that one is a rezoning bylaw and the other a property disposal bylaw.

Council will hold a public hearing on an unspecified date.

Municipal Grants Listed

The four Greater Victoria municipalities will receive a total of $4,132,828 in per capita grants from the provincial government this year, it was announced Monday.

The total grants amounted to $43,121,232, up from $38,390,150 in 1968 as the result of action by the Legislature to increase per-capita payments from $25 to $28.

Saanich gets the largest grant, totalling $1,647,660, an increase of $176,535. Victoria is next with $1,608,684, and the boost amounts to $172,359.

Oak Bay gets $507,444, up $54,369, and Esquimalt is boosted by $39,540 to $369,040.

Elsewhere in the capital region, the provincial grants to Central Saanich rise $10,920 to $101,920; in North Saanich the increase is $8,673 to $80,948, and in Sidney, up $9,495 to $88,620.

Other Vancouver Island grants include Courtenay $164,108; Duncan $120,372; Nanaimo $425,264; Port Alberni $519,064; Comox $79,324.

Solarium Fund $8,400

The Queen Alexandra Solarium Junior League raised its fund total to $8,400 Monday night after canvassing the Ten Mile Point area.

"We will definitely be canvassing until the end of the month," said Mrs. R. J. Nickels, publicity chairman.

The league is aiming for $35,000 in the fund campaign. "I hope people realize we are still collecting and canvassing, and if someone has been missed in an area that has been covered, they could call the Solarium office, 384-9301, and we will pick up the donation," Mrs. Nickels said.

Cemetery Spree Brought to Halt

A wrecking spree by two juveniles Sunday in Ross Bay Cemetery was stopped by three other youths who held the boys until police arrived.

The two youths responsible for the damage will be summoned to appear in juvenile court soon on charges of wilful damage—$2,000 worth, according to police.

PHONED POLICE

The three, at about 6 p.m., were in the process of ordering the vandals to replace the tombstones they had removed, when a passerby observed their attempt and telephoned Victoria police.

"A bit of a fight" took place when the two boys, aged 13 and 14, resisted the others' demands. Police arrived before any of the boys left.

A caretaker at the cemetery said the tombstones were pushed off their foundations and smashed on surrounding curbs. Some were apparently irreplaceable, he said, because they were of polished marble imported from Scotland.

In all, 13 tombstones were damaged. A police constable spoke highly of the three boys' action, calling it "a step in the right direction."

The cemetery was also damaged by vandals during Easter weekend and has been the target of similar abuse since its start in 1872.

In 1966, 42 tombstones were damaged in a two-week period and extensive damage was done in 1963 and 1964.

Willows Goal

Three Oak Bay organizations are banding together at 9 a.m. Sunday to clean up Willows Beach.

About 40 volunteers from Oak Bay Youth Community and 75 DeMolays will aid Kiwanians in the project to give sunbathers room to relax, according to Kiwanian Norman Pimlott. Others are welcome.

Injunction Upheld

Second Setback Surprises Union

The United Brotherhood of Carpenters expressed "utter surprise and disappointment" Monday after losing another round in the battle it is waging through the courts with Yakimovich Construction Ltd.

Mr. Justice R. A. B. Wootton upheld an injunction he granted earlier in B.C. Supreme Court, prohibiting the union from picketing Yakimovich construction sites.

An application by the union's lawyer, Louis Lindholm, to have the injunction set aside was refused Monday when Mr. Justice Wootton handed down his judgment.

'DISAPPOINTMENT'

"The judgment has come as an utter surprise and disappointment to the union," said John Schibli, business agent in Victoria.

The ex parte injunction was granted when 10 of 15 workers involved in a strike swore they had voted against strike action. A secret strike vote, counted with the company lawyer in attendance, was 8-7 for a strike.

The union claimed afterward that the workers had been invited to a party at the company office and had been given promises of two years' steady employment.

The strike against Yakimovich began March 25 and the injunction stopping picketing was granted the next day.

"The Provincial Council of Carpenters is of the view that it is very wrong for an employer, or indeed anyone, to query an employee as to how he voted on a secret ballot, as it undermines the sanctity of the secrecy of the ballot upon which our democratic processes are founded," Mr. Lindholm said late Monday.

"They (the union) are accordingly disappointed that the judgment of Mr. Justice Wootton did not provide a definitive answer upon the point," he said.

MAY APPEAL

Mr. Lindholm said he expected to receive specific instructions today to appeal the judgment.

Mr. Justice Wootton said in his judgment:

"I conclude that a great principle is involved in that there should be investigated whether or not there was in fact a secret ballot as intended by the law and if proper precautions were taken thereon."

He said in his opinion the question of legality of a strike was involved, and a lawful secret ballot must precede a lawful strike.

"Conversely, where an illegal strike is charged it may flow from an illegal vote, of which in this case there is some evidence."

Two Aldermen Unhappy — Rising Taxes Main Point

Saanich Refuse Issue Revived

Two Saanich aldermen Monday night got their licks in against municipal collection of garbage, approved by council last January.

The remarks were passed during discussion of the purchase of garbage trucks.

Ald. Leslie Passmore said he was "absolutely convinced" municipal collection was going to cost a lot of money.

"And, therefore, I'm going to vote against everything all the way through."

Ald. Passmore said Saanich was planning to have a driver for every truck, "presumably at $6,000 a year."

"This means that, with 10 drivers, we'll be paying $60,000 a year, just to have them sit there and drive a few feet between pickups."

Mayor Hugh Curtis said council was discussing purchase of equipment and asked Ald. Passmore to confine his remarks to the motion.

* * *

Mr. Passmore said he didn't like, after a "terrific increase in taxation, to pile more on."

A short time later, Ald. William Noel added agreement to Ald. Passmore's words.

"My heart is not in this," said Ald. Noel. "I feel we have made a bad choice in going to municipal collection, and I hope we don't live to regret it."

Mayor Curtis said it was up to council to make sure, as it went along, that the decisions made "would be important to the efficiency of the operation." He asked Ald. Noel to confine his remarks to the issue at hand.

* * *

Council approved the purchase of two 25-yard garbage packer trucks at $26,865 each from International Harvester, and the purchase of four 16-yard packers at $20,385 each from Suburban Motors. Ald. Passmore voted against the motion, but Ald. Noel didn't.

When council was told that the two locals of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, covering inside and outside workers of the municipality, had accepted the terms of a new contract calling for wage increases of 13 and 13.52 per cent, Mayor Curtis said he thought it was "very satisfactory, from both the standpoint of the taxpayer and the employees."

Ald. Passmore said that, while he thought it was a good settlement, "an increase in wages every year can do nothing but work hardship on those on fixed incomes."

Council approved the contracts, which call for the following increases:

Outside workers — Jan. 1, 1969, 6.67 per cent; Jan. 1, 1970, 4.86 per cent; July 1, 1970, 1.99 per cent.

Inside workers — Jan. 1, 1969, 5 per cent; July 1, 1969, 2 per cent; Jan. 1, 1970, 6 per cent.

* * *

In other business council passed a motion of Ald. Edith Gunning's to send a resolution to the annual conference of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, from June 2 to 5 in Ottawa, urging financial assistance to local governments from senior governments to purchase and lease back farmlands.

Diamonds Help Fashion Style

DOROTHY WROTNOWSKI

Until Monday I thought I knew a little bit about diamonds. But even after a short talk with a Elsa Hart, a leading diamond authority, I realized my knowledge was practically nil.

Elsa is in Victoria to talk about the fascinating subject of diamonds. A graduate in marketing and economics Miss Hart first started her career when she went to work for a jewelry trade magazine as advertising director for six and a half years.

★ ★ ★

Since joining the staff of N. W. Ayer & Son of New York, Elsa has given lectures on diamonds to a wide range of both women's and men's organizations across the country, as well as appearances on TV and [illegible].

She has also attended the Gemelogican Institute in New York and done her own research in diamond laboratories.

★ ★ ★

She has also visited the diamond cutters in Israel, Amsterdam, Antwerp, studied jewel design in Switzerland, Paris and Rome—visited the central distribution houses in London.

When she tells you about diamond mining in Africa you can picture the whole thing and get a small idea of the expense of the operations.

★ ★ ★

"A rare miracle just born in structure of a perfect little prism" is her description of a diamond. Everyone knows the diamond, hardest of all minerals, precious, beautiful and enduring, is the symbol of betrothal and enduring love.

But I didn't know it was second only to fire in its use to man. Only about 20 per cent of diamonds are of jewel quality.

"So you see it isn't only a precious bauble," says Elsa.

★ ★ ★

The remaining 80 per cent are industrial diamonds and are used in many ways.

All the equipment that sends the astronauts into outer space are diamond tooled; they go into dental tools, highway equipment and now a tiny diamond knife so exacting that it can cut a molecule in half, is being used in both brain and eye operations.

★ ★ ★

Diamonds come in many colors, red is the most rare (Elsa has never seen one) and white or clear- the most valuable. The clear diamond holds the top place because when cut it gives off more beuatiful lights and fiery brilliance.

It was from India where the diamond mines are now exhausted that the word carat, used to determine the weight of the stone, originated. The seed of the carob tree was used in India centuries ago to determine the weight of the gems. Carob became Anglicized to carat.

★ ★ ★

Miss Hart has seen all the famous diamonds and although she thinks they are beautiful she loves her own jewels best.

She unwittingly has started a new fashion in gloves. Loving to wear domed rings — she had two on — one of garnets (her birthstone) and one of colored cyclotron diamonds.

These domed rings are almost impossible to wear with gloves. So Elsa just slit holes in her gloves and the domes are on the outside. This caught on among so many of the women she has met in her travels that now Kislav — one of the major glove manufacturers are putting out gloves with slits for rings.

The diamond expert says that for herself that beside being good, jewelry must serve three purposes. Her gold pin designed as a flame holds diamonds of 18 different colors including five white ones.

In the day she wears this pin on the sleeve of her suit where she can see it herself. At the cocktail hour this pin goes on the side of her cloche style hat and for evening it is pinned to the V necklines she likes.

★ ★ ★

She thinks mod fashions are sassy and fun. Such is her pendant watch which she can wear as a pendant, by adding a diamond tie tack to one end of the chain it goes from pocket to pocket on a suit and with the chain removed is pinned to the back of her glove.

Her diamond stick pin can be worn on a wide tie, on a beret or on a pocket.

"It's not bizarre — its effective and darling," she says. Just using a little imagination.

★ ★ ★

A diamond is a thing of value and Miss Hart thinks that women who own them or just desire them should know how to look after them.

Two quick home methods of keeping them beautiful are simple. Detergent Bath: In a small bowl add any mild liquid detergent to warm water. Put in pieces and brush with eyebrow brush while in suds.

Take out of suds and put in small wire strainer and rinse under warm, running water. Dry with soft cloth or tissue paper.

★ ★ ★

Cold Water Soak: Make a half and half solution of cold water and household ammonia in a cup. Soak the pieces 30 minutes. Lift out and tap gently around the back and front of the mounting with an eyebrow brush. Swish in the solution again and drain on tissue. No rinse is needed.

Miss Hart is in Victoria at the invitation of Victoria's newest jewel firm, Grassie's.

□

Mrs. Nicholson, wife of the lieutenant governor, will be in Vancouver Wednesday to open the Cordon Bleu Cooking Demonstration in the Oakridge Auditorium. The demonstration is sponsored by the Mainland Division of the Royal Commonwealth Society.

The Nicholsons will be in Vancouver Friday to attend the Military Ball in the Hotel Vancouver and receive the debutantes. Lieut. Col. H. E. Hamm will be the aide-de-camp.

Saturday evening they will attend the annual Tri-Service Cadet Ball in HMCS Discovery. Major H. McManus will be the aide-de-camp.

Cent a Quart

Mainland Dairy Boosts Prices

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jersey Farms dairy Monday announced the price of a quart of milk will be increased by one cent starting Wednesday.

A three-quart jug will increase two cents and a pound of cottage cheese and eight-once containers of yogurt will go up one cent.

A spokesman said the price raises resulted from increases paid to dairy farmers and milk truck drivers.

Managers of two Vancouver Island dairies, Northwestern Creamery and Palm Dairies, said Monday that no increase in milk prices was planned here.

Invitation by Sex

Advertisers Snub Woman Senator

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — One of the two women in the Iowa state senate said Monday the Advertising Club of Des Moines returned her money for tickets to its annual Gridiron dinner after discovering her sex.

Sen. Minnette Doderer (D-Iowa City) asked the club to leave her off its invitation list next time around.

"Once a year is too often to be singled out for your insult," she said.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Doderer said she sent the club a $30 cheque to pay for tickets for herself and her husband.

"The advertisers discovered the senator from Johnson (County) is a woman and brought my cheque back, with a sorry, you aren't wanted, statement," said Mrs. Doderer.

She said she is "aware that the advertising industry hasn't had a high regard for the American woman for some time as demonstrated by their ads."

★ ★ ★

"Today is a black tornado, no oleo crown, dirty floors, no bathroom tissue squeezing day for me," she said.

Mrs. Doderer said the advertising club, "took away my crown, my tissue, my floor wax, my coffee and carved my name on the list that forevermore will not be allowed to pay $15 for the privilege of wining and dining with the image-makers."

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I'm so mad right now if I had a gun I think I'd shoot my mother. She slammed the telephone receiver on the grooviest guy in school. I heard her say. "Marilyn has talked on the phone enough for one evening. Call her tomorrow."

I had just finished talking for quite awhile to my girlfriend. If I had known Nate was going to call me I'd have been off a lot sooner.

Now I'm so humiliated I don't think I will ever be able to look Nate in the face. Please, Ann, say something to mothers who act rude and embarrass their daughters.—Wendy

Dear Wendy: Your mother should have allowed you to take the call and slipped you a note after five minutes.

Cure Telephonitis

For the future I suggest that all teenagers who have telephonitis (which includes just about all teenagers) sit down with their parents and decide how much time should be allotted to phone conversations, also how many calls will be permitted. Once that formula is established there should be no more trouble. P.S.: The following letter is not from your father. This reader lives 2,000 miles from you!

□

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell me what to do about our 14-year-old daughter. She talks on the phone all day and all night. Yesterday afternoon they tried to call me five times from my place of business and couldn't get me. I lost a good account because of it.

That nutty kid has tied up our phone singing songs, playing records and reciting poems. One night she and her idiot boyfriend spent nearly an hour just listening to each other breathe.

My wife says this is all right. I say it is crazy. What do you say? We'll abide by your decision.—Irate Father.

Letters to GIs

Dear Father: The answer is found in the advice to the letter above. I hope wour whole family read it.

□

Dear Ann Landers: I keep hearing the boys in Vietnam are lonesome and want to receive letters. The other day a man on the radio said it is the patriotic duty of every American to do as much for our boys in uniform as possible.

If the boys want mail why don't they write back? My girlfriend wrote to two GIs (she got their names from a cousin stationed in Da Nang) and she never got an answer. I have written to three different guys and the one in Hue wrote back and said he likes to receive mail but he isn't good at writing and not to expect any replies.

Do you believe a girl should keep on writing to a fellow even if he doesn't answer — as a patriotic gesture, I mean.—Empty Box.

Dear Empty: Sometimes mail goes astray — so don't judge the boys too harshly. Give each GI a second chance. If after two letters you receive no reply, save your stamps, Toots.

Socialite, Powell's Son Will Wed Next Month

NEW YORK (UPI) — Beryl Slocum, Newport socialite and descendant of Miles Standish, is engaged to the son of Harlem Congressman Adam Clayton Powell and will marry next month, a member of the Slocum family said Monday.

Miss Slocum, 1960 debutante of the year, and Adam Clayton Powell III, a producer for the Columbia Broadcasting System, will be wed in Washington with the date to be announced within the next few days.

★ ★ ★

Powell's flamboyant father, pastor of the Abyssinian Baptist Church in Harlem, was not expected to perform the ceremony.

Powell, 22, lived with his mother, who was divorced from his father, in Paris and then returned to the United States to study at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. His mother, Hazel Scott, is a famous jazz pianist.

★ ★ ★

Miss Slocum, 26, a graduate of Radcliffe, is a cousin of Mrs. John Drexel III, current leader of Newport, R.I., society.

In addition to Standish, Miss Slocum's ancestors can be traced back to Roger Williams, founder of Rhode Island, and Chad Brown, the founder of Brown University.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Jermain Slocum, maintain homes in Newport, Long Island and Washington.

ERMA BOMBECK Buys Off Guilt

Good Time Justified

Following a lecture recently, the good club ladies drove me to the airport. They watched mesmerized as I raced through the gift shop grabbing up a Chinese back scratcher, a plastic flowered rain bonnet and a Frankenstein doll (which when wound up, the pants fell down).

"Do you always take your children something home when you've been gone?" they asked, rather amused.

"Yes," I said, "I buy their affection to cover up for my guilt complex for leaving them in the first place."

★ ★ ★

They laughed. I didn't. I daresay there isn't a mother alive who doesn't feel some guilt for anything you can think of. When a small infant cries, a mother feels guilt because she is going to the dentist to have a swell time while her child is left at home with only $200 worth of toys, a licensed sitter and two television sets.

I feel guilty when I don't get the table fork with the bent prongs.

I feel guilty when I take the last chop on the plate.

I feel guilty eating potato chips after I've put the kids to bed.

I feel guilty hiding the Elmer's glue.

★ ★ ★

I feel guilty locking the bathroom door and acting like I'm not home.

I feel guilty for not being a den mother. (I don't even have a son in Scouting.)

I know some sanctimonious, well-adjusted woman will write and attempt to set me straight. A few amateur psychologists will quote Freud and Jung, but it won't do any good.

A friend of mine dropped into my kitchen one day, her hair disheveled, her hands shaking with rage as she confided, "My God. I just realized, I'm not maternal."

"Have you told your four boys about it yet?"

★ ★ ★

"No, but I think they suspect. One of them was telling me about a Walt Disney movie. It took him longer to relate it than it did to make it. I was so bored I wanted to put a zipper in his mouth. What a way for a mother to feel. I got impatient when I told them eight times to wash their faces and they kept answering, 'Where are we going?' I'm ashamed of myself for what I was thinking."

Guilt complexes have nothing whatsoever to do with love. They have everything to do with how much of yourself you should give to how many for how long.

Somewhere along the line mothers were told they had to feel pain and sacrifice and when they get to having a good time they must justify it. I do it with a Chinese back scratcher, a plastic flowered rain bonnet and a Frankenstein doll (which when wound up, the pants fall down). It's cheap at the price.

Charles Becomes Another Student

ABERYSTWYTH (AP) — Prince Charles began settling in Monday as just another student in Wales and took to wandering without ceremony among the people of Aberystwyth.

It was a trouble-free initiation to the Welsh way of life, lacking anything remotely approaching the predicted nationalist outcry.

★ ★ ★

"The prince has not seen a single sign of hostility since he arrived here Sunday," said his equerry from Buckingham Palace, Sqdn. Ldr. David Checketts. "There's nothing but friendliness."

The 20-year-old heir to the throne moved without formality Monday morning into the University College of Wales, where he will study for the next nine weeks under the name of Mr. Charles Windsor.

★ ★ ★

Using the royal family's own name without frills is part of the plan to present Charles as no different from any other student. His tutors quickly gave him a load of reading matter to take away.

Charles left the university building Monday to go shopping in the town, followed by a friendly crowd.

His purchases were seven coat hangers and 12 picture hooks. The total expense was no more than £1.

★ ★ ★

Unlike many members of the Royal Family, Charles had money on him and paid with a banknote. Bills for royal purchases are normally sent to Buckingham Palace for payment.

The streets of Aberystwyth seemed nearly clear of uniformed police. There are at least 100 in this seaside resort.

Tricky Bikini

VIENNA (AP)—An Autrian firm is marketing a bikini that it claims permits tanning of the skimpy areas it covers. The secret is a new cotton cloth that is supposed to permit up to 50 per cent of the sun's rays to pass through.

Fertilizer Aids Beard Bonanza

MARCH, England (CP) — Reg Jackson makes about £8 a year from his face, selling the trimmings from his bushy beard to a Cambridge wigmaker every two months. "I rub in a handful of liquid fertilizer every night," says the 28-year-old railway worker.

Always Look Ageless

To get an ageless look, you must first make all the little age lines in your facial skin so inconspicuous they won't be seen by people at greeting distance from you. Or, better yet, get rid of them altogether. Ask your favorite cosmetician for a bottle of 2nd Debut, the lotion that women everywhere are calling their secret face lift. This lotion contains CEF (Cellular Expansion Factor) that expands underneath lines to push them upward so they level with the skin's surface and thereby become invisible. This smoothed-out appearance of the skin gives the face an ageless look that favors its wearer with an almost unlimited variety in her choice of clothes.

High Scores Mark Festival School Section

By BERT BINNY

After a brief respite over the weekend, the Greater Victoria music festival was off again in high gear Monday morning.

This is the week for the schools section and there were classes all day for brasses, woodwinds, strings, orchestras and dancers.

The brass players lost no time in going to the top when trombonist Richard Carswell and trumpeter Paul Iverson scored 95 and 93, respectively, in the morning session. Another trombonist, John Gibson, received an excellent 88.

★ ★ ★

Susan Emery scored 86 with her French born in the senior class.

Barton Frank of Washington State University adjudicated four classes in the strings division during the morning but only one of the classes was contested — for violin solos, under 14.

Gwendolen Hoebig, 9, of Noeth Vancouver, entered the under 14 and came out tied for first with Stephen Calder. Each scored 86.

★ ★ ★

And these 86s were the highest mark in the string section.

Massive and colorful, the dance classes opened in the morning at Victoria High before adjudicator Erma Weir of Oregon State University.

As in the case of bands, dancers are not marked but are graded — 1 is excellent, 2 is very good, 3 is good, 4 is average and 5 is fair. This is the first year this method of comparison has entered the dance division.

★ ★ ★

By these standards nobody was less than good and half the entrants were excellent, which only presents a vague picture of the standings to the outside world.

However the participants receive good advice and pointers for future improvement from the adjudicators, which is more important than marks.

★ ★ ★

Dance classes continued throughout the afternoon with six different schools rating excellent. These were Quadra, Uplands and Cloverdale, all in the Grade 4 folk dance class; Fairburn school in the Grade 6 folk dance, and Glanford and View Royal in the Grades 5 and 6 (girls only) folk dance.

And only one of the 15 entries fell below the grade of very good.

Classes for recorders were held at Oak Bay junior high with Dr. Frank Gamble of UBC adjudicating.

Here again grades rather than points were used.

An outstanding performer at the afternoon session of brass and woodwind competition was flutist Rosalind Scott, who received a high mark of 87 in the junior woodwind division.

Oak Bay senior high's flute quartet earned 88 points and the Mount View clarinet quartet outdid everybody with 94.

At Sir James Douglas school, string classes also continued in the afternoon.

★ ★ ★

Miss Gwendolen Hoebig won the Junior concerto class handily with 92.

"She played like a master," said adjudicator Frank, "It's really quite amazing."

Gwendolen then teamed with her brother Desmond, a cellist who will be eight years old in October, and won the open string duet class with 95 points. No higher mark has yet been awarded in the Festival.

Programmed for Monday evening were five chamber ensembles and one senior orchestra. The former included the ensembld of Bruce Turkington, Ron Comber, David Knight and B. Nisbet, in which the first named was also the composer of the selection offered.

The Greater Victoria schools senior orchestra, unopposed and described by Mr. Frank as "very, very fine," received marks of 80 and 91 for its two selections.

Only four of the five programmed ensembles performed. The Bruce Turkington composition was noted by the adjudicator as "simple material very well developed" and Mr. Frank added the composer had "a good talent for writing."

★ ★ ★

And, it would seem, for playing too. Bruce and his associates led the class with 91 points followed by 88 for Nancy Meredith, Joyce Menting, Wendy Stofer and Stephen Calder.

Classes in brass, woodwinds, strings and dancing continue morning and afternoon today with bands taking the spotlight in the evening.

The important Congress of Strings class, with three competitors on the program, is scheduled for 3.15 p.m. at Sir James Douglas school.

The winner goes, with all expenses paid, to the 1969 Summer Congress of Strings at Michigan State University. This award is donated by the Victoria Musicians Association, Local 247, A.F. of M.

Double Distilled whisky is really catching on!

After only 60 years.

Since we started making Double Distilled in 1908, this British Columbia whisky has enjoyed loyal but limited support throughout the province. Now, suddenly, the word about its unsurpassed value is getting around. Sales are soaring, and today Double Distilled stands on the verge of mass popularity. Which, in all modesty, prompts us to ask: Isn't it about time? B.C. DOUBLE DISTILLED

"You can't run a business without getting behind the counter once in a while."

Pres., Avis Rent a Car.

The Avis management philosophy.

Avis isn't exactly a penny ante operation these days. In fact, it looks as though we're going to be No. 1 in rent a cars before we're very much older.

And even though we're not complaining, we are a bit leery of the whole idea. It's not so much worry about getting too big as it is about getting too big for our britches.

Which is exactly why Avis executives like to stay as close to the counter as they can. It's where trying harder takes place. It's where our Plymouths have to have headlights that light, wipers that wipe, and ashtrays without any ashes.

So if you find the President of Avis filling out your rental form at one of our airport counters, don't be surprised.

With a little practice, he could fill it out almost as fast as our girls.

Sirhan Jury Undecided Another Session Today

From Wire Reports

The jury deliberating the fate of Sirhan Sirhan, the accused slayer of Sen. Robert Kennedy, was unable to reach a decision after 2½ hours Monday afternoon.

The jury members went back to their Los Angeles hotel and will resume deliberation this morning.

If the jury — the same which convicted Sirhan of first-degree murder last Thursday — is unable to reach a unanimous decision, Judge Herbert Walker may set the sentence if both prosecution and defence attorneys agree.

Walker placed Sirhan's fate in the hands of the jury earlier Monday, telling the panel to determine "whether this man shall suffer the death penalty or shall be permitted to remain alive."

The jurors are deciding whether Sirhan should be sent to the gas chamber or to prison for life.

The prosecution didn't mention death in its final appeal, asking the jury only to "exercise your awesome responsibility" in fixing the penalty.

Earlier, Sirhan was stoic as his own lawyer, Grant Cooper, appealed to the seven-man, five-woman jury not to seek revenge but to put the senator's killer behind bars for the rest of his life.

Cooper quoted from one of Kennedy's own speeches in his plea to the jury to spare Sirhan's life.

In a climax in which he himself appeared close to tears, Cooper turned and faced Sirhan across the room and said:

"Sirhan Sirhan, I have done all I can for you . . . your fate is in the hands of an American jury."

Two Killed, 32 Injured

Train Wrecked in Cold Blood

TORONTO (CP) — Police Monday were searching for a saboteur who sent a passenger train hurtling off the tracks near Toronto International Airport Sunday, killing two persons and injuring 32.

A police spokesman said the person who tampered with switches knew how to wreck a train and coldly prepared to do it.

★ ★ ★

He said police and CNR officials have not discounted the possibility that children or a deranged person caused the derailment.

The CNR's train No. 151, an express carrying 172 passengers from Toronto to Sarnia, Ont., smashed into a line of stationary tank-cars in a siding after hitting an open switch at 60 miles an hour at 5:40 p.m.

Fireman Charles Baker, 44, of Sarnia, died under two feet of mud when one of the two diesel units flipped on its side and settled in marshy ground just south of Woodbine racetrack in northwest Toronto.

Gladys Brennan, 18, of Barker's Point, N.B., was crushed in the vestibule between two cars and rescuers had to hook a diesel on to the wrecked cars to separate them and free her body.

Only two of the injured persons were kept in hospital overnight.

John Noel, public relations manager for the railway, said investigators found hacksaw marks on a padlock holding the switch.

"It had been sawn through and the switch was deliberately turned, sending the train into the siding."

★ ★ ★

Noel said the engineer could have no idea anything was wrong until he could actually see the open rails.

"Our switches have targets which point in the direction for which the switch is lined. In this instance, the target showed the siding was enclosed and main line was open."

He said the switches are checked at least once daily.

Keith Day, 21, who works at Woodbine racetack, described how he saw the crash.

"The front engine came to a dead stop," he said. "Then the second engine ran off the track and flipped the first passenger car right over."

Three other passenger cars on the six-car train jackknifed but remained on their wheels.

Marine Hits the Beach Then 'Invades' Towns

Colonist Los Angeles Times Service

OCEANSIDE, Calif.—It was the track marks that first caught the attention of officer T. S. Wilkins as he was patrolling early Monday along the darkened streets of Oceanside.

Like a hunter, Wilkins followed the tracks warily, up one street, down another. And then, lo, there it was—a 35-ton amphibious tractor.

At the controls was a Marine, Pte. Randall Waldrop, 18, of Camp Pendleton, Calif.

The policeman activated his emergency light and siren. The landing vehicle accelerated. Another patrol car approached head-on but the driver wisely pulled to the side as the Amtrac came barreling through.

Waldrop wasn't about to give up that easily, not after having stolen the vehicle from Pendleton, piloted it two miles through the ocean, and made a successful amphibious assault on the beach at Oceanside.

Waldrop rumbled across the beach, rattled through a residential area and headed for the main business district, the two police cars in his wake. It wasn't that they couldn't catch up—the Amtrac's top land speed is 30 m.p.h.—as that they didn't know quite what to do once they did.

★ ★ ★

After a time Waldrop pointed his 30-foot troop carrier toward neighboring Carlsbad, where the script was repeated. After having covered about 50 blocks in the two towns, leaving a trail of damaged streets and curbs, Waldrop looked for new worlds to conquer. He headed for Interstate 5.

By this time seven patrol cars were in on the chase. The Marine led them south for a mile and a half on the freeway, when several of the cars were able to slow the Amtrac to a point where it stalled.

After a ride of 15 miles, the adventure was over. Waldrop surrendered to authorities. He gave no explanation.

Death Ends Tavern Siege

Hot Day's Cool Beer Cut Off by Sniper

SAN BENITO, Tex. (AP) — It was a hot afternoon in South Texas and Henry Ybarra wanted some cold beer. He was on his second bottle when a bullet smashed through a tavern window and nicked his scalp.

A second bullet creased the foot of Joe Velarde, standing at the bar nearby.

Shots from the hidden sniper's .22-calibre rifle continued to ring out for nearly two hours, most of them hitting the tavern, while police tried to determine where the sniper was.

He was located on the roof of a two-storey building across the street when he gave himself away by tossing down some beer cans.

The sniper, George Salinas Fernandez, 40, was shot and killed by Abram Tamayo, a city employee deputized to help the police. Two bullets caught him in the shoulder and upper chest.

Police identified Fernandez as an unemployed laborer. They said his motive for the shootings was unknown.

Mississippi's Fury Spent on Islands

From UPI

The glutted Mississippi River, rolling along at one if its highest crests of the century, spent its fury on islands and other unprotected lowlands Monday and pounded in vain at dikes protecting major riverside communities.

Sightseers gave flood fighters more trouble than muddy floodwaters along the front lines of the battle against Old Man River in some communities.

The raging Mouse (Souris) River kept Minot, N.D., under watery seige—with 12,000 residents out of homes in flooded areas. The Red River of the North dropped steadily at Fargo, N.D., where workers began removing temporary dikes.

The Mississippi was above flood stage at nearly all reporting stations from Libby, Minn., to Cape Girardeau, Mo. The river Levee in downtown St. Louis, Mo., was closed to automobile traffic as the water swirled at the curbs at the foot of Washington Street near the famed Gateway Arch.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Driving gloves are made to last as long as all those family cars that can't take the family after two years. You know, the ones you see in every used car lot in town.

If you're looking there for a Corona, don't bother. You won't find one till 1971 maybe.

Because Corona is built to take the tough life. The 90 horsepower oversquare engine does zero to 40,000 easily. Cruises at 80 all day. And won't get you pushed into the "Slow vehicles keep right" lane going uphill. Unlike some imports we can name.

Just because Corona is built to take the rough life doesn't mean you have to rough it. Corona is thickly carpeted. The vinyl bucket seats recline fully. Three-point seat belts, padded dash and an optional automatic are all part of the soft life inside a Corona.

There's more. Smooth syncromesh four-on-the-floor. Quad headlights. Two-speed wipers. Emergency flashers all make life a little easier. All at no extra cost.

If replacing your driving gloves is a major repair, you must be driving a Corona too.

9 IN MEMORIAM

THOMAS—In loving memory of our mother and grandmother, Mrs. Fanny Thomas, who passed away April 22, 1968.

"Sunshine passes, shadows fall, Fond remembrance outlasts all."

—Always remembered by her daughters Frances, Kitty, Dorothy, Eileen and families.

WELLS — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, George Wells, who passed away suddenly April 22, 1965.

His smiling way and pleasant face
Are a pleasure to recall;
He had a kindly word for each
And died beloved by all.
Some day we hope to meet him,
Some day, we know not when,
To clasp his hand in the better land
Never to part again:

—Ever remembered by his loving wife, Lilian, and daughter Shirley.

BRUCE LOWTHER
AbouTV

PEOPLE AND PROGRAMS: The latest on the Smothers Brothers is that they talked to ABC about a series next fall, but nothing was firmed. Smotherses reruns will end on CBS June 15 and cancellation of their 1969-70 season also killed their special summer series. But they're not short of cash — their production company turns out the Glen Campbell show and has a piece of Hair.

Fred Astaire, who's around 70, has signed with ABC's It Takes a Thief to become a semi-regular next season. He'll play the superthief-father of star Robert Wagner . . . As NBC's Name of the Game began working on its new season, Tony Franciosa unexpectedly rejected a script. The producers maintained their schedule by replacing him with Darren McGavin for the episode, and may do so for the series as well.

□

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Saturday's subjective answer — In TV's olden days, Wally Cox was Mr. Peepers, and in its now days, Minnie Pearl wears a price tag in her hat. Otherwise, Roger Price invented Droodles, Stan Freberg's puppet was Gover and the Martians or Orson Welles' 1938 War of the Worlds landed in Grover's Mill, N.J. Wasn't that sneaky!

Today's question — Some show business trademarks, or what show-biz folk are tied to That Wonderful Year, peapickers and You Bet Your Life? Who is Her Nibs? And who was My Friend Irma on both radio and TV? The absolutely-amazing answers Wednesday.

"Back to Hamlet's soliloquy in a moment, but first . . ."

Winning Contract

By HOWARD SCHENKEN and RICHARD L. FREY

A faulyt choice between two alternative lines of play frequently leads to a big swing at match play.

When the declarer is an average performer, such a choice is termed "a misplay." When he is an expert, it is termed "a wrong view."

In this deal from the Spring Nationals both declarers reached the same contract but only one got home.

Opening lead: Spade king

West opened with a bid of one spade and South became declarer at five clubs. West opened with the spade king and then existed with a diamond.

In Room 1 the declarer began with A-K of trumps. West showed out on the second round and South could do no better than play a third trump to East's queen.

Declarer ruffed the spade return in dummy, entered his hand with the last trump, and led the heart queen, covered by the king and ace. If this suit had been 3-3, declarer would have had the rest of the tricks, but in the actual layout he could not enjoy the long hearts and was set 200 points.

In Room 2, the first two tricks were the same but the declarer made a far superior play at trick three. Realizing that, on the bidding, the heart king was sure to be well placed, and that he could afford to lose a trump trick, he initiated trumps by leading small from the table.

East won the queen and returned a spade, ruffed in dummy. The declarer then drew two more rounds of trumps, finishing in his own hand.

He took the heart finesse and, still holding a trump in each hand, was able to ruff a heart and claim the rest.

Nootka Band Chooses Young Chief

Story and Picture
By BETTY MACMILLAN

GOLD RIVER — Jerry Jack was selected chief councilor of the Nootka Indian Band at elections held Saturday. Mr. Jack received 10 votes, Andrew Jack, six and Wilfred Andrew, five.

Out of 82 eligible voters, there were 21 ballots cast.

Thomas Dick, with 18 votes, and John Charlie, with 14, were elected as councillors over David Andrew who received nine votes.

Electoral Officer Tom Moffat, assistant superintendent of the West Coast Agency said band members travelled from Friendly Cove, Tasis, Victoria and Port Alberni to cast their ballots.

The results of the election, he explained, are subject to confirmation by Ottawa.

★ ★ ★

Mr. Moffat said that 31-year-old Mr. Jack is the youngest chief of the 14 bands in the West Coast Agency from Nitnat to Kayouquot.

Ceremonies followed the election.

Mr. Jack who is hereditary Chief of the Moachats, one of the bands which amalgamated to form the Nootka Band, donned a ceremonial robe embroidered with Indian designs in traders' buttons, identical to the one worn by his great frandfather.

His brother Andrew Jack then gave the ancient chant which was roughly translated by Mrs. Ambrose Howard as: "I can hear spirits of my forefathers. The spirits say please listen to what we are saying. Be with you people now so that everything will go good whatever he does, this our councillor now."

Mr. Jack appointed his brother Andrew Jack as secretary.

★ ★ ★

The chief councillor read a letter advising that the lieut.-governor would be paying a visit to Friendly Cove May 26, arriving at 6 p.m. and departing at 6 a.m. May 27.

He appointed Wilfred Andrew as chairman in charge of preparing the church basement at Friendly Cove for the official visit.

Mr. Jack's first official function as chief councillor was to present a cheque for $1,000 to Pat Costello, Chairman of the Kinsmen X-ray Fund. This contribution from the Nootka Band brings the total in the fund to over $6,300.

Jaycee Probers Back CAY Role

NANAIMO—A four-man Jaycee committee said Monday night it will recommend continued Jaycee support for the Committee for the Advancement of Youth.

The statement from the Jaycee committee came after a two-hour meeting with CAY representatives, called to discuss last week's controversial speech to Jaycees by ex-Simon Fraser student Michel La Lain.

The CAY representatives reiterated a statement they issued earlier when they told the Jaycee committee that Mr. La Lain's views—which included charges of Mafia-organized drug traffic in Nanaimo—were entirely his own, and that he had no connection with CAY.

The youth group spokesmen said the introduction of Mr. La Lain at the Jaycee meeting as an advisor to CAY was a mistake.

Jaycee vice-president Bill House and members Ron Biggs, Don Gardner, and Larry Scott attended the meeting.

CAY president Jim Morgan stressed that persons found in their group either using or distributing illegal drugs would be ejected immediately.

They said this would be the same reaction they would have to drunks, or rowdies trying to get into any CAY activities.

CAY has held several functions, at least one of which was attended by 900 people. All have been without incident.

One of the CAY members said, "If the time comes when we can't maintain law and order ourselves, there is no point in continuing.

The Jaycee commmittee agreed that although they could not speak for the membership at this time, they personally were convinced CAY deserved Jaycee support and would recommend this to their membership later this week.

They told the CAY the Jaycees would be making a public statement about the group's decision.

On Sunday evening, CAY's directors met for more than four hours to discuss the situation before issuing a statement that Mr. La Lain did not represent the committee and that his views were not those of the committee.

"Mr. Morgan felt that the Jaycees would be interested in listening to an outside view on the crucial problem of youth today," said the statement.

"It is most unfortunate that, due to a misinterpretation, the impression was left that the views and beliefs of Mr. La Lain were those of the CAY."

Members of the Jaycees said in interviews before Monday's meeting that there was no misinterpretation, but there was a misrepresentation.

SENIOR ADVISOR

Larry Scott, former Jaycee Vancouver Island district president, said that Mr. La Lain "was introduced, specifically, as a senior advisor to the CAY . . . as the man who was going to start a newspaper and drama club in the CAY."

Contract Ends Strike

Fifteen Victoria shop-workers were back on the job Monday after ending a 12-day millwork strike which had threatened to spread to numerous construction sites.

The strike ended officially Sunday night. It was confined to workers at Builders Sash and Door Ltd., 485 Burnside. A new two-year contract covers these men and about 28 others at millwork and cabinet shops in Nanaimo, Duncan, Courtenay and Port Alberni.

MINORITY BOOST

John Schibli, business agent for the United Brotherhood of Carpenters in Victoria, said the majority of the men—all members of his union—would get four wage increases totalling 54 cents an hour. This will bring the top wage to $3.97 by Oct. 1, 1970, he said.

Wage increases of 44 cents have been agreed upon for a minority of workers.

The union had sought 60 cents over two years, an agreement reached recently for millworkers on the B.C. mainland.

During the course of the strike, the union had warned that pickets would be posted on any construction site accepting products from the Victoria shop. Such action was carried out at Duncan when the union charged products had been received at a Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce project.

NEVER TOO LATE!

FULFORD — When it's daffodil time in Victoria, it's Christmas on Salt Spring Island.

It wasn't planned that way but when the island's old age pensioners' committee planned a Christmas dinner and party last year, the weather put Salt Spring in a deep-freeze. So it was decided to postpone the dinner until the weather improved.

TURKEY DINNER

Recently, officials decided that it was time the dinner was held so out came the turkeys, complete with trimmings — and surrounded by daffodils.

About 147 senior citizens attended the event and they were wished a "Merry Christmas, with daffodils," by Archdeacon G. H. Holmes as he said grace.

After dinner, there were presentations to workers who had helped with the party. They included Mrs. St. Onge, Mrs. Stan Kitchener, Mrs. Joan Hayward and Mrs. Van Buskirk who each received a cup and saucer.

LIFE CERTIFICATE

The organization's secretary Mrs. Elsie Thatcher was presented with a life certificate by Dr. Holmes when tribute was paid to her work for the Old Age Pensioners Organization.

Entertainment was provided for the party by the Irl Bradley Trio consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Bradley and their daughter, Mrs. Steve La Fortune, and J. Cranswick.

Rites Held For Farm Pioneer

A Victoria pioneer and retired dairy farmer was cremated Monday after funeral services in Sands chapel.

James Paul Townsend, 75, of 536 Johnson, died Friday. He came to Victoria 72 years ago from Woodstock, Ont., with his parents, who originally began raising cattle at Foul Bay and Oak Bay.

Another family farm expanded to cover nearly all of the Mount Tolmie area from Lansdowne to Cedar Hill. It was called Cornberry Park Dairy Farm.

He is survived by his wife, Betty; a daughter, Mrs. Marieta Hollingsworth; a brother, Vincent; three grandchildren, all of Victoria, and a sister, Mrs. Gladys Vernon-Martin of Vancouver.

Skipper Fined for Oil Flow

CHEMAINUS—Norwegian freighter Ariel accidentally discharged about two tons of bunker oil into Chemainus harbor early Sunday.

On Monday, Capt. Alex Jonassen was fined $500 after pleading guilty in Chemainus Magistrate's Court.

Harbormaster Barry Guilbride said the captain notified the authorities of the accident at 8 a.m. Sunday.

Mr. Guilbride said the oil ran into the harbor when it was being transferred from one tank into another and accidentally overflowed onto the deck.

He said the captain and ship's officers were very upset about the incident.

Immediate action was taken, said Mr. Guilbride, and nine 45-gallon barrels of detergent were used to break up the oil during Sunday and Monday mornings.

Comox-Alberni Irregularities?

Byelection Appeal Likely

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI — Comox-Alberni Liberals are not giving up.

Former MP Richard Durante said Monday that they were not going to call for a judicial recount of votes cast in the April 8 byelection. Instead, "in all probability, we will take action under the Controverted Elections Act," he said.

That was the act under which Tom Barnett of the NDP forced the byelection when he appealed the June election.

The final count in the April election gave Mr. Barnett 12,611 votes to Mr. Durante's 12,357.

Mr. Durante is claiming that a number of ineligible voters cast ballots in the byelection.

He said that the party's legal advisors are investigating the reported irregularities.

"It is not necessary to have a judicial recount if the matter is taken to the courts," said Mr. Durante.

Because of residence requirements in the byelection, he felt it was remarkable that there were so many more on the voters' lists compared to the June figure.

He expressed surprise that Returning Officer Colin Wilson "should take the suggestion of irregularities personally. It is not a reflection on Mr. Wilson.

Mr. Durante said he knew that Comox-Alberni needed representation in Ottawa and "I know that there is some danger of it becoming a laughing stock. However, I have had so many phone calls that we feel we must pursue this."

Projector Loan Protested

PORT ALBERNI — A protest about the loan of school projectors to community groups was made by the Alberni Valley Film Council Monday during a school board meeting at Port Alberni.

A delegation said the council had been renting projectors at a nominal fee, to member groups for years. It felt the Valley might lose the service, as had happened in Duncan and Nanaimo, if the practice contined.

Trustees asked school superintendent James Evans to send a memorandum to all schools advising them to refer requests for projectors to the film council.

UVic Exhibit Praised As Superior in Quality

By INA D. D. UHTHOFF

Jack Shadbolt's brilliant speech for the opening of the current exhibition of the work of the students of the School of Fine Arts at the University of Victoria paid tribute to the rapport between the students and their instructors.

He commented upon the superiority of the work shown here to much that is in the limelight in Vancouver. It is representative of what is happening in the new wave of art that is sweeping the world today. There is the element of risk that carried the work into new dimensions and justifies the courage shown by the leaders of this revolt against the obvious in art.

With an art department like the one we have at the University of Victoria, anything seems possible, and the stimulation provided by the liveliness of a show of this outstanding quality will have its effect on many.

A top-ranking art department university.

What is astonishing is that here in Victoria this has been achieved with so little fanfare.

★ ★ ★

I must admit that I have been staggered by the power shown in the work of our artists in training, most of them far outpacing the older generation of established painters, sculptors or graphic artists.

It was a wonderful opening night April 15, a virile crowd of young men in varied hairstyles and intriguing tailoring, some lovely young girl students in miniskirts, with beautiful legs and well brushed, lustrous hair flowing freely, making one think of young Greek goddesses.

This was my first contact with the students of the School of Fine Arts at the University of Victoria.

One hears rumors of dissatisfaction among some of the university staff for so large a portion of the timetable being devoted to art at the expense of the classics. But surely there is time for both.

The Art Gallery of Greater Victoria is to be congratulated in leading the way to more recognition of the importance of art in the daily life of our city.

The show will continue until the end of the month and should not be missed.

Here is a fine opportunity to buy paintings, sculpture, pottery and graphics at prices that will yield a handsome profit when these young artists corner the market.

One Business May Lose 'Up to $100,000'

Air Strike Takes Bloom Off Flowers

Emergency flight services being mobilized across the nation will do little to help Victoria's flower-growing industry — now in its peak season and losing thousands of dollars daily.

A "conservative estimate" of the loss caused by the Air Canada shutdown which began Sunday night is $5,000 to $6,000 a day for G. A. Vantreight, the area's largest grower.

Mr. Vantreight said the business stood to lose as much as $100,000, "and the biggest part of that is mine."

DAILY FLIGHTS

Meanwhile, the Canadian transport commission has approved a series of emergency flight services from coast to coast. CP Air has been given approval for as many daily flights on its transcontinental run between Montreal and Vancouver as it can handle for the duration of the strike.

However, CP Air has placed an embargo on perishable goods, in anticipation of the concentration of passenger and mail cargoes.

Mr. Vantreight has "tens of thousands of dollars in flowers to ship. I'm in a bad, bad way," he said. "It's one of the worst reverses I've ever had." Many of the grounded flowers would go east for Mother's Day, May. 11.

DUCKLINGS, TOO

Another industry that stands to lose money is the duckling business. Victor Odlum of Sidney Duck Farm says he could lose $600 apiece on five shipments of 1,000 day-old ducklings.

Mr. Odlum, whose market is mainly on the Prairies, says he is forced by the air strike to find all his orders in Edmonton — accessible by Canadian National Railways — or let several thousand ducklings die.

The ducklings are shipped as soon as they hatch and have 30 hours' survival time. Otherwise, "they're getting a little long in the tooth," said Mr. Odlum, Ducklings cannot be shipped by trailer truck, where there is no ventilation, or unpressurized aircraft. CPR will not take the ducklings.

U.S. ROUTES

For both flowers and ducklings, the U.S. routes are too complicated, with customs and certification problems, to provide alternatie transportation.

Postmaster-General Eric Kierans said Monday in the House of Commons that his department is using "other airlines, the CNR and chartering other planes." As many planes as needed would be charterd.

MP CONCERNED

Esquimalt-Saanich MP David Anderson suggested that transport department and armed forces aircraft might be used to move the mail. He said he was concerned about flower growers here being unable to ship the products of their brief season.

Four small carriers have been authorized to carry traffic between Vancouver and Victoria. They are B.C. Airlines, Airwest, Staron Flight Ltd., and Harrison Airways. They will use a variety of aircraft on the runs.

Miracle Budget Curtis' Topic

By DON GAIN

The Social Credit government's million-dollar budget — "the so-called miracle budget" — has done little to ease the concern of ratepayers on a fixed income, Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis said Monday in an address to the Gyro Cub of Victoria.

He said "the root of the problem is found in the fact that there is no established general formula for grant increases to local government in this province, nor has there been any attempt to set such a generally predictable adjustment."

QUIET WAIT

Instead, he said, municipalities have to wait quietly for the legislative session and the announcement by the finance minister that the per-capital local government grant for this year "will be X dollars more than last year."

"It seems to me," he added, "that it would be relatively easy to establish a fixed scale, payments on which would rise and fall in direct ratio to provincial revenues."

Speaking of Saanich's mill-rate increase this year — 3.9 per cent — the mayor said it had been cut from a possible 7.5 per cent. Last year's increase was only .3 mills, he said.

"In retrospect, this was probably too low. But the 1968 rate took into account a significant jump in the per capita grant from the province — where an adjustment in the sliding scale, covering payments to various size municipalities, was eliminated.

"This worked to the benefit of larger local units such as Saanich, Victoria, Burnaby and Surrey — and to the disadvantage of the smaller centres.

"In other words, our revenues in 1968 jumped quite satisfactorily."

Auto Firm Damaged By Fire

Fire gutted a section of Horwood Bros. Motors Ltd., late Monday night, causing an estimated $45,000 worth of damage.

Assistant Victoria Chief Alfred Perry said the blaze was probably caused by faulty wiring. The fire began just before 10 p.m. and was under control 30 minutes later.

Damage to rear part of the building was about $35,000 and about $10,000 worth of stock was destroyed. Some cars in the building were moved to safety, the fire department said.

President Gordon Horwood was not available for comment.

They're Free!

In last Sunday's column it was my great pleasure to announce the third of our Colonist free seed offers for 1969 — this time seeds of a particularly charming flower from the Transvaal, commonly known as the African Daisy.

One thing I can never resist is an opportunity to try out new flowers in my garden, and in my time I have played host to some mighty queer-looking critters.

Some of these have turned out to be just si-so, no real improvement over the older tried-and-true kinds; some have been good, but were more bother to grow than they were worth. A few — just a very few — have been real finds and have held pride of place in our garden ever since their first trial.

★ ★ ★

Such a flower was Dimorphotheca aurantiaca, the great-granddaddy of these African Daisy seeds I have for you now. Our plants covered themselves so completely with their orange-colored, blue-eyed daisies that you could hardly see the plants for the flowers, and my wife was forever cutting them to arrange in an antique burnished copper bowl, where they made the prettiest picture imaginable.

The seeds I have for you are from natural hybrids that sprang up in certain districts along the border between the Transvaal and Orange Free State in South Africa.

One parent is known to be Dimorphotheca aurantiaca — the beloved flower in my garden — but the pollen parent of these hybrids is a complete mystery.

Some botanists think it may be Dimorphotheca pluvialis, which grows in the same district; others believe it may not be a Dimorphotheca at all, but an entirely different flower, possibly an Arctotis.

In any case, the flowers are a great improvement over the older type, the kind I have been growing in past years. For one thing, the flower heads are much bigger, up to 3½ inches across. For another, they bloom in a much wider range of colors, including yellow, apricot, deep orange, salmon pink, terra cotta, and a singularly pure and glistening white.

The plants stand about a foot tall, and keep on blooming pretty well all summer long — a characteristic somewhat rare among our summer flowers. The disc in the centre of this daisy has a peculiar and most attractive metallic sheen, changing color according to the angle of the light. The petals are dainty and delicately pointed, and of a lovely satiny texture.

Not the least of this African Daisy's virtues is its ease of culture. The seeds are thin and papery — rather like corn flakes — but big enough to handle individually. They may be started indoors, using the techniques I described earlier this year for starting the Dark Opal seeds, or you can sow them directly in the outdoor garden, covering each sown seed with a jam jar to act as a tiny greenhouse.

★ ★ ★

As I mentioned Sunday, these rare and hard-to-come-by hybrid seeds practically fell into my lap — I am indebted to a perfect stranger who lives in Johannesburg for procuring them for me.

I am most anxious to share my loot with you folks, and I suggest you get a letter away immediately requesting your free packet.

If letter-writing is a bore to you, you can use the little order coupon at the foot of this column instead. As with all our free seed offers, you are expected to enclose a stamped and self-addressed envelope to carry your free seeds back to you.

The Case for Sex Ed.

WASHINGTON—There is a big flap going on in the United States right now over the question of teaching sex education in the schools.

The educators are mostly for it and the ultra-conservatives, including the John Birchers and the DAR, are mostly against it. I usually like to stay out of contraversial matters as I hate to answer my mail, but in this case I have to come out for teaching sex education in the schools.

★ ★ ★

This is a very personal matter with me. I had no formal sex education when I was a student, and everyone knows the mess I'm in. If there had been sex education when I was going to public school, I might have been a different man today.

When I was going to public school, we got all our sex education at the local candy store. The information was dispensed by 13-year-olds who seemed to know everything there was to know on the subject, and we 11-and 12-year-olds believed every word they told us.

Some of it, I discoverd later on, did not necessarily happen to be true. For example, I was told as an absolute fact that if a girl necked with you in the rumble seat of a car, she would automatically have a baby.

This kept me out of the rumble seat of an automobile until I was 23 years old.

There were some other canards of the day, including one that the method of kissing a girl on the mouth decided whether she would become pregnant or not. Every time I kissed a girl after that, I sweated for the next nine months.

★ ★ ★

The sex experts at Sam's candy store had an answer for every problem that was raised at the soda fountain. These included warnings that if you did certain things you would go insane. Most of us were prepared to be taken off to the booby hatch at any moment.

There was obviously no talk about birds, bees, flowers or animals. We couldn't care less what happened when they were doing it. Our only concern was what happened to human beings, and from what our 13-year-old instructors could tell us, it was all bad.

★ ★ ★

Those of us who escaped insanity and shotgun weddings were told we would probably wind up with a horrendous disease that would be passed on to our children and their children for generations to come. There were 25 ways of catching this disease, including shaking hands with someone who knew someone who had it.

You can imagine the nightmares these tales produced. There seemed to be no escape. You were doomed if you did and you were doomed if you didn't. After one of these sessions at the candy store, I seriously contemplated suicide. There didn't seem to be any other way out.

Now the worst part of my sex indoctrination was that when I turned 13 I became an instructor myself and passed on my knowledge to 11-and 12-year-olds at the same candy store.

They listened in awe as I repeated word for word what I had been told by my "teachers," and I was amazed with how much authority I was able to pass on the "facts" of sex education as I knew them.

Upon becoming 13, they in turn taught the younger students. Heaven knows how many generations went on through life believing everything they had learned about sex at Sam's candy store.

★ ★ ★

The fact is that, while the sex education at Sam's served a purpose, we were all emotional wrecks before we got to high school.

So, on the basis of my own experience, I don't think we have much choice when it comes to sex education. In order to avoid the agony and pain my fellow classmates and I went through, we either have to teach sex in the schools, or close down every soda fountain.

Bette Missed Boat

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — News from London, where Bette Davis is starring in Connecting Rooms, with Sir Michael Redgrave and newcomer Alexis Kanner (A Demitri De Grunwald production). La Diva Davis is getting along famously with Sir Michael. It is not generally known that 20 years ago Jack Warner bought The African Queen for them. When Bette dug in her heels and refused to make it—she and Warner were feuding at the time—he sold it to Sam Spiegel. This is one of the big regrets of Jack's life because this is the film, starring Katharine Hepburn and Humphrey Bogart that founded the Spiegel fortune.

Miss Davis was reflecting on her current set:

"Had Sir Michael and I done the film, it would have been an entirely different story. I would have played the Hepburn part like Bogie, and Sir Michael would then have had to play the Bogart part like Hepburn. The picture would have been 20 years ahead of it's time.

"And today what are we doing? Here we are, two middle-aged crocks, playing supporting leads to the real star of the film, a 26-year-old Canadian James Dean named Alexis Kanner, who will surely become a very big star through this film, which is right and as it should be," Kanner has been hailed by Peter Brooks, who directed him recently in Hamlet, as "the most electrifying, existing actor of his generation."

There have been a few problems during the seven weeks thus far of filming—at the Pinewood Studios—partly due to the different styles in acting, and also because the three stars have at different times been felled by the British version of Hong Kong flu.

David Lean's former wife Kay Walsh is making a comeback in Connecting Rooms, playing a leading supporting role as the landlady.

Bette plays a cellist, and to get the feel for her new lovable (?) image of compassionate, cultured, 50-year-old, slightly off-key, sexually repressed lady longing for the young song-writer in the film—Kanner—she is being coached by Amaryllis Fleming, the concert cellist sister of the late Ian 'Bond' Fleming. And that's about as complicated a sentence as I have written this week.

Professors' Interests Conflict

By SIDNEY HARRIS

Rightfully so, "conflict of interest" is one of the most important factors in selecting members of the Cabinet, or other policy-making public officials.

If a man has a substantial financial interest in an area that could be affected by his political authority, it is only prudence and good sense to ask him to divert himself of such interest while he occupies a public position.

★ ★ ★

I was talking to a university student the other day, and he suggested that part of the disaffection of students comes from the same sort of "conflict of interest" by the faculty.

He attends the business school at a large university, and was not himself involved in any demonstrations or protests, being of a conservative bent. But even he felt that the students have a good case to make out against many of their professors. Here is how he put it:

★ ★ ★

"The heads of our departments, and many of our teachers, belong to us only part-time. Some of them make more from outside sources than they do from the university — even though the school pays them handsomely.

"These men are employed as consultants by business and industrial firms, and some of them even sit on the boards of directors of such firms. In cases I know of, they spend less than half their time on teaching or school work of any kind.

"Now, these men were hired to teach us about business and economics. They are supposed to be objective seekers after the truth, no matter where or how it hurts. But how can they be objective, when they are a highly-paid part of the industrial complex, when they are members of the very team they are supposed to examine and analyze critically?

★ ★ ★

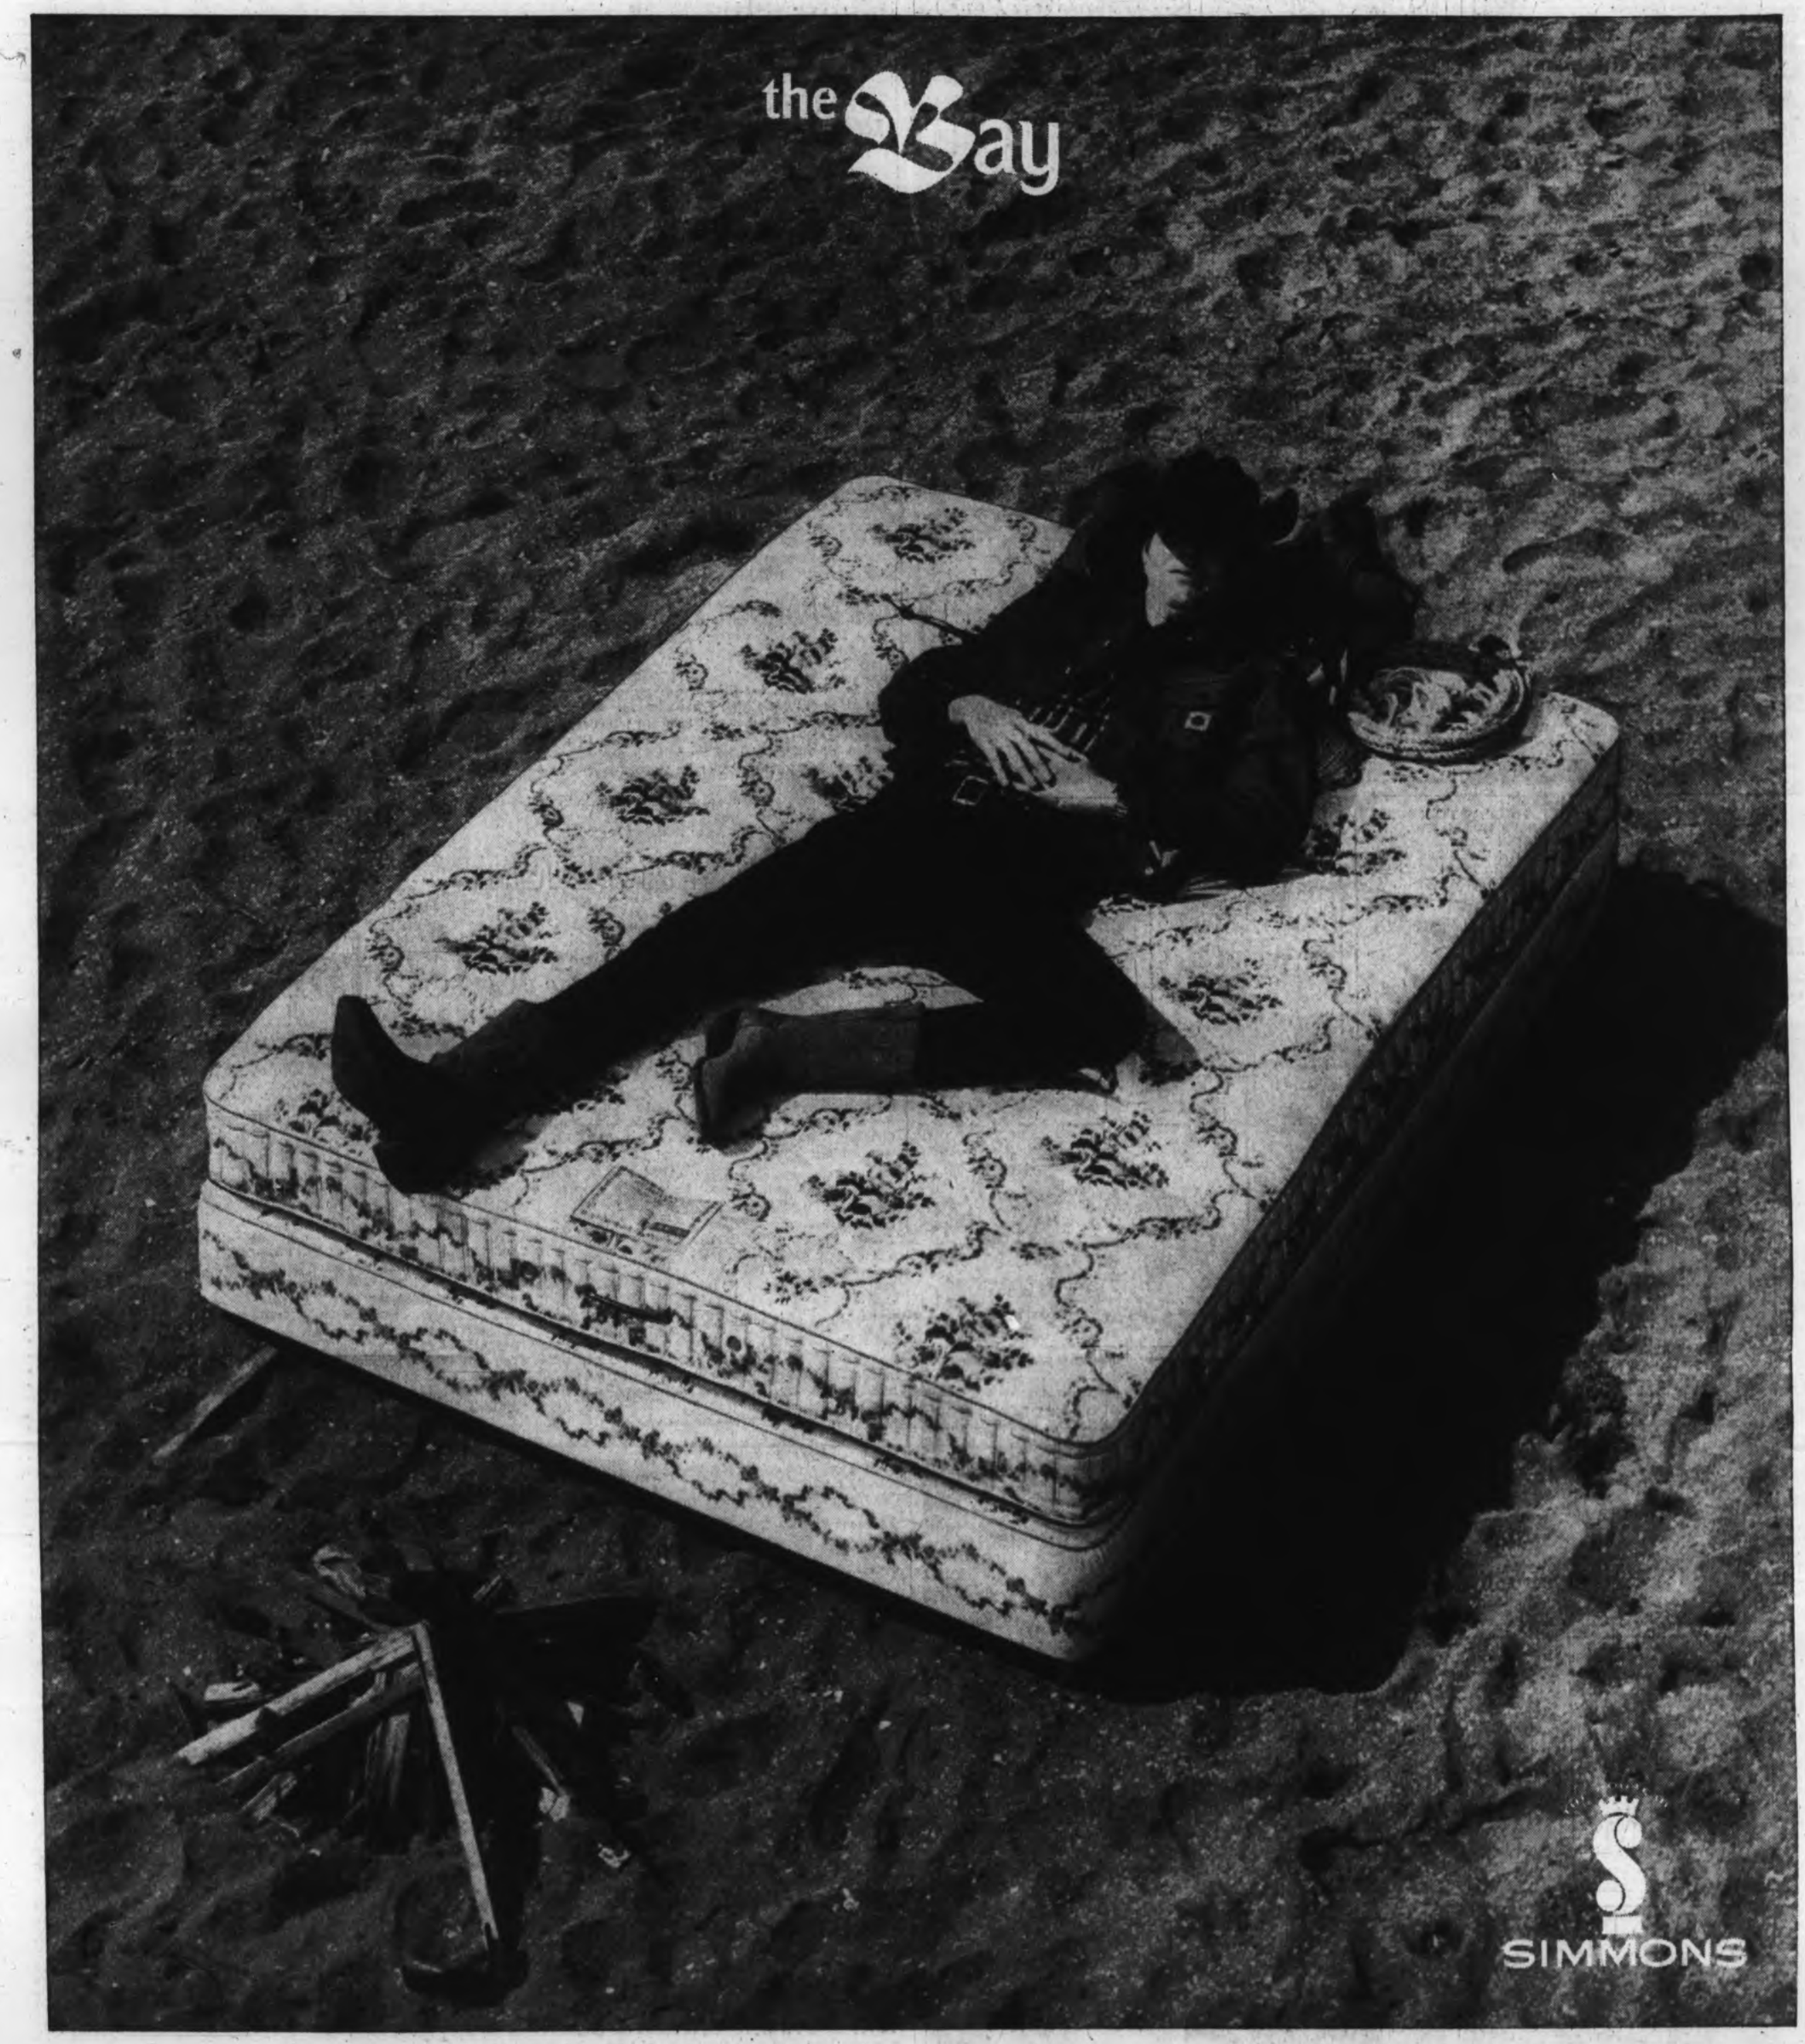

"This sort of condition is what gives the left-wing students their leverage. If 'conflict of interest' is bad in public office, it is bad in education. If our professors have a vested interest in any system, how can we believe they are telling it the way it is, rather than the way it pays them to tell it?

★ ★ ★

"Suppose our doctors teaching in the medical school were on the payroll of the pharmaceutical companies, spending half their time and getting half their income from the drug firms? How could we trust their evaluations? Obviously, this would not be permitted.

But in the business school, and other schools, teachers have become advocates for the very groups they are supposed to help us judge. That's one big reason the dissidents on the campus get so much student sympathy."

West Should Get In There, Fight

Trudeau Advice: Don't Pick Negative Men

By FRASER KELLY and PETER THOMSON
Special to The Daily Colonist

OTTAWA—Prime Minister Trudeau will campaign personally in Quebec for national unity if Premier Jean Jacques Bertrand presents the people of his province with a referendum asking them to chose between federalism and separatism.

Trudeau made the commitment in an exclusive 55-minute interview which covered in depth the mood of the nation and his first year as prime minister.

Trudeau also expressed some very candid opinions about the alleged ill will rampant in the Prairies. It was the first time he has expressed his personal views about causes of disenchantment in the West, urging Western Canadians to fight for their rights as he and others did for Quebec's point of view.

Trudeau, was asked if he intended to take a direct hand in Quebec politics by campaigning for a provincial party that based its platform on a federalist position. He replied:

"No, I don't intend to do that; I am too much a respecter of federalism to believe that the prime minister of the country should involve himself in provincial politics in such a direct way.

Theoretical Question

"The only circumstances in which I see myself getting involved in this theoretical question would be if there were to be some kind of referendum in Quebec asking the people to vote against federalism or against Canada, or for separatism. Then I would have to act as a citizen of that province and I would have to speak my mind on it.

"This would no longer be a question within the ambit of provincial jurisdiction as fought out by a provincial election; this would be a question within the ambit of whether the country exists or not and I think certainly as a Quebecer I would feel very much involved in the solution of such a question."

Thompson: In the past few months you have had a couple of notable confrontations with Premier Bertrand. He has, in fact, accused you of aiding the cause of the separatists. Do you feel these confrontations are in fact hurting unity?

Prime Minister: "No I don't feel that they are hurting unity; I feel there is a lot of politics to such confrontations.

"Mr. Bertrand is going into a leadership convention. I think that the kind of party he leads was created out of a kind of hostility towards les Anglais, and towards Ottawa, and I think he is making a play now for the old guard of that party and probably for the greater mass of that party.

Insults and Injuries

"This does not distress me at all, any more than a lot of the insults and injuries that Ottawa received from Western premiers on other subjects.

"But why should we be any more shocked that provincial premiers from Quebec are aggressive towards Ottawa when you see what some of the other provincial premiers from the West, or even from the east, say?"

Kelly: I think the difference, sir, is that your reaction to Bertrand has been much tougher than your reaction to any of the Western premiers.

Was this partly a deliberate attempt by you to encourage and establish the federal presence in Quebec?

Prime Minister: "Yes, It is one of our major aims.

"And it is in this sense that I was talking earlier about the constitution or federalism as viewed by the man in the street.

"This issue that you are referring to arose over the situation of the international airport which is to be situated in Quebec.

"The Quebec government was taking the position that it should decide where this airport would be, and was giving all kinds of what I found to be very unsophisticated reasons for that.

For Farmer, Laborer

"This, of course, we cannot recognize. We have to say that in all areas under federal jurisdiction the federal government is the spokesman for the Quebec farmer, laborer, intellectual and so on.

"Therefore, when the government of Quebec, even in areas of federal jurisdiction, tries to tell us what to do because it is the spokesman for Quebec, we must reject that extremely strongly.

"I would do the same with any Western premier who accused me of the kind of things that I was accused of by Quebec."

Kelly: Both major provincial parties are planning conventions, although entirely of a different sort; can we assume that you are going to have more of these kinds of statements to deal with from the province of Quebec?

Prime Minister: "I would think not.

"I would think that the mistake of the past half-dozen years of political parties in Quebec has been to try to vie too much with each other in this area, to contest with each other as to who could be more anti-federal, or who could be more anti-Ottawa.

Strong Federalism

"I think that the future in Quebec will belong to that party which will realize that Quebec's future is in Canada, but will realize that strong and tough federalism means a certain amount of provincial autonomy, a certain amount of provincial authority in their fields, which will bargain toughly with the federal government in these fields.

"This is in the constitutional area, but especially will take the lead in Quebec to show to the people that the important areas are not areas of contest with Quebec.

"What is important is not so much to try to argue or bicker about the split of the fiscal dollar with Ottawa, but to make sure that the industrial base of Quebec will grow; to make sure that the natural resources will be exploited better; to make sure that the educational system will be developed better; to make sure that modernization of the administration, modernization of the whole apparatus of society will be forwarded.

"The party which begins telling this to the people of Quebec, the party which begins putting the accent not on

Victoria Woman's Book Wins Literary Award

A Victoria housewife was named Monday as winner of one of Canda's top annual literary awards for her first book.

Alice Munro of 1648 Rockland, 37-year-old mother of three, has won one of six Governor-General's Literary Awards for 1968. The Canada Council presents a $2,500 prize with each of the awards.

Mrs. Munro's book, Dance of the Happy Shades, is a collection of 15 short stories, most of them set in southwestern Ontario, where she grew up.

"I'm terrifically happy," she said. She has "nothing in particular" planned for her prize money, other than going to Ottawa May 13 with her husband, James, to pick up the cash and a specially-bound copy of her book.

Mr. and Mrs. Munro own and operate Munro's Book Store at 735 Yares, and she works there in her spare time.

She has been writing "seriously" for more than 15 years and has had numerous short stories published in Canadian periodicals and fiction anthologies.

'NOT GOOD LUCH'

She is working now on more short stories and has given some consideration to writing novels. "But I don't want to say much about it. It's not good luck to talk about it," she said.

"For some time, Alice Munro has been one of the dauntless members of the tiny group of persevering writers who have kept the short story alive in Canada," Colonist book reviewer E. D. Ward-Harris wrote after the book was published.

Of her book, Mr. Ward-Harris said, "Alice Munro displays a great affinity with lonely children, and her profound insight into the functioning of children's minds is mirrored by accurate dialogue and made more telling by the absence of sentimentality.

Zoo Wolves Attack Invader

NEW YORK (UPI)—Wolves attacked a 12-year-old boy who climbed into their lair at the Bronx Zoo Monday.

Attendants said Leonard Smith, despite savage wounds in his arms and legs, managed to wade back through the moat surrounding the lair and escape.

He was rushed to Fordham Hospital which later listed his condition as fair.

Police said the lair is surrounded by a seven-foot high fence topped with barbed wire on three sides but has only a four-foot high stone wall in front.

Riot Spoils Quiet Day

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Catholic civil rights demonstrators stoned a police station and pitched Molotov cocktails at constables who rushed them swinging clubs late Monday night. No new attacks were reported on public utilities, guarded by British troops.

The fighting between Catholics and police in Belfast broke out shortly before midnight and ruined a day that had almost passed in peace.

Deporting Hinges On Draft

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The government urged the board of immigration appeals Monday to uphold the unique deportation of an American-born citizen on the ground that he renounced his citizenship to avoid serving in the Vietnam war.

Thomas Glenn Jolley, 24, who now lives in Atlanta, was ordered deported after the immigration and naturalization service found he fled to Canada "with the hot breath of the draft at his back," then renounced his U.S. citizenship while in Toronto.

The case is unique in the Vietnam war and may be unprecedented in all U.S. wars. No similar cases are pending.

After an hour of oral argument, the board took the case under advisement. Decisions usually take about two months.

Most Power Soon Nuclear

MONTREAL (CP) — Nuclear energy will make a major contribution to the world's energy requirements by the year 2000 by being harnessed to produce electricity.

H. B. Merlin, nuclear plant engineer at Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. at Chalk River, Ont., said Monday recent forecasts indicate that about 56 per cent of North America's electricity may be produced with nuclear energy within 31 years.

He told the 71st annual meeting of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy the world production of electricity by that time will be almost three times the total electricity produced today.

LARGEST MEETING

More than 4,000 delegates, including some of the world's most prominent mining men, are attending the three-day conference which opened Monday. The meeting is the largest in the institute's history.

Merlin said forecasts show nuclear energy wil be supplying 35 per cent of North America's electricity by 1980, 23 per cent of Western Europe's and 20 per cent of Japan's.

In Canada, most of the nuclear stations will be located in Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes although they may be located in Western Canada toward the end of the century.

B.C. MAY BE LAST

Of the Western provinces, British Columbia may be the last to harness nuclear energy to turn out electricity because of its abundance of hydro sources which will meet electricity requirements.

Merlin said Quebec likely will go into the full-scale use of nuclear energy by 1980 although this date could be postponed.

Nuclear stations have higher capital and lower fuelling costs than fossil-fired stations—stations utilizing coal, petroleum or natural gas.

COST DECREASES

The capital cost differential decreases as the unit size increases so the cost of electricity generated will be dependent on the unit size and the capacity factor at which the station is operated.

The unit capital cost in Canada should be reduced in the future by the trend to larger generating units, by technical improvements and by increased experience in engineering and manufacturing nuclear components.

Another speaker, Gerald Blackmore, vice-president of the coal division of the Cape Breton Development Corp., described the last 12 months "as unique in the history of the Canadian coal industry."

COKE FROM WEST

Blackmore said that after many years of market reduction and limited capital investment "we have seen the finalization of massive long-term contracts for high-grade coking coal from the Western Canadian coal fields."

Mutiny Quelled At Sea

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — The United States Coast Guard said Monday night a 10-man boarding party had boarded the West German freighter Helga Witt and restrained five mutinous crew members.

A spokesman for the Coast Guard in San Juan said the coast guard boarding party accomplished the operation without bloodshed. All five crew members had been reported armed.

NO INJURIES

Capt. Warner Thompson said there apparently were no injuries during the ordeal on the 3,118-ton ship about 120 miles southwest of San Juan.

The cutter Courageous arrived alongside the ship, after 6 p.m.

Capt. Thompson said the five seamen would be brought to San Juan and turned over to a federal marshal to await arrival of a German diplomatic representative.

The ship was reported en route from Australia to Marseille, France.

Senate's New Role?

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate resumes its legislative work today, and Senator Paul Martin sees the upper chamber developing new investigation and scrutiny responsibilities that may require a new kind of Senate appointment.

Senator Martin, a member of the cabinet and the government's leader in the Senate, said the role of the Senate has changed radically from its original purpose as a chamber for "sober second thought."

"It still serves this function, but it also performs other functions in its committees of investigation and scrutiny," Mr. Martin said in a memorandum summarizing the current work of the Senate.

"It is with these latter func-

Mood Optimistic Along Red River

EMERSON, Man. (CP) — The mood is optimism as the Red River Valley awaits rising flood waters.

It was business as usual Monday at this border town, which has felt the Red's heavy lash in other springs.

"Those dikes have made a lot of difference to Emerson," said flood co-ordinator Pete Herner.

"Those dikes" are heavy earthen seawalls, 50 feet wide or more at the base. They have turned Emerson and other towns downstream into fortresses which floodfighters are confident will hold off the strongest attack the Red may have in store.

They were built after 1966, the last year the river went on a destructive spree and forced the evacuation of flood-plain towns. Only fast work by soldiers and civilian volunteers on hastily-thrown-up temporary barricades saved them from inundation.

Forecasters now are predicting levels of perhaps a foot below 1966 despite the fact some North Dakota and Minnesota centres on the north-flowing river suffered the worst flooding of the century.

Two weeks of warm, dry weather have made the difference in southern Manitoba, clearing out ice and speeding up downstream runoff before the crest arrives from the United States.

Morning readings at Emerson Monday showed a rise of only three-quarters of a foot in 24 hours compared with a foot-and-a-half average in recent days.

Berkeley Man Optimistic

U.S.-Soviet Union Link

Foundation Aims at Bering Strait Bridge

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) —A world-renowned engineer Monday proposed a bridge across the 50-mile wide Bering Strait between the United States and the Soviet Union.

* * *

T. Y. Lin, a distinguished consulting engineer and professor at the University of California, said his preliminary studies show such a bridge can be built with present technology at a cost of $1 billion.

The Soviet Union would benefit from the bridge, he said, and might contribute to its construction.

Lin has incorporated a nonprofit foundation to undertake the project and hopes to have the bridge finished by 1980. It eventually would enable a person to drive from San Francisco, or Buenos Aires, to Paris or Moscow, he said.

"Both the physical and psychological effect of such a bridge on world unity and peace will be tremendous," Lin said. "People will find that we can build constructive things as well as ABMs and ICBMs."

* * *

Lin concedes the intercontinental span would be more of a monument than a traffic artery at first. But he notes the rapid development now underway on the U.S. side, and assumes similar progress of roads and communities on the Russian side.

The Bering Strait, thought by most scientists to have once been a land bridge from Asia to America, is 150 to 180 feet deep across all of its 50-mile distance. Two islands are located in the middle.

Several methods of construction have been worked out, Lin said. One would be to sink piers at 1,000-foot intervals and then link them by spans built somewhere else and floated up to the Arctic.

* * *

"The greatest problem would be the ice," said Lin, but he believes the danger of ice flows damaging the piers could be overcome by means of a built-in system that would melt ice around the piers. The strait does not have icebergs, he said, and does not freeze over entirely, even in winter.

Lin, who built hundreds of rail and highway bridges in China during the Second World War, is a world-recognized expert on bridge construction.

"Politicians change, but the people are always there," he said. "This is going to be a sustained effort. It is not a dream — it is a vision. Without vision people will perish."

Jaycee Probers Back CAY Role

NANAIMO—A four-man Jaycee committee said Monday night it will recommend continued Jaycee support for the Committee for the Advancement of Youth.

The statement from the Jaycee committee came after a two-hour meeting with CAY representatives, called to discuss last week's controversial speech to Jaycees by ex-Simon Fraser student Michel La Lain.

The CAY representatives reiterated a statement they issued earlier when they told the Jaycee committee that Mr. La Lain's views—which included charges of Mafia-organized drug traffic in Nanaimo—were entirely his own, and that he had no connection with CAY.

The youth group spokesmen said the introduction of Mr. La Lain at the Jaycee meeting as an advisor to CAY was a mistake.

Jaycee vice-president Bill House and members Ron Biggs, Don Gardner, and Larry Scott attended the meeting.

CAY president Jim Morgan stressed that persons found in their group either using or distributing illegal drugs would be ejected immediately.

They said this would be the same reaction they would have to drunks, or rowdies trying to get into any CAY activities.

CAY has held several functions, at least one of which was attended by 900 people. All have been without incident.

One of the CAY members said, "If the time comes when we can't maintain law and order ourselves, there is no point in continuing.

The Jaycee commmittee agreed that although they could not speak for the membership at this time, they personally were convinced CAY deserved Jaycee support and would recommend this to their membership later this week.

They told the CAY the Jaycees would be making a public statement about the group's decision.

On Sunday evening, CAY's directors met for more than four hours to discuss the situation before issuing a statement that Mr. La Lain did not represent the committee and that his views were not those of the committee.

CRUCIAL PROBLEM

"Mr. Morgan felt that the Jaycees would be interested in listening to an outside view on the crucial problem of youth today," said the statement.

"It is most unfortunate that, due to a misinterpretation, the impression was left that the views and beliefs of Mr. La Lain were those of the CAY."

Members of the Jaycees said in interviews before Monday's meeting that there was no misinterpretation, but there was a misrepresentation.

SENIOR ADVISOR

Larry Scott, former Jaycee Vancouver Island district president, said that Mr. La Lain "was introduced, specifically, as a senior advisor to the CAY . . . as the man who was going to start a newspaper and drama club in the CAY."

Nootka Band Chooses Young Chief

Story and Picture By BETTY MACMILLAN

GOLD RIVER — Jerry Jack was selected chief councilor of the Nootka Indian Band at elections held Saturday. Mr. Jack received 10 votes, Andrew Jack, six and Wilfred Andrew, five.

Out of 82 eligible voters, there were 21 ballots cast.

Thomas Dick, with 18 votes, and John Charlie, with 14, were elected as councillors over David Andrew who received nine votes.

Electoral Officer Tom Moffat, assistant superintendent of the West Coast Agency said band members travelled from Friendly Cove, Tasis, Victoria and Port Alberni to cast their ballots.

The results of the election, he explained, are subject to confirmation by Ottawa.

★ ★ ★

Mr. Moffat said that 31-year-old Mr. Jack is the youngest chief of the 14 bands in the West Coast Agency from Nitnat to Kayouquot.

Ceremonies followed the election.

Mr. Jack who is hereditary Chief of the Moachats, one of the bands which amalgamated to form the Nootka Band, donned a ceremonial robe embroidered with Indian designs in traders' buttons, identical to the one worn by his great frandfather.

His brother Andrew Jack then gave the ancient chant which was roughly translated by Mrs. Ambrose Howard as: "I can hear spirits of my forefathers. The spirits say please listen to what we are saying. Be with you people now so that everything will go good whatever he does, this our councillor now."

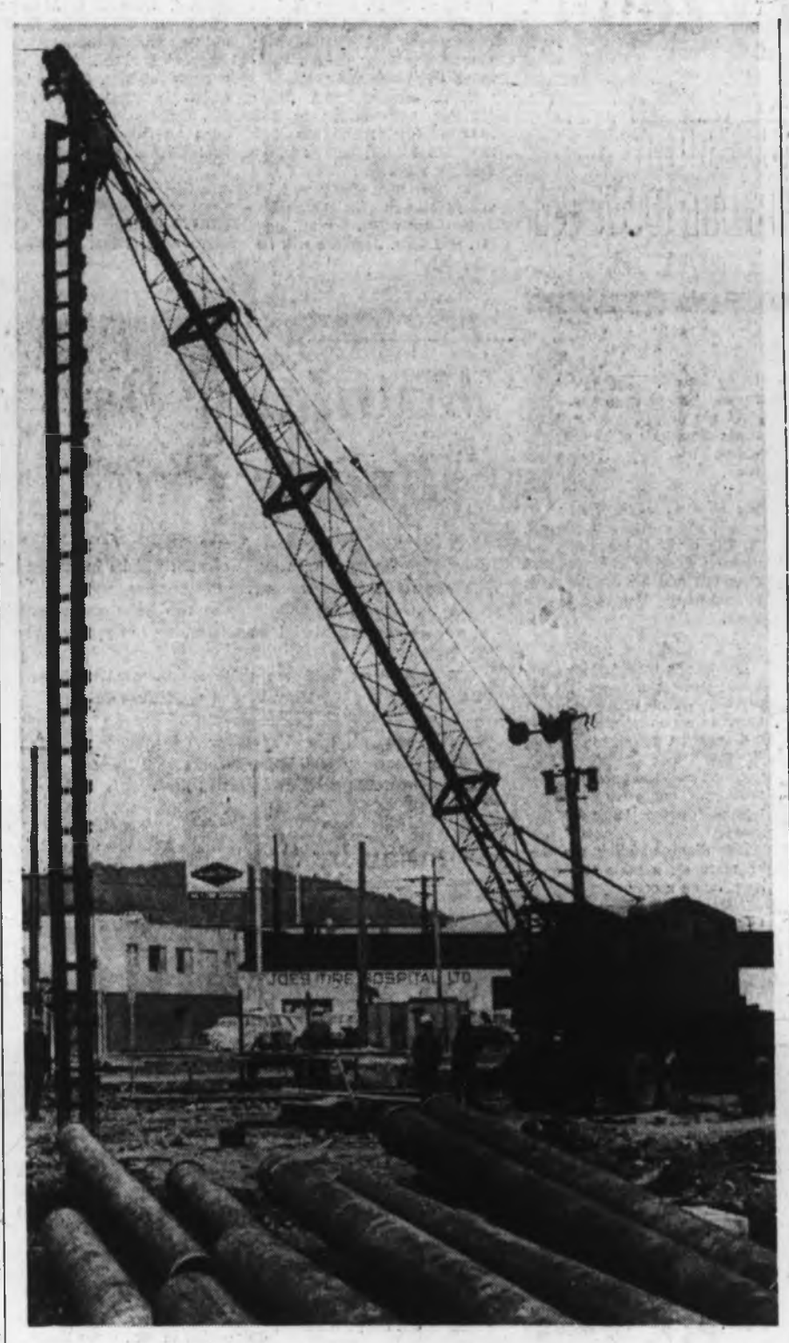

Mr. Jack appointed his brother Andrew Jack as secretary.

★ ★ ★

The chief councillor read a letter advising that the lieut.-governor would be paying a visit to Friendly Cove May 26, arriving at 6 p.m. and departing at 6 a.m. May 27.

He appointed Wilfred Andrew as chairman in charge of preparing the church basement at Friendly Cove for the official visit.

Mr. Jack's first official function as chief councillor was to present a cheque for $1,000 to Pat Costello, Chairman of the Kinsmen X-ray Fund. This contribution from the Nootka Band brings the total in the fund to over $6,300.

Flooding Control Queried

DUNCAN — Duncan may consider legal action against North Cowichan to solve the controversial cost-sharing issue in connection with Centennial Heights flood-control work.

At a special meeting Monday night, Duncan council decided to ask its solicitor to report on whose responsibility the drainage problem is.

The action followed a letter from North Cowichan which told the city that the drainage at Centennial Heights sub-division would be one of several items discussed by a Duncan-North Cowichan committee which has been proposed to deal with a study of joint services.

SHARING PLAN

The city suggested that the drainage should be carried out on a 50-50 basis but North Cowichan council disagreed.

"We cannot wait while the two councils try to solve joint services. We must take immediate action on the flooding problem," Ald. Jim Saunders told Duncan council.

"We should, right now, seek legal opinion as to where we stand. We would be criticized if we kept on haggling over it for years."

Total cost for the project would be about $41,000. It was not a question of help, but a question of responsibility, said Ald. Saunders.

A 53-signature petition from downtown businessmen asked council to transform certain city streets into one-way streets and to introduce angle parking to make part of the downtown a shopping centre.

Spokesman for the city merchants, Bob Howard, asked council to change its thinking and try the proposed scheme for 60 days.

SPEED LIMIT

The request was referred to the city's consulting engineer.

Mr. Howard said the proposed scheme in connection with a 10-m.p.h. speed limit would eliminate hot-rodders and pedestrian clogging at street corners.

Council received support in its attempt to retain the treed mound at the city parking lot. Logging operator Gerald Patterson stated: "We are all distressed at the proposal that the mound at the city parking centre be removed.

FEW SPOTS

"This would be a tragic and irreplaceable loss to the city. There are few spots within the city that one can take the family to relax and have a bit of a picnic. The mound offers this to young and old."

He stated that it was not true that business would suffer at the proposed shopping centre because it could not be seen.

Contract Ends Strike

Fifteen Victoria shopworkers were back on the job Monday after ending a 12-day millwork strike which had threatened to spread to numerous construction sites.

The strike ended officially Sunday night. It was confined to workers at Builders Sash and Door Ltd., 485 Burnside. A new two-year contract covers these men and about 28 others at millwork and cabinet shops in Nanaimo, Duncan, Courtenay and Port Alberni.

MINORITY BOOST

John Schibli, business agent for the United Brotherhood of Carpenters in Victoria, said the majority of the men—all members of his union—would get four wage increases totalling 54 cents an hour. This will bring the top wage to $3.97 by Oct. 1, 1970, he said.

Wage increases of 44 cents have been agreed upon for a minority of workers.

The union had sought 60 cents over two years, an agreement reached recently for millworkers on the B.C. mainland.

Extra Hospital Beds Sought To Assist Extended Care

DUNCAN — Cowichan Valley regional hospital board will be asked at its Wednesday meeting to approve provision of 24 extra beds at Cowichan District Hospital to accommodate 20 extended-care patients from the Mary Moore Salvation Army home which is closing in June.

Decision to take the patients from the Cobble Hill institution was made by the Cowichan hospital board on humanitarian grounds, but chairman Claude Green said it would be only a temporary measure.

He said the patients from the home would be transferred to the extended-care unit to be built adjacent to the hospital as soon as the unit is completed.

APPROVAL GIVEN

He said the hospital board has approval from B.C. Hospital Insurance Service to add the beds at a cost of $35,000 to be shared 40 per cent by the regional board and 60 per cent by the province.

Mr. Green said the hospital board and the medical staff at first were opposed to the idea of accommodating extended care patients in a hospital equipped with costly and sophisticated facilities for acute care patients.

On a temporary basis, however, he said the board felt it was "duty-bound" to take the patients.

EXTENDED CARE

In an effort to speed up construction of an extended care unit, Mr. Green said the hospital board has asked the provincial government for permission to hold a referendum on a reinforced concrete structure.

It is hoped that approval from the government will be received in time for Wednesday's meeting.

Mr. Green said a referendum could be held this summer, and if approval is won, tenders could be called this fall. Proposed is a 55-bed unit with an additional 15 beds for mental health patients at a total cost of about $924,000.

CONCRETE WANTED

Although the district seeks to build a concrete structure, Mr. Green said the provincial government was still insisting on a frame building.

"The government only plans for today, but the community has to plan for tomorrow," he said.

The province is prepared to share 60 per cent of the cost for a frame structure, and the district would have to bear the difference between its 40 per cent and the cost of a concrete wing.

MENTAL HEALTH

Hospital board member John Hulbert said the frame structure would cost $644,000 compared to $724,000 for concrete, exclusive of the mental patient beds.

Mr. Green said the board decided to add the mental treatment facilities after hearing representations from the Canadian Mental Health Association branch pointing out the need for such facilities in the area.

Projector Loan Protested

PORT ALBERNI — A protest about the loan of school projectors to community groups was made by the Alberni Valley Film Council Monday during a school board meeting at Port Alberni.

A delegation said the council had been renting projectors at a nominal fee, to member groups for years. It felt the Valley might lose the service, as had happened in Duncan and Nanaimo, if the practice continued.

Trustees asked school superintendent James Evans to send a memorandum to all schools advising them to refer requests for projectors to the film council.

Dr. Holmes, Mrs. Thatcher

NEVER TOO LATE!

FULFORD — When it's daffodil time in Victoria, it's Christmas on Salt Spring Island.

It wasn't planned that way but when the island's old age pensioners' committee planned a Christmas dinner and party last year, the weather put Salt Spring in a deep-freeze. So it was decided to postpone the dinner until the weather improved.

TURKEY DINNER

Recently, officials decided that it was time the dinner was held so out came the turkeys, complete with trimmings — and surrounded by daffodils.

About 147 senior citizens attended the event and they were wished a "Merry Christmas, with daffodils," by Archdeacon G. H. Holmes as he said grace.

After dinner, there were presentations to workers who had helped with the party. They included Mrs. St. Onge, Mrs. Stan Kitchener, Mrs. Joan Hayward and Mrs. Van Buskirk who each received a cup and saucer.

LIFE CERTIFICATE

The organization's secretary Mrs. Elsie Thatcher was presented with a life certificate by Dr. Holmes when tribute was paid to her work for the Old Age Pensioners Organization.

Entertainment was provided for the party by the Irl Bradley Trio consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Bradley and their daughter, Mrs. Steve La Fortune, and J. Cranswick.

Comox-Alberni Irregularities?

Byelection Appeal Likely

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI — Comox-Alberni Liberals are not giving up.

Former MP Richard Durante said Monday that they were not going to call for a judicial recount of votes cast in the April 8 byelection. Instead, "in all probability, we will take action under the Controverted Elections Act," he said.

That was the act under which Tom Barnett of the NDP forced the byelection when he appealed the June election.

The final count in the April election gave Mr. Barnett 12,611 votes to Mr. Durante's 12,357.

Mr. Durante is claiming that a number of ineligible voters cast ballots in the byelection.

He said that the party's legal advisors are investigating the reported irregularities.

"It is not necessary to have a judicial recount if the matter is taken to the courts," said Mr. Durante.

Because of residence requirements in the byelection, he felt it was remarkable that there were so many more on the voters' lists compared to the June figure.

He expressed surprise that Returning Officer Colin Wilson "should take the suggestion of irregularities personally. It is not a reflection on Mr. Wilson.

Mr. Durante said he knew that Comox-Alberni needed representation in Ottawa and "I know that there is some danger of it becoming a laughing stock. However, I have had so many phone calls that we feel we must pursue this."

Skipper Fined for Oil Flow

CHEMAINUS—Norwegian freighter Ariel accidentally discharged about two tons of bunker oil into Chemainus harbor early Sunday.

On Monday, Capt. Alex Jo.ssen was fined $500 after pleading guilty in Chemainus Magistrate's Court.

Harbormaster Barry Guilbride said the captain notified the authorities of the accident at 8 a.m. Sunday.

Mr. Guilbride said the oil ran into the harbor when it was being transferred from one tank into another and accidentally overflowed onto the deck.

He said the captain and ship's officers were very upset about the incident.

Immediate action was taken, said Mr. Guilbride, and nine 45-gallon barrels of detergent were used to break up the oil during Sunday and Monday mornings.

Port Alberni Couple Taken to Hospital

PORT ALBERNI — A young Port Alberni couple were rushed to West Coast General Hospital, shortly before 9 a.m. Monday morning, suffering from stab wounds.

Earl Newman, 24, of 120 Heaslip, Port Alberni was reported to be in fair condition, while his wife, Renee, 19, was said to be in satisfactory condition. Both were suffering from chest wounds.

Police and ambulance responded to a call from a next-door neighbor, Mrs. L. A. Ethier, who saw Mrs. Newman staggering across the yard calling to her.

Mr. and Mrs. Newman have two children — Cindy, three, who is visiting relatives in Bella Coola and an 18-month-old baby who is being looked after by grandparents in Port Alberni.

Mr. Newman had been working during the last fortnight at MacMillan Bloedel's Sproat Lake division. The RCMP are investigating the incident.

Resigning Professor Asked to Reconsider

Fine arts students at the University of Victoria Saturday asked Professor Peter Kahn to reconsider his resignation.

They also urged the university administration to remove Dr. Alan Gowans from "any decision-making position" affecting the studio visual arts department.

A mass meeting of the students followed disclosure Friday of a split in the faculty. It is based mainly on differences between Dean Peter Garvie and Dr. Alan Gowans on one side, and some faculty and students on the other.

★ ★ ★

Prof. Kahn, a graphic arts specialist who came here from Cornell University last fall, submitted his resignation Thursday.

Dr. Gerald Hendrie, head of music since he came here in 1967, resigned earlier this year but has said he would leave two months earlier than scheduled because of "intolerable" pressure.

At the centre of the issue is the faculty's search for a head of the studio visual arts department.

★ ★ ★

Dissident students have charged Prof. Garvie and Dr. Gowans have ignored faculty recommendations, and the department is being turned into an "industrial arts school."

Dr. Gowans has been head of the art history department since the fine arts school was established in 1966.

Saturday's meeting of art students drew about 60 of the 80 students in the studio visual arts program, said student spokesman Lawrence Pope, 22.

The meeting approved a lengthy resolution which said in part:

"The entire university is based on respect for professionalism, which in this case has been negated by the acceptance by the head of the school of fine arts, Prof. Garvie, of Dr. Gowans' (acting) chairmanship of the division of studio visual arts, though the latter is not a practising, accredited or demonstrably competent member of the active or professional artistic community of either Victoria or the University of Victoria."

The students unanimously requested Prof. Kahn to withdraw his resignation and act as chairman of the division of studio visual arts "until a satisfactory future for the division, and the school, is assured."

Pallister, Rainey Join Region Board

Emery Easy Colwood Victor

By NANCY BROWN

The man who was Colwood's volunteer fire chief for 13 years received more votes than his combined opposition Saturday night to become Colwood's new Capital Regional Board director.

Richard Emery, an electrical contractor, polled 165 votes to defeat three other candidates. He was followed by Herman Williams, 58, Agnes Smith, 52, and James Buchanan, 47. Their total was 157.

In Langford civil servant Earl Pallister, a custodian at Fort Rodd Hill, succeeded John Williams as director. He received 118 votes, followed by Charles Cue with 94 and William Temple with 65.

Rainey

A close race in Metchosin saw machinist Kenneth Rainey win by a three-vote margin over former director John Tipton. Mr. Tipton was one of the three directors whose resignations precipitated the vote by citizens in the three areas.

Results in Metchosin were Mr. Rainey 50, Mr. Tipton 47 and Donald Stansall 25.

★ ★ ★

Mr. Rainey was Metchosin's first representative during the formative months for the board in 1964.

The three will attend their first meeting April 28, when they hope to be greeted with the allocation of a 150-bed extended care hospital for Colwood.

"I hope we haven't been neglected during the two months that we've been without representation on the board," Mr. Emery said after the election.

★ ★ ★

He said there have been rumors the beds will not go to Colwood, which recently formed a hospital society to administer an expanded hospital.

"I just can't see any reason why they should go elsewhere," he said. "We have a strong claim and the area was recommended in the Agnew, Peckham report for these beds."

Growing Area

North Hospital 'Vital to Needs'

Establishment of a new 200- to 300-bed hospital north of Elk Lake is inevitable if the area's needs are to be looked after in a proper manner, Rest Haven administrator Thomas Bradley said Saturday.

"The population of the Saanich Peninsula is growing at a fast rate and unless a new hospital is built in the area, services will remain inadequate," Mr. Bradley said.

Provision of a new hospital would have to be made in addition to the 75 acute-care and 75 extended-care beds recently allocated to Rest Haven, he said.

'MORE THAN THAT'

"These 150 beds will serve the immediate needs of the area, but if we want to plan for the future, we had better provide more than that."

Emphasizing the importance of the location north of Elk Lake, Mr. Bradley said a hospital there could provide excellent service to the largest number of residents from the Cordova Bay, Sidney and Central and North Saanich areas.

"This location was recommended by the technical committee of the Greater Victoria Planning Council four years ago. It was again recommended by the Agnew-Peckham report, and I still feel that it would be the best possible choice."

Mr. Bradley praised Victoria Mayor Hugh Stephen, chairman of the regional hospital board, for having done a "great job" up to now.

"Ever since he took the position of chairman things started rolling. If we continue to get this type of leadership, I think we'll get somewhere," said Mr. Bradley.

George Harrison, St. Mary's Priory administrator, said Friday that there would be "an awful lot of disappointed people" unless the priory was given at least 150 new extended-care beds.

Municipal Grants Announced

Five Island municipalities will receive a total of $1,308,132 in per capita grants from the provincial government this year, it was announced Monday.

Courtenay receives $164,108; Duncan, $120,372; Nanaimo, $425,264; Port Alberni, $519,064; Comox, $79,324.

The amount includes the $3 per capita increase voted by the Legislature this year.

FIRST PRIORITY

The government pointed out the increase was earmarked for specific purposes, and first priority must be given to spending the additional money on ambulance services.

The four Greater Victoria municipalities will receive a total of $4,132,828 in per capita grants.

UVic Exhibit Praised As Superior in Quality

By INA D. D. UHTHOFF

Jack Shadbolt's brilliant speech for the opening of the current exhibition of the work of the students of the School of Fine Arts at the University of Victoria paid tribute to the rapport between the students and their instructors.

He commented upon the superiority of the work shown here to much that is in the limelight in Vancouver. It is representative of what is happening in the new wave of art that is sweeping the world today. There is the element of risk that carried the work into new dimensions and justifies the courage shown by the leaders of this revolt against the obvious in art.

With an art department like the one we have at the University of Victoria, anything seems possible, and the stimulation provided by the liveliness of a show of this outstanding quality will have its effect on many.

A top-ranking art department university.

What is astonishing is that here in Victoria this has been achieved with so little fanfare.

★ ★ ★

I must admit that I have been staggered by the power shown in the work of our artists in training, most of them far outpacing the older generation of established painters, sculptors or graphic artists.

It was a wonderful opening night April 15, a virile crowd of young men in varied hairstyles and intriguing tailoring, some lovely young girl students in miniskirts, with beautiful legs and well brushed, lustrous hair flowing freely, making one think of young Greek goddesses.

This was my first contact with the students of the School of Fine Arts at the University of Victoria.

One hears rumors of dissatisfaction among some of the university staff for so large a portion of the timetable being devoted to art at the expense of the classics. But surely there is time for both.

The Art Gallery of Greater Victoria is to be congratulated in leading the way to more recognition of the importance of art in the daily life of our city.

The show will continue until the end of the month and should not be missed.

WEST URGED TO GET IN THERE, FIGHT

Trudeau Advice: Don't Pick Negative Men

By FRASER KELLY and PETER THOMSON
Special to The Daily Colonist

OTTAWA—Prime Minister Trudeau will campaign personally in Quebec for national unity if Premier Jean Jacques Bertrand presents the people of his province with a referendum asking them to chose between federalism and separatism.

Trudeau made the commitment in an exclusive 55-minute interview which covered in depth the mood of the nation and his first year as prime minister.

Trudeau also expressed some very candid opinions about the alleged ill will rampant in the Prairies. It was the first time he has expressed his personal views about causes of disenchantment in the West, urging Western Canadians to fight for their rights as he and others did for Quebec's point of view.

Trudeau was asked if he intended to take a direct hand in Quebec politics by campaigning for a provincial party that based its platform on a federalist position. He replied:

"No, I don't intend to do that; I am too much a respecter of federalism to believe that the prime minister of the country should involve himself in provincial politics in such a direct way.

Theoretical Question

"The only circumstances in which I see myself getting involved in this theoretical question would be if there were to be some kind of referendum in Quebec asking the people to vote against federalism or against Canada, or for separatism. Then I would have to act as a citizen of that province and I would have to speak my mind on it.

"This would no longer be a question within the ambit of provincial jurisdiction as fought out by a provincial election; this would be a question within the ambit of whether the country exists or not and I think certainly as a Quebecer I would feel very much involved in the solution of such a question."

Thompson: In the past few months you have had a couple of notable confrontations with Premier Bertrand. He has, in fact, accused you of aiding the cause of the separatists. Do you feel these confrontations are in fact hurting unity?

Prime Minister: "No I don't feel that they are hurting unity; I feel there is a lot of politics to such confrontations.

"Mr. Bertrand is going into a leadership convention. I think that the kind of party he leads was created out of a kind of hostility towards les Anglais, and towards Ottawa, and I think he is making a play now for the old guard of that party and probably for the greater mass of that party.

Insults and Injuries

"This does not distress me at all, any more than a lot of the insults and injuries that Ottawa received from Western premiers on other subjects.

"But why should we be any more shocked that provincial premiers from Quebec are aggressive towards Ottawa when you see what some of the other provincial premiers from the West, or even from the east, say?"

Kelly: I think the difference, sir, is that your reaction to Bertrand has been much tougher than your reaction to any of the Western premiers.

Was this partly a deliberate attempt by you to encourage and establish the federal presence in Quebec?

Prime Minister: "Yes, It is one of our major aims.

"And it is in this sense that I was talking earlier about the constitution or federalism as viewed by the man in the street.

"This issue that you are referring to arose over the situation of the international airport which is to be situated in Quebec.

"The Quebec government was taking the position that it should decide where this airport would be, and was giving all kinds of what I found to be very unsophisticated reasons for that.

For Farmer, Laborer

"This, of course, we cannot recognize. We have to say that in all areas under federal jurisdiction the federal government is the spokesman for the Quebec farmer, laborer, intellectual and so on.

"Therefore, when the government of Quebec, even in areas of federal jurisdiction, tries to tell us what to do because it is the spokesman for Quebec, we must reject that extremely strongly.

"I would do the same with any Western premier who accused me of the kind of things that I was accused of by Quebec."

Kelly: Both major provincial parties are planning conventions, although entirely of a different sort; can we assume that you are going to have more of these kinds of statements to deal with from the province of Quebec?

Prime Minister: "I would think not.

"I would think that the mistake of the past half-dozen years of political parties in Quebec has been to try to vie too much with each other in this area, to contest with each other as to who could be more anti-federal, or who could be more anti-Ottawa.

Strong Federalism

"I think that the future in Quebec will belong to that party which will realize that Quebec's future is in Canada, but will realize that strong and tough federalism means a certain amount of provincial autonomy, a certain amount of provincial authority in their fields, which will bargain toughly with the federal government in these fields.

"This is in the constitutional area, but especially will take the lead in Quebec to show to the people that the important areas are not areas of contest with Quebec.

"What is important is not so much to try to argue or bicker about the split of the fiscal dollar with Ottawa, but to make sure that the industrial base of Quebec will grow; to make sure that the natural resources will be exploited better; to make sure that the educational system will be developed better; to make sure that modernization of the administration, modernization of the whole apparatus of society will be forwarded.

"The party which begins telling this to the people of Quebec, the party which begins putting the accent not on

Victoria Woman's Book Wins Literary Award

A Victoria housewife was named Monday as winner of one of Canada's top annual literary awards for her first book.

Alice Munro of 1648 Rockland, 37-year-old mother of three, has won one of six Governor-General's Literary Awards for 1968. The Canada Council presents a $2,500 prize with each of the awards.

Mrs. Munro's book, Dance of the Happy Shades, is a collection of 15 short stories, most of them set in southwestern Ontario, where she grew up.

"I'm terrifically happy," she said. She has "nothing in particular" planned for her prize money, other than going to Ottawa May 13 with her husband, James, to pick up the cash and a specially-bound copy of her book.

Mr. and Mrs. Munro own and operate Munro's Book Store at 735 Yates, and she works there in her spare time.

She has been writing "seriously" for more than 15 years and has had numerous short stories published in Canadian periodicals and fiction anthologies.

'NOT GOOD LUCK'

She is working now on more short stories and has given some consideration to writing novels. "But I don't want to say much about it. It's not good luck to talk about it," she said.

"For some time, Alice Munro has been one of the dauntless members of the tiny group of persevering writers who have kept the short story alive in Canada," Colonist book reviewer E. D. Ward-Harris wrote after the book was published.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Catholic civil rights demonstrators stoned a police station and pitched Molotov cocktails at constables who rushed them swinging clubs late Monday night. No new attacks were reported on public utilities, guarded by British troops.

The fighting between Catholics and police in Belfast broke out shortly before midnight and ruined a day that had almost passed in peace. (See Page 3.)

Mutiny Quelled At Sea

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — The United States Coast Guard said Monday night a 10-man boarding party had boarded the West German freighter Helga Witt and restrained five mutinous crew members.

A spokesman for the Coast Guard in San Juan said the coast guard boarding party accomplished the operation without bloodshed. All five crew members had been reported armed.

NO INJURIES

Capt. Warner Thompson said there apparently were no injuries during the ordeal on the 3,118-ton ship about 120 miles southwest of San Juan.

The cutter Courageous arrived alongside the ship, after 6 p.m.

Capt. Thompson said the five seamen would be brought to San Juan and turned over to a federal marshal to await arrival of a German diplomatic representative.

The ship was reported en route from Australia to Marseille, France.

Most Power Soon Nuclear

MONTREAL (CP) — Nuclear energy will make a major contribution to the world's energy requirements by the year 2000 by being harnessed to produce electricity.

H. B. Merlin, nuclear plant engineer at Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. at Chalk River, Ont., said Monday recent forecasts indicate that about 56 per cent of North America's electricity may be produced with nuclear energy within 31 years.

He told the 71st annual meeting of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy the world production of electricity by that time will be almost three times the total electricity produced today.

LARGEST MEETING

More than 4,000 delegates, including some of the world's most prominent mining men, are attending the three-day conference which opened Monday. The meeting is the largest in the institute's history.

Merlin said forecasts show nuclear energy wil be supplying 35 per cent of North America's electricity by 1980, 23 per cent of Western Europe's and 20 per cent of Japan's.

In Canada, most of the nuclear stations will be located in Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes although they may be located in Western Canada toward the end of the century.

B.C. MAY BE LAST

Of the Western provinces, British Columbia may be the last to harness nuclear energy to turn out electricity because of its abundance of hydro sources which will meet electricity requirements.

Merlin said Quebec likely will go into the full-scale use of nuclear energy by 1980 although this date could be postponed.

Nuclear stations have higher capital and lower fuelling costs than fossil-fired stations—stations utilizing coal, petroleum or natural gas.

COST DECREASES

The capital cost differential decreases as the unit size increases so the cost of electricity generated will be dependent on the unit size and the capacity factor at which the station is operated.

The unit capital cost in Canada should be reduced in the future by the trend to larger generating units, by technical improvements and by increased experience in engineering and manufacturing nuclear components.

Another speaker, Gerald Blackmore, vice-president of the coal division of the Cape Breton Development Corp., described the last 12 months "as unique in the history of the Canadian coal industry."

COKE FROM WEST

Blackmore said that after many years of market reduction and limited capital investment "we have seen the finalization of massive long-term contracts for high-grade coking coal from the Western Canadian coal fields."

Senate's New Role?

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate resumes its legislative work today, and Senator Paul Martin sees the upper chamber developing new investigation and scrutiny responsibilities that may require a new kind of Senate appointment.

Senator Martin, a member of the cabinet and the government's leader in the Senate, said the role of the Senate has changed radically from its original purpose as a chamber for "sober second thought."

"It still serves this function, but it also performs other functions in its committees of investigation and scrutiny," Mr. Martin said in a memorandum summarizing the current work of the Senate.

Mood Optimistic Along Red River

EMERSON, Man. (CP) — The mood is optimism as the Red River Valley awaits rising flood waters.

It was business as usual Monday at this border town, which has felt the Red's heavy lash in other springs.

"Those dikes have made a lot of difference to Emerson," said flood co-ordinator Pete Herner.

"Those dikes" are heavy earthen seawalls, 50 feet wide or more at the base. They have turned Emerson and other towns downstream into fortresses which floodfighters are confident will hold off the strongest attack the Red may have in store.

They were built after 1966, the last year the river went on a destructive spree and forced the evacuation of flood-plain towns. Only fast work by soldiers and civilian volunteers on hastily-thrown-up temporary barricades saved them from inundation.

Forecasters now are predicting levels of perhaps a foot below 1966 despite the fact some North Dakota and Minnesota centres on the north-flowing river suffered the worst flooding of the century.

Two weeks of warm, dry weather have made the difference in southern Manitoba, clearing out ice and speeding up downstream runoff before the crest arrives from the United States.

Morning readings at Emerson Monday showed a rise of only three-quarters of a foot in 24 hours compared with a foot-and-a-half average in recent days.

Foundation Aims at Bering Strait Bridge

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) —A world-renowned engineer Monday proposed a bridge across the 50-mile wide Bering Strait between the United States and the Soviet Union.

* * *

T. Y. Lin, a distinguished consulting engineer and professor at the University of California, said his preliminary studies show such a bridge can be built with present technology at a cost of $1 billion.

The Soviet Union would benefit from the bridge, he said, and might contribute to its construction.

Lin has incorporated a non-profit foundation to undertake the project and hopes to have the bridge finished by 1980. It eventually would enable a person to drive from San Francisco or Buenos Aires, to Paris or Moscow, he said.

"Both the physical and psychological effect of such a bridge on world unity and peace will be tremendous," Lin said. "People will find that we can build constructive things as well as ABMs and ICBMs."

* * *

Lin concedes the intercontinental span would be more of a monument than a traffic artery at first. But he notes the rapid development now underway on the U.S. side, and assumes similar progress of roads and communities on the Russian side.

The Bering Strait, thought by most scientists to have once been a land bridge from Asia to America, is 150 to 180 feet deep across all of its 50-mile distance. Two islands are located in the middle.

Several methods of construction have been worked out, Lin said. One would be to sink piers at 1,000-foot intervals and then link them by spans built somewhere else and floated up to the Arctic.

* * *

"The greatest problem would be the ice," said Lin, but he believes the danger of ice flows damaging the piers could be overcome by means of a built-in system that would melt ice around the piers. The strait does not have icebergs, he said, and does not freeze over entirely, even in winter.

Lin, who built hundreds of rail and highway bridges in China during the Second World War, is a world-recognized expert on bridge construction.

"Politicians change, but the people are always there," he said. "This is going to be a sustained effort. It is not a dream — it is a vision. Without vision people will perish."

Boarding, Travel Grants Announced by Malaspina

NANAIMO — Maslaspina College officials have announced subsidy limits for college area students and key appointments to its staff.

College council chairman Jack Whitlam said students living more than 25 miles away could apply for the $40 boarding subsidy or the $10 a month travelling allowance. He said those living within 25 miles might receive a monthly $8 transportation subsidy.

EQUALITY SOUGHT

"The purpose of these subsidies is to equalize the educational opportunities throughout the district," he said.

New staff members are: Dr. A. B. L. Whittles, technical program development director; Miss Elizabeth Forrester, geography instructor; R. E. Vernon, mathematics instructor Gael Tower, art instructor.

Administration staff members now include: H. M. Brown, administrative assistant and and recording scretary.

Dr. Whittles, raised in the Courtenay area, is currently with the British Columbia Institute of Technology physics department and was formerly Selkirk College's math, physics and electronics department head.

'Spades' Dig Deep

LAKE COWICHAN — Spades did a lot of digging over the weekend — into problems.

The Spades were not the shovel type, but members of the Kiwanis-backed senior high school organization Special Aid, or Spade for short.

About 150 of them from different parts of Canada and the U.S. gathered at the fifth annual Spade conference at the camp for handicapped children. It was the first time the conference has been held in Canada.

Spade members work with handicapped children on weekends, after school hours and at summer camps.

At the conference though, they delved into a lot of other problems, too.

Maj. William Carey, chairman of the conference said, "The teenagers exchanged ideas, dug deep into mutual problems, and because of the international character of the conference, learned a lot about international understanding."

For discussions, the conference general assembly was divided into small groups which held bull sessions in the dormitories.

WEST URGED TO GET IN THERE, FIGHT

Trudeau Advice: Don't Pick Negative Men

By FRASER KELLY and PETER THOMSON
Special to The Daily Colonist

OTTAWA—Prime Minister Trudeau will campaign personally in Quebec for national unity if Premier Jean Jacques Bertrand presents the people of his province with a referendum asking them to chose between federalism and separatism.

Trudeau made the commitment in an exclusive 55-minute interview which covered in depth the mood of the nation and his first year as prime minister.

Trudeau also expressed some very candid opinions about the alleged ill will rampant in the Prairies. It was the first time he has expressed his personal views about causes of disenchantment in the West, urging Western Canadians to fight for their rights as he and others did for Quebec's point of view.

Trudeau was asked if he intended to take a direct hand in Quebec politics by campaigning for a provincial party that based its platform on a federalist position. He replied:

"No, I don't intend to do that; I am too much a respecter of federalism to believe that the prime minister of the country should involve himself in provincial politics in such a direct way.

Theoretical Question

"The only circumstances in which I see myself getting involved in this theoretical question would be if there were to be some kind of referendum in Quebec asking the people to vote against federalism or against Canada, or for separatism.' Then I would have to act as a citizen of that province and I would have to speak my mind on it.

"This would no longer be a question within the ambit of provincial jurisdiction as fought out by a provincial election; this would be a question within the ambit of whether the country exists or not and I think certainly as a Quebecer I would feel very much involved in the solution of such a question."

Thompson: In the past few months you have had a couple of notable confrontations with Premier Bertrand. He has, in fact, accused you of aiding the cause of the separatists. Do you feel these confrontations are in fact hurting unity?

Prime Minister: "No I don't feel that they are hurting unity; I feel there is a lot of politics to such confrontations.

"Mr. Bertrand is going into a leadership convention. I think that the kind of party he leads was created out of a kind of hostility towards les Anglais, and towards Ottawa, and I think he is making a play now for the old guard of that party and probably for the greater mass of that party.

Insults and Injuries

"This does not distress me at all, any more than a lot of the insults and injuries that Ottawa received from Western premiers on other subjects.

"But why should we be any more shocked that provincial premiers from Quebec are aggressive towards Ottawa when you see what some of the other provincial premiers from the West, or even from the east, say?"

Kelly: I think the difference, sir, is that your reaction to Bertrand has been much tougher than your reaction to any of the Western premiers. Was this partly a deliberate attempt by you to encourage and establish the federal presence in Quebec?

Prime Minister: "Yes, It is one of our major aims.

"And it is in this sense that I was talking earlier about the constitution or federalism as viewed by the man in the street.

"This issue that you are referring to arose over the situation of the international airport which is to be situated in Quebec.

"The Quebec government was taking the position that it should decide where this airport would be, and was giving all kinds of what I found to be very unsophisticated reasons for that.

For Farmer, Laborer

"This, of course, we cannot recognize. We have to say that in all areas under federal jurisdiction the federal government is the spokesman for the Quebec farmer, laborer, intellectual and so on.

"Therefore, when the government of Quebec, even in areas of federal jurisdiction, tries to tell us what to do because it is the spokesman for Quebec, we must reject that extremely strongly.

"I would do the same with any Western premier who accused me of the kind of things that I was accused of by Quebec."

Kelly: Both major provincial parties are planning conventions, although entirely of a different sort; can we assume that you are going to have more of these kinds of statements to deal with from the province of Quebec?

Prime Minister: "I would think not.

"I would think that the mistake of the past half-dozen years of political parties in Quebec has been to try to vie too much with each other in this area, to contest with each other as to who could be more anti-federal, or who could be more anti-Ottawa.

Strong Federalism

"I think that the future in Quebec will belong to that party which will realize that Quebec's future is in Canada, but will realize that strong and tough federalism means a certain amount of provincial autonomy, a certain amount of provincial authority in their fields, which will bargain toughly with the federal government in these fields.

"This is in the constitutional area, but especially will take the lead in Quebec to show to the people that the important areas are not areas of contest with Quebec.

"What is important is not so much to try to argue or bicker about the split of the fiscal dollar with Ottawa, but to make sure that the industrial base of Quebec will grow; to make sure that the natural resources will be exploited better; to make sure that the educational system will be developed better; to make sure that modernization of the administration, modernization of the whole apparatus of society will be forwarded.

"The party which begins telling this to the people of Quebec, the party which begins putting the accent not on

Victoria Woman's Book Wins Literary Award

A Victoria housewife was named Monday as winner of one of Canada's top annual literary awards for her first book.

Alice Munro of 1648 Rockland, 37-year-old mother of three, has won one of six Governor-General's Literary Awards for 1968. The Canada Council presents a $2,500 prize with each of the awards.

Mrs. Munro's book, Dance of the Happy Shades, is a collection of 15 short stories, most of them set in southwestern Ontario, where she grew up.

"I'm terrifically happy," she said. She has "nothing in particular" planned for her prize money, other than going to Ottawa May 13 with her husband, James, to pick up the cash and a specially-bound copy of her book.

Mr. and Mrs. Munro own and operate Munro's Book Store at 735 Yates, and she works there in her spare time.

She has been writing "seriously" for more than 15 years and has had numerous short stories published in Canadian periodicals and fiction anthologies.

"The greatest problem would be the ice," said Lin, but he believes the danger of ice flows damaging the piers could be overcome by means of a built-in system that would melt ice around the piers. The strait does not have icebergs, he said, and does not freeze over entirely, even in winter.

Lin, who built hundreds of rail and highway bridges in China during the Second World War, is a world-recognized expert on bridge construction.

"Politicians change, but the people are always there," he said. "This is going to be a sustained effort. It is not a dream — it is a vision. Without vision people will perish."

Outside Probe Requested By Professor

A call for an outside investigation of the University of Victoria's fine arts school and a vote of confidence by a group of students in Dr. Alan Gowans are the latest developments in the campus' latest controversy.

On Monday, fine arts professor Richard Grooms announced he had requested "a full-scale inquiry" into the reasons why his two-year contract was not renewed last winter.

Prof. Grooms, who said he already has another job, called for an inquiry by both the UVic faculty association and the Canadian Association of University Teachers.

A CAUT investigation carries the possibility of sanctions by the organization if the university is judged to have violated academic freedom.

TEN STUDENTS

On Sunday, a group of about 10 art students issued a joint statement expressing confidence in Dr. Alan Gowans, chairman of the division of art and art history.

Dr. Gowans has variously been accused of imposing his views of art on other faculty members, interfering in the selection of a head of the new studio arts division, and of being "incompetent" outside his field of art and art history.

The students termed Dr. Gowans "a dedicated scholar, a conscientious teacher, and an honest and straightforward administrator."

UNDER FIRE

Prof. Peter Garvie, school director who also is under fire from students and some faculty, issued his first formal statement on the issue Monday.

"The essential issue is that some teachers of studio arts have tried to set themselves up as a separate entity outside the procedures that were accepted by the School of Fine Arts," said Prof. Garvie in a prepared statement.

The statement was endorsed by Dean Robert Wallace, acting president of the university.

The trouble, which apparently has been simmering for months, broke into the open last week with the resignation of Dr. Peter Kahn, a distinguished graphic arts specialist. He said he was unable to do the things he wanted to, and blamed lack of facilities as one factor.

The controversy focuses on the selection of a head of the embryonic studio arts division, which will become a department next fall when the fine arts school is elevated to the rank of faculty.

Dr. Gowans, who came here in 1966, now is in charge of the studio arts division.

STUDIO ARTS

Approximately 60 studio arts students asked Dr. Kahn to reconsider his resignation and asked the university to remove Dr. Gowans from decision-making power.

On Monday Prof. Grooms delivered this letter to Dr. James Hendrickson, president of the UVic faculty association:

"As a result of our last conversation about my appeal to the Canadian Association of University Teachers in Toronto and to the tenure committee at the university for the association, I had decided to not carry this to the CAUT.

NEW POSITION

"Now, in the light of the question of the competence of Dr. Gowans and Mr. Garvie and their reasons for not either renewing my contract or offering me a new position in art history or studio art—plus the fact that Mr. Emery says he is not returning to the University of Victoria but is staying on in Vancouver—I would now like a full-scale inquiry on my case by the CAUT and the university association."

Prof. A. Grooms referred to Prof. Toney Emery, longtime art teacher who went on leave of absence two years ago to become director of the Vancouver Art Gallery, and whom he replaced here.

Prof. Grooms commented:

"I think an inquiry now would do some good. It's no longer just one man and one position.

"I have another position to go to, so it's not just sour grapes."

STILL MEMBERS

Prof. Garvie's statement said in part:

"The studio arts faculty have attempted to function as a separate department, though no such department yet exists, and with as little reference as possible to the chairman of the division of art and art history.

"In fact, they are still members of that division."

Prof. Garvie said the studio arts people had been "fully consulted" in the search for a chairman, but had not recommended a name to the committee advising on an appointment.

Board Seeks Restitution For School Vandalism

Parents of school vandals will be taken to court for restitution, the Greater Victoria school board decided Monday.

Trustees heard a catalogue of rising damage to school property that cost the district $24,000 for glass alone last year, and will probably increase by 25 per cent to $30,000 this year.

At the suggestion of Trustee Peter Bunn, the school board approved a motion to confer with police chiefs on better policing of schools, and the laying of charges against all vandals caught.

TEST CASE

The board will press for a test case in which it would seek restitution for damage from the parents or guardians of juvenile vandals.

Mr. Bunn, chairman of the board's buildings and grounds committee, said that common law at present appeared to shield the parents of young vandals from paying restitution.

Mr. Bunn expanded on a report to the board concerning a recent wave of destruction which culminated in thousands of dollars worth of damage to an addition to Macaulay elementary school during the Easter holiday.

Last week alone the school district replaced more than $100 worth of outside lights, he said.

"We have had to discontinue replacing the glassware covers over most of the outside lights," said Mr. Bunn. "The replacements are so costly and difficult to obtain that we just replace the globes."

SOUND EQUIPMENT

He noted an upsurge of thefts of electrical equipment during burglaries. Four $50 radio antennas have been taken this term.

"We are getting quite a number of break-ins where the object seems to be to steal sound equipment, tape recorders, radios and record players," Mr. Bunn reported.

Recovered equipment is nearly always damaged beyond repair.

'WE OWE THIS'

Outside the board room Monday night was a pile of wrecked sound equipment, the remains of four record players and tape recorders worth a total of $500.

Speaking for the motion to seek restitution, Mr. Bunn said:

"Surely we owe this to the people we represent."

Solarium Fund $8,400

The Queen Alexandra Solarium Junior League raised its fund total to $8,400 Monday night after canvassing the Ten Mile Point area.

"We will definitely be canvassing until the end of the month," said Mrs. R. J. Nickels, publicity chairman.

The league is aiming for $35,000 in the fund campaign. "I hope people realize we are still collecting and canvassing, and if someone has been missed in an area that has been covered, they could call the Solarium office, 381-9301, and we will pick up the donation," Mrs. Nickels said.

Municipal Grants Listed

The four Greater Victoria municipalities will receive a total of $4,132,828 in per capita grants from the provincial government this year, it was announced Monday.

The total grants amounted to $43,121,232, up from $38,390,150 in 1968 as the result of action by the Legislature to increase per-capita payments from $25 to $28.

Saanich gets the largest grant, totalling $1,647,660, an increase of $176,535. Victoria is next with $1,608,684, and the boost amounts to $172,359.

Oak Bay gets $507,444, up $54,369, and Esquimalt is boosted by $39,540 to $369,040.

Elsewhere in the capital region, the provincial grants to Central Saanich rise $10,920 to $101,920; in North Saanich the increase is $8,673 to $80,948, and in Sidney, up $9,495 to $88,620.

Other Vancouver Island grants include Courtenay $164,108; Duncan $120,372; Nanaimo $425,264; Port Alberni $519,064; Comox $79,324.

Fisheries Briefs Heard Thursday

A meeting of the Commons' fisheries and forestry committee is scheduled at 4 p.m. Thursday in the Imperial Inn to receive briefs on fisheries and forestry problems.

Cemetery Spree Brought to Halt

A wrecking spree by two juveniles Sunday in Ross Bay Cemetery was stopped by three other youths who held the boys until police arrived.

The two youths responsible for the damage will be summoned to appear in juvenile court soon on charges of wilful damage—$2,000 worth, according to police.

PHONED POLICE

The three, at about 6 p.m., were in the process of ordering the vandals to replace the tombstones they had removed, when a passerby observed their attempt and telephoned Victoria police.

"A bit of a fight" took place when the two boys, aged 13 and 14, resisted the others' demands. Police arrived before any of the boys left.

A caretaker at the cemetery said the tombstones were pushed off their foundations and smashed on surrounding curbs. Some were apparently irreplaceable, he said, because they were of polished marble imported from Scotland.

In all, 13 tombstones were damaged. A police constable spoke highly of the three boys' action, calling it "a step in the right direction."

The cemetery was also damaged by vandals during Easter weekend and has been the target of similar abuse since its start in 1872.

In 1966, 42 tombstones were damaged in a two-week period and extensive damage was done in 1963 and 1964.

Willows Goal

Three Oak Bay organizations are banding together at 9 a.m. Sunday to clean up Willows Beach.

About 40 volunteers from Oak Bay Youth Community and 75 DeMolays will aid Kiwanians in the project to give sunbathers room to relax, according to Kiwanian Norman Pimlott. Others are welcome.

Rezoning Decided Despite Protest

By NANCY BROWN

Despite opposition voiced by some 600 people at an earlier public hearing, Oak Bay council decided Monday night to rezone the Riding Academy property on Cedar Hill Road for apartment buildings.

Opposed to the zoning were Ald. Ian Horne and G. Scott Wallace.

"To my knowledge never in the history of Oak Bay have so many people appeared at a meeting and expressed such violent opposition," said Ald. Horne.

ONE IN FAVOR

"Some 600 people appeared and regardless of who applauded and at what point, the fact remains that only one individual spoke in favor of the rezoning at that meeting. While I believe he spoke in what he felt were the best interests of the area, that one man is in the contracting business," added Ald. Horne.

"Considerable numbers of people have spoken and written to the council and these are the people directly affected by the construction of these proposed highrises and apartments.

"I think council is derelict in its duty to put construction before the feelings of the people.

'ILLOGICAL'

"It is illogical, unfair and makes no sense whatsoever to assume the rest of the community is in favor of sacrificing that area in favor of the concept of an ice arena simply because they don't appear at a meeting," he added.

Ald. Horne asked that Mayor Fred Hawes disqualify himself from giving a tie-breaking vote if it became necessary.

He also asked that Ald. Frances Elford be disqualified from voting because, he said, she had made it abundantly clear both before and during the public hearing that the last chance for recreation facilities for Oak Bay rested upon the proposed rezoning.

'POOR BASIS'

"This is a desperately poor basis on which to make a decision."

Mayor Hawes refused to give a ruling on Ald. Horne's point of order.

"I don't feel I can do that," he said, "and I'm not ashamed of anything I have said."

Ald. Douglas Watts said he felt the proposed bylaw was good land use, regardless of the side issue of getting more money for the up-coming recreation referendum.

He felt residents had ample protection and distance between their single family homes and the proposed highrises which would be well screened by trees.

He said rezoning and sale of the municipally-owned land would bring considerable tax revenue and capital to Oak Bay.

Ald. Elford said she had sought out knowledgeable people concerned with zoning and was convinced the property was a good apartment site.

DRIVE-IN BANK

"I certainly have no intention of abstaining from voting," she said.

Ald. Horne said immediately after the rezoning hearing that Mayor Hawes had received an application to put a drive-in bank at the corner of Fenderson and Cedar Hill.

"We haven't agreed, but if you put that density of population in that area the pressure on future councils will be irresistible for additional amenities such as banks and shopping centre."

Ald. Horne suggested that council was about to commit an improper breach of confidence in the proposed recreation referendum.

PACKAGE

He felt the people should be able to vote separately on the four proposed facilities, but he had been told the question should be put as a package because elderly people would approve the library, senior citizens centre and probably the swimming pool but would vote against an ice arena.

"Nothing can be gained by tying this in with recreation," retorted Mayor Hawes.

Ald. Alex Hendry said he was judging the matter on good land use.

"If the municipality didn't own the property you would have to take another look at it," he said.

Council tabled a proposal to rezone property on Foul Bay Road for a shopping centre.

Lions Name Victorian Zone Chief

Al Smith, well known Victoria pianist and veteran of 40 years in broadcasting, has been elected zone chairman of Lions International covering 10 clubs on Vancouver Island and six on the Olympic Peninsula. The election was held at a conference at Bellingham during the weekend.

Action Under Wraps

Oak Bay council met for 90 minutes Monday night but the mystery of much of the discussion lingered on after members had retired into secret session.

Council discussed and dealt variously with communications numbered 69-158 to 96-177. After the meeting Mayor Fred Hawes refused to give reporters copies of the letters.

"Write a letter to council and we'll discuss it," he said.

NO FIGURES

Communication 69-158, according to the agenda, was a memo from Ald. Frances Elford giving Greater Victoria Library Board 1967 and 1968 expenditures and the 1969 estimates. No figures were mentioned as the document was received and filed.

Bylaw 2708 for disposal of property was adopted.

No copies were available of the adopted bylaws or of two bylaws which received first three readings.

They were referred to only by number. However it was learned that one is a rezoning bylaw and the other a property disposal bylaw.

Council will hold a public hearing on an unspecified date.

Injunction Upheld

Second Setback Surprises Union

The United Brotherhood of Carpenters expressed "utter surprise and disappointment" Monday after losing another round in the battle it is waging through the courts with Yakimovich Construction Ltd.

Mr. Justice R. A. B. Wootton upheld an injunction he granted earlier in B.C. Supreme Court, prohibiting the union from picketing Yakimovich construction sites.

An application by the union's lawyer, Louis Lindholm, to have the injunction set aside was refused Monday when Mr. Justice Wootton handed down his judgment.

'DISAPPOINTMENT'

"The judgment has come as an utter surprise and disappointment to the union," said John Schibli, business agent in Victoria.

The ex parte injunction was granted when 10 of 15 workers involved in a strike swore they had voted against strike action. A secret strike vote, counted with the company lawyer in attendance, was 8-7 for a strike.

The union claimed afterward that the workers had been invited to a party at the company office and had been given promises of two years' steady employment.

The strike against Yakimovich began March 25 and the injunction stopping picketing was granted the next day.

"The Provincial Council of Carpenters is of the view that it is very wrong for an employer, or indeed anyone, to query an employee as to how he voted on a secret ballot, as it undermines the sanctity of the secrecy of the ballot upon which our democratic processes are founded," Mr. Lindholm said late Monday.

"They (the union) are accordingly disappointed that the judgment of Mr. Justice Wootton did not provide a definitive answer upon the point," he said.

MAY APPEAL

Mr. Lindholm said he expected to receive specific instructions today to appeal the judgment.

Mr. Justice Wootton said in his judgment:

"I conclude that a great principle is involved in that there should be investigated whether or not there was in fact a secret ballot as intended by the law and if proper precautions were taken thereon."

He said in his opinion the question of legality of a strike was involved, and a lawful secret ballot must precede a lawful strike.

"Conversely, where an illegal strike is charged it may flow from an illegal vote, of which in this case there is some evidence."

Two Aldermen Unhappy — Rising Taxes Main Point

Saanich Refuse Issue Revived

Two Saanich aldermen Monday night got their licks in against municipal collection of garbage, approved by council last January.

The remarks were passed during discussion of the purchase of garbage trucks.

Ald. Leslie Passmore said he was "absolutely convinced" municipal collection was going to cost a lot of money.

"And, therefore, I'm going to vote against everything all the way through."

Ald. Passmore said Saanich was planning to have a driver for every truck, "presumably at $6,000 a year."

"This means that, with 10 drivers, we'll be paying $60,000 a year, just to have them sit there and drive a few feet between pickups."

Mayor Hugh Curtis said council was discussing purchase of equipment and asked Ald. Passmore to confine his remarks to the motion.

★ ★ ★

Mr. Passmore said he didn't like, after a "terrific increase in taxation, to pile more on."

A short time later, Ald. William Noel added agreement to Ald. Passmore's words.

"My heart is not in this," said Ald. Noel. "I feel we have made a bad choice in going to municipal collection, and I hope we don't live to regret it."

Mayor Curtis said it was up to council to make sure, as it went along, that the decisions made "would be important to the efficiency of the operation." He asked Ald. Noel to confine his remarks to the issue at hand.

★ ★ ★

Council approved the purchase of two 25-yard garbage packer trucks at $26,865 each from International Harvester, and the purchase of four 16-yard packers at $20,385 each from Suburban Motors. Ald. Passmore voted against the motion, but Ald. Noel didn't.

When council was told that the two locals of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, covering inside and outside workers of the municipality, had accepted the terms of a new contract calling for wage increases of 13 and 13.52 per cent, Mayor Curtis said he thought it was "very satisfactory, from both the standpoint of the taxpayer and the employees."

Ald. Passmore said that, while he thought it was a good settlement, "an increase in wages every year can do nothing but work hardship on those on fixed incomes."

Council approved the contracts, which call for the following increases:

Outside workers — Jan. 1, 1969, 6.67 per cent; Jan. 1, 1970, 4.86 per cent; July 1, 1970, 1.99 per cent.

Inside workers — Jan. 1, 1969, 5 per cent; July 1, 1969, 2 per cent; Jan. 1, 1970, 6 per cent.

In other business council passed a motion of Ald. Edith Gunning's to send a resolution to the annual conference of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, from June 2 to 5 in Ottawa, urging financial assistance to local governments from senior governments to purchase and lease back farmlands.
